THE MONKEY IN THE MAN.

A Round Dozen Points of Resemblance Shown by Human Babies.

To see the monkey in the man you have only to study the faces, bodies and habits of babies. Such is the theme of an article contributed by S. S. Buckman to the Nineteenth Century. The actions of children are, indeed, he says, like "ancient monuments of prehistoric times. The human infant is an interesting object of scientific research, and even a cross baby should be calmly contemplated by the philosophic mind." Here are some of the numerous illustrations which Mr. Buckman gives to show how survivals of our simian ancestry may be found by any nursery philosopher:

1. Monkeys are snub-nosed (simian). So are babies.
2. Babies have pouch-like cheeks. To judge from ecclesiastical monuments, this characteristic is supposed to be specially angelic. It is really monkey-like. Baby cheeks are the vestiges of cheek pouches, possessed for storing away food, as in scoropithecus, a monkey in which this habit of storing may be observed at the London Zoological Gardens, if visitors feed it.
3. At the base of the vertebral column babies have a deep circular depression. This is the mark of the monkey's tail.
4. Babies (as Dr. Louis Robinson has shown) have superior arm power and very short legs. So have monkeys.
5. Babies, in catching hold of anything, don't use their thumbs, but clasp it between the fingers and palm. This is the action of monkeys in going from bough to bough.
6. A baby can move any of its toes independently, and it can move them one from another so as to make a V between any of them. As it grows older it loses this power and also the power of turning its ankle, but that it has such power over its muscles when young points to ancestors who used their feet more than their hands as organs for picking up small objects, and who relied on their hands and arms for supporting their bodies.
7. Babies go to sleep on their stomachs with their limbs curled up under them—a survival from our four-footed ancestors.
8. Babies are rocked to sleep—an imitation of the swaying to-and-fro of the branches where our monkey ancestors lived. Even our nursery ditty, "Rock-a-baby on the Tree Top," points back to the arboreal age.
9. The stair-climbing instinct of babies, like the tree-climbing propensity of boys, points back to an arboreal age.
10. The fruit-stealing instinct is a survival from monkeydom.
11. Children are fond of picking at anything loose—because monkeys pick out the bark from trees in order to search for insects.
12. Children are very fond of rolling. This points to the time when our ancestors had hairy bodies tenanted by parasites, and allayed the irritation by rolling.

Both "At Home." A story has been current among the students in Aberdeen which showed that, up to a comparatively recent date, all Scotch prejudices were retained by the old Scotch professors. It related, says Tit-Bits, to the late Principal Pirie, who had a weakness for the refinements of life.

Just after "at home" cards became fashionable one of the dullest specimens of the old professional regime was surprised to receive a missive, which read as follows:

"Principal and Mrs. Pirie present their compliments to Prof. T., and hope he is well. Principal and Mrs. Pirie will be 'at home' on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock."

This was something which evidently required an answer, but the recipient of it was quite equal to the occasion. He wrote:

"Prof. T. returns the compliments of Principal and Mrs. Pirie, and informs them that he is very well. Prof. T. is glad to hear that Principal and Mrs. Pirie will be at home on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Prof. T. will also be at home."

Prospects of High-Priced Tea. Americans may be suffering to a slight extent from the China-Japanese war in having to pay more for their Chinese tea next season, so the tea merchants think. It is suggested that, if China is compelled to pay a heavy war indemnity to Japan, she may impose a heavy export tax on tea in order to help pay it. It was expected that the war would cause a shortage in the crop this year, because of laborers being called to military service, but this has not been the case. The war broke out too late to have any effect on this season's crop.—New York Sun.

Train Stopped by a Turkey. The east-bound passenger train on the Lancaster, Oxford and Southern Railroad was held up by a turkey hen the other day. As the engine was puffing up grade it passed under the limb of a large tree on which several turkeys were roosting. The exhaust steam from the stack was so strong that it knocked a large turkey hen from her perch. In falling she alighted on the bell rope and rang the bell. Engineer Spear stopping the train.—Philadelphia Press.

The Great Cities of the Earth. The latest enumeration of the population of the earth shows that it contains two hundred and seventy cities having more than one hundred thousand inhabitants each; thirty-five having more than five hundred thousand, and twelve having more than a million. Three of the twelve are in the United States. So, while our country contains less than five per cent. of the total population of the globe, it possesses twenty-five per cent. of the cities of the first rank.

