 This is what Olive Schreiner thinks of Cecil Rhodes: "He is Napoleon over again, but Napoleon in a financial, industrial and political world. What Napoleon did with steel Cecil does with gold. Around him there is a court of creatures who only live to minister to his will."

SANG AT AN INDIAN'S GRAVE.

"Home, Sweet Home," Was Chanted Under Peculiar Circumstances.
 When the boundary line between Tennessee and Georgia was established it passed half a mile south of the spring Tuck-a-lee-chee-chee, among the foothills of the Unakas, and as it crossed one of the principal Indian trails it became a place of much importance. There had already grown up a strong rivalry between the Tennessee tribes, headed by Chief Ross, and the Georgia tribes, headed by Major Ridge, both half-breeds, and men of extraordinary ability as leaders. The establishment of the new boundary line fixed the limits of their respective territories, and to try and harmonize as far as possible the contending factions the government established a trading post there. John Howard Payne appeared upon the scene and was accused of inciting the Indians to insubordination. He was placed under arrest as an incendiary and carried to the council-house. The name of the place was changed from the euphonic appellation of Tuck-a-lee-chee-chee to the one more easily pronounced of Red Clay, because of the color of the soil in that vicinity.

While Payne was held there one of the first hands arrived, and among the Indians was the chief, Oo-chee, or Rattling Gourd, a broken-hearted man. He was moody and abstracted, and refused all invitations to the council-house and would partake of no festive enjoyments whatsoever, but spent the most of his time at the graves of his wife and child further up the valley. At last one morning he was missed from his accustomed place by the campfire and an alarm was immediately raised that Rattling Gourd had escaped. The patrol scattered in every direction in search of him, and some of them beheld him at the spot where his fondness for the spot where his loved ones slept and went in search of him there. And there they found him. Weltering in his own blood, his body lay between the little mounds that covered his squaw and paopoe. In some way he had secreted a bayonet when the Indians were being disarmed, and, brooding over his removal, he became desperate, and seeking that lone spot he chanted his death song, fell upon the point of the bayonet, which pierced his heart, and died on the spot where he had often expressed a desire to be laid for his last long sleep.

The affair caused great excitement and indignation. The malcontents took advantage of the distressing occurrence to stir up strife and fears were entertained of a mutiny. A grave was dug on the spot where he lay and the chief was buried by the soldiers, one of the Moravian missionaries officiating. After the services were over John Howard Payne, who had been a silent witness of the pathetic scene, began singing softly to himself the song which has since been echoed through every land on the earth. General Bishop, who had kept a close scrutiny on his actions, heard the song and called Payne to him.

"Young man," said the stern old Indian fighter, "where did you learn that song?"
 "I wrote that song myself," replied Payne.
 "And where did you get the tune?"
 "I composed that, also."
 "Would you let me have a copy of it?"
 "Certainly I will."

"Well, a man who can sing and write like that is no incendiary. Appearances may be against you, but I am going to set you free. I shall write out your discharge immediately and a pass to you anywhere you choose through the nation."

Payne had been housed at the home of a family living near by, and on his return there he exhibited his pass and related the circumstances. That was the first time that "Home, Sweet Home," had ever been sung in public—Atlanta Constitution.

THAT BIG SHOW

Legislators Will Give the Omaha Exposition $100,000.00.

STORMY SESSION DURING DISCUSSION.

House to-tomorrow in Session Until Midnight to Discuss the Bill—All Its Phases—Some Warmly Manifested Over the Question Wednesday.

The state appropriation to be given in aid of the trans-Mississippi exposition has been fixed by the house of representatives at $100,000. This agreement was reached Wednesday. Consideration of the exposition bill was assumed at the morning session. Debate on a motion to indefinitely postpone the measure continued the greater part of the day. The motion was defeated as was another motion to recommit the bill. There being no prospect of any other legislation receiving attention as long as this measure remained undisposed of, the house decided to hold a session at night and the amount of the appropriation was fixed at $100,000. Subsequently attempts were made to reduce the amount. Various sums, ranging from $50,000 upward, were voted down, the house standing by its original decision to give $100,000. Several amendments proposed by Speaker Gaffin relating to manner of expenditure of the appropriation were adopted. At midnight the house was still in session.

Representative Burkett of Lancaster was called to the chair in the morning when the house took up the bill in committee of the whole. He presided throughout the day. Felker of Douglas sent to the clerk's desk a proposal giving the apportionment of the bill one hour and the friends of the bill twenty minutes for reply. Mr. Felker made the offer in the hope that long and needless arguments might not follow. The offer was not accepted by the house.

STATE PRIDE DISCUSSED.
 Eastman of Custer opened up the debate by referring to a dispatch in the World-Herald which said that a Custer county farmers' institute has been unanimously in favor of a large appropriation. Mr. Eastman said the matter was news to him, as he had talked with one man especially mentioned in the dispatch only a short time ago and he had been opposed to an appropriation. Mr. Eastman referred to the argument that the members should make a liberal appropriation to maintain the state's pride. This, he said, was too thin. The state was in the position of the cat who heard the buzz-saw running and when he jumped against it, only a pile of sausage meat and a few broken fiddle strings were left. The state should leave the buzz-saw alone. Mr. Eastman said that only two years ago $20,000 had been spent in his county to keep his people from starving. They were not now in a position to vote a large sum for a show. He was opposed to it in every form.

