Nobody don't get nothin' wat he don't holler fer.

One of the rankest things that has ocfurred in the senate for a long time was the introduction of a resolution by one of the silver senators calling upon the president to furnish information as to the influence used by him to bring about the repeal of the silver purchasing law. If the chief executive prostituted his office the proof should be obtained by a different method. The action of the senator is on a par with that of a judge issuing an order to some man against whom no charge has been made, to come into court aut produce evidence against humself.