The Rise of the Buckwheat Cake

The leaven of yesterday ruins the cake of to-day. Don't spoil good buckwheat with dying raising-batter—fresh cakes want Royal Baking Powder. Grandma used to raise to-day's buckwheats with the souring left over of yesterday! Dear old lady, she was up to the good old times. But these are days of Royal Baking Powder—freshness into freshness raises freshness.

And this is the way the buckwheat cake of to-day is made: Two cups of Buckwheat, one cup of wheat flour, two tablespoons of Royal Baking Powder, one half teaspoonful of salt, all sifted well together. Mix with milk into a thin batter and bake at once on a hot griddle.

Do not forget that no baking powder can be substituted for the "Royal" in making pure, sweet, delicious, wholesome food.

Sleep With the Head to the North. A man who has decided theories on hygienic subjects is said to carry a compass in his pocket for the proper placing of his bed when traveling. He thinks this of the utmost importance in securing perfect repose and urges his friends to form the habit of sleeping with the head toward the north, in order to get the benefit of the electric currents which are constantly passing from north to south. This very old theory is at least an easy one to try.

A Curious Clock. A curious clock has been made by a clockmaker at Warsaw named Gold-fadon, who has worked at it six years. The clock represents a railway station, with waiting rooms for the traveler, telegraph and ticket offices, a very pretty, well lighted platform and a flower garden, in the center of which is a sprinkling fountain of clear water. Past the railway station run the lines. There are also signal boxes, signals, lights and reservoirs—in fact, everything that belongs to a railway station, so the smallest detail.

In the cupola of the central tower is a clock which shows the time of the place; two clocks in the side cupolas show the time at New York and Peking, and on the two outermost towers are a calendar and a barometer. Every quarter of an hour the station begins to show signs of life. First of all the telegraph official begins to work. He dispatches a telegram stating that the line is clear. The doors open, and on the platform appear the station master and his assistant; the clerk is seen at the window of the ticket office, and the portmen come out of their boxes and close the barriers.

A long line of people forms at the ticket office to buy tickets; porters carry luggage; the bell is rung, and then out of the tunnel comes a train, rushing into the station, and, after the engine has given a shrill whistle, stops. A workman goes from carriage to carriage and tests the axles with a hammer. Another pumps water into the boiler of the engine. After the third signal with the bell the engine whistles and the train disappears in the opposite tunnel; the station master and his assistant leave the platform, and the doors of the waiting room close behind them; the portmen return into their boxes, and perfect stillness prevails till, in a quarter of an hour, the whole is repeated.

The Kind of Bird to Raise. Select in the make-up of a fowl a bird that carries a large amount of meat if you want a bird for the table. To secure meat a peculiar configuration is essential. A large, projecting crop is unnecessary, for some of the meatiest birds look flat in the breast. It is necessary to have the quarters extremely broad. If they round out, so much the better, because there is meat carried upon the breastbone. A deep keeled bone to the breast well lined with muscle should round out and feel on the bird very much as a duck does when he is dressed. Secure a bird with a large thigh, because the thigh joint and the bone down through the leg carries a large amount of meat. Look out for a good strong shoulder because the muscles that make the shoulder are the muscles that make their way in the market.—Farm and Home.

According to Macaulay, the favorite amusements of Frederick William were to smoke, sip Swedish beer, and shoot partridges.

Louis Napoleon was fond of mimic warfare, and would often have forts constructed in his garden to illustrate some tactical point.

Alaskan Canoes. In the Sitka district, Alaska, the canoes are each cut from a single log of wood. The log is first dressed and hollowed out, and then steamed and spread open. Many of the canoes are models of form. Great care is expended on them, and if the maker were paid good wages their prices would be fabulous. A good new canoe, able to carry three men and 100 pounds of baggage, is worth $150. An older canoe of the same size may be procured for $70. Some cost $200 and up to $700.

Fun For Indoors. Boys may be beguiled into a form of diversion the precedent for which was set by to less a personage than one of England's noble dukes at a country house. A broomstick is passed through the handles of a large clothesbasket, its ends resting upon the backs of two chairs and there secured by ropes. Thus suspended the least touch causes the basket to swing. The young gentlemen are then invited to climb into it and there balance themselves. If they are not promptly overturned, they are further requested to put on a pair of list slippers, a feat requiring the nicest possible adjustment of balance. If this, too, be accomplished, they are then to divest themselves of the slippers, which they usually try to do by short vigorous kicks, which infallibly overturns them, to the great delight of the audience.
