Pretty sharp winter weather has prevailed here for the past week, but the people here are not needy and fuel is free so none need suffer.

A number of the farmers are going to try a little of the new forage plant "sacaline" this coming season. If it is anything like what is claimed for it the experiment will prove satisfactory.

D. H. Griswold, cashier of the Commercial Bank, is moving into the house recently fitted up by him, just south of the residence of Postmaster Marsteller. It will make a cosy home.

Any tendency to premature business may be promptly checked by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. Don't delay till the scalp is bare and the hair roots destroyed. If you would realize the best results, begin at once with this invaluable preparation.

The case against Henry Ludeman, for shooting Gustav Noro's dog was taken up yesterday before Justice Snuck and a jury and still is in progress. The neighboring racket seem to occur in Warbonnet of late while all is quiet on White river. A number of witness have been summoned by each side and the case will cost more than all the dogs in the county are worth.

The board of county commissioners called to meet on Friday, February 22d. At that meeting the names from which a jury will be drawn for the April term of the district court will be selected and all other business attended to as it is not likely that they will be in session again until after the term of district court. It is most likely that the board will be in session both Friday and Saturday.

The article from the Nebraska Farmer which appears in another column of this issue should receive the attention of every one who is at all interested in the subject of irrigation. Those who have small streams will do well to arrange to store up the surplus water and those who must depend on flood-water or pumps for a supply for irrigating certainly must have reservoirs. Henry Warnke suggests that a farmer in this county need be to no expense except his work for he can haul gumbo from the lake and construct a reservoir without the investment of a dollar. The suggestion is well worthy of a trial.

A man who has had a good opportunity to observe informed us that in the past few months he had seen many stock owners carry Winchester when looking after their cattle and the reason given is that they propose to use them in case they caught any one rustling. That shows that feeling against rustling is pretty strong. The best thing that the honest people of the county can do is to let it be known that they favor the punishment of any person guilty of stealing cattle. If it is known that such work is unpopular it will cause men to hesitate when tempted to commit a crime if it is pretty certain that they will go to the penitentiary if detected. Prevention is better than cure, and a strong public sentiment will do much to stop rustling and that would be much better than to send any one to the pen.

It was hoped before this issue of THE JOURNAL that the matter of the sugar factory for Chadron would have been settled and that the people of this locality could join those of Chadron and all northwest Nebraska in congratulating themselves and each other over the bright prospects of this part of the state in future. But up to the time of going to press no report has been received from the committee who went to Chicago to close up the deal. In speaking of the matter a few days ago Superintendent Harris informed the editor of THE JOURNAL that it was as near certain that the factories would be secured as a deal could be without the papers having been signed, but, of course, there is always a chance for slips. All hope and expect to bear very soon that the matter is settled and that work on the building will begin at once.

BUSINESS NOTICE.

The JOURNAL has a large number of accounts on its books, making in the aggregate hundreds of dollars. Much of this is owed by men who are much better fixed financially than is the publisher. It is therefore urged that every person indebted to this office settle the same at once. It costs money to conduct a newspaper and what is due has been earned and is due just as much as any other debt, so it is desired that prompt settlements be made by all.

Three Kinds of Suffrage in Canada.

A curious feature of the Canadian political system is the lack of uniformity in the franchise. There are in fact three voters' lists, with different qualifications for each. One is for municipal elections, another for elections for the Provincial parliament and the third for elections for members of the Dominion parliament at Ottawa. A Provincial elector must earn $300 a year or be a property holder, a householder, or a farmer's son. Women are excluded, although as already shown, they have the right to vote in municipal elections. For common suffrage lists are made up by the officers of the general government and the elections are held under the supervision of that government. The qualifications of a Dominion elector are rather complex. He must own real property in a city of the value of at least $300, or in a town of the value of $200, or in a rural district of the value of $100; or he must be the tenant of real property at a monthly rental of at least $2 or at an annual rental of at least $20; or he must be a bona fide occupant of property of a value such as is specified in the case of ownership; or he must be a farmer's son; or he must be able to show that he is in receipt of an income of at least $300 in cash or its equivalent in board and money. A man may vote at a general election in all the election districts in which he is able to qualify; that is to say, he may vote in one district and take a train and go and vote in another. If in a city where there are a number of polling divisions he may record his vote in one and walk to the next one in which he is qualified and record it again. This system is not much admired by the Manitoba people and there is at the present time an agitation to have it changed, the rallying cry of which is "one man one vote." From "Canada's Prairie Province," by E. V. Smith, in February Review of Reviews.