Snyder of Sherman said the exposition would be held in the state and in Omaha and the question was how to meet it. He favored doing something to protect the honor of the state. PREDICTED FAILURE.
 Loomis of Butler thought that state pride demanded that the members of the legislature be honest and that at the expense of being considered radical, they consider the exposition as a business proposition. In his judgment the exposition would be a failure no matter what was done to assist it. The country at the last election decided to let the present condition of affairs continue, and in Mr. Loomis' judgment, the bottom had not been reached. The exposition, he was sure, would not benefit the state as its friends claimed. Its benefits would not be far reaching and he begged of the house to consider the bill as a business proposition.

SHELDON'S VIEWS.
 Sheldon of Dawes said that the real question at issue is whether the state is to vote a dollar to the exposition or give it nothing. There are two considerations. One is the financial problem and the other is the question, "Will the exposition have educational features of great enough import to make an appropriation worth while?" Mr. Sheldon favored the committee amendments to the bill and he thought the recommendation of $150,000 made by the committee should be adopted. He knew of men in his county who had gone to Georgia at the time of the Atlanta exposition and made investments there, who would not have gone south but for the exposition.

Mr. Sheldon begged the friends of the bill not to argue that the holding of the exposition would relieve all the suffering laboring men of Omaha. The country, he thought, was laboring under a false system of politics, which no exposition would alleviate. The real good of the exposition would result to the youth of this section of the country from its educational features. He thought that the business men of Omaha might be induced to forget that they have corner lots to sell and that they have saloons which they wish to run wide open on all occasions. He wanted to see the whole state unite for the state's best interests.

The motion to recommend a committee of the bill was lost. A motion to rise and sit again in the evening was lost by a vote of 39 to 49.

A motion to rise and sit leave to sit again at 10:30 this morning by Clark of Richardson was carried.

Casebeer moved the adoption of the committee report. Jenkins favored a night session and said that he wished to be relieved of all charges of being an obstructionist.

FAVORED SPEEDY ACTION.
 Cronk moved that the report be not concurred in and that the house meet again at 7:30 and resolve itself again into a committee to consider the bill. The motion carried by the following vote:

Yeas: Alderman, Ankeny, Billings, Campbell, Clark of Richardson, Cole, Cronk, Dolson, Eastman, Gaylord, Gerdes, Givens, Grell, Grossvener, Hamilton, Hill, Holland, Horner, Hall, Hyatt, Jenkins, Jones of Wayne, Kapp, Lemar, Loomis, McCarthy, McCracken, Marshall, Mitchell, Moran, Morrison, Rolland, Robertson, Severe, Sheldon, Snyder of Johnson, Snyder of Sherman, Stebbins, Straub, Taylor of Fillmore, Ueding, Webb, Welch, Wheeler, Wiebe, Winslow, Wooster, Wright, Zimmerman, Mr. Speaker—50.

Nays: Baldwin, Bernard, Blake, Bower, Burkett, Byram, Casebeer, Chittenden, Clark of Lancaster, Curtis, Eager, Eighmy, Enclor, Felker, Fernow, Fouke, Gosnorn, Grandstaff, Grimes, Henderson, Hille, Holbrook, Jones of Gage, Jones of Nemaha, Keister, Liddell, Metfee, McLeod, Mann, Mills, Nesbit, Phelps, Prince, Rich, Roberts, Rouse, Shall, Smith of Douglas, Smith of Richardson, Soderman, Sutton, Taylor of Douglas, Van Horn, Waite, Wimberly, Woodward, Yeuser—47.

Absent and not voting: Roddy, Schran and Young—3.
 The house then took a recess till 7:30 o'clock.

Eighty-seven members were present at the evening session. Clark of Lancaster moved that the house resolve itself into the committee of the whole. Pollard moved to amend by limiting the time to be allowed each side to twenty minutes. Dobson seconded the amendment and characterized the action of the house for the last day and a half as worthy of a parcel of school boys. A motion to table the amendment by Phelps of Dundy was lost. The amendment prevailed and Burkett of Lancaster was again called to the chair.

The question was called for and the vote was taken on the amendment of Billings fixing the amount at $100,000. Seventy-one members voted in the affirmative and the motion was declared to be carried without taking the negative vote. Billings moved that the committee rise but the motion was lost.

According to the ruling of the chair further amendments providing for larger sums were allowable. An amendment by Clark of Richardson fixing the sum at $150,000 was lost by a rising vote of 28 to 55. The amendment by Grell of Sarpy appropriating $125,000 was voted upon next and it was lost, 26 only, voting for it.

When it came to voting upon $100,000 the committee got into a tangle as to whether it could vote again upon the proposition of $100,000.

Winslow's motion inserting $75,000 was taken up, the chairman holding that $100,000 was in the bill as it stood and required no further vote. The members he held, had a right to vote upon $75,000. The vote on the amendment was, yeas, 20; nays, 62. A vote on the proposition of inserting $50,000 was lost. The appropriation then stood at $100,000.

The state senate rejected reports from the railroad committee indefinitely postponing a bill reducing passenger fare from 3 to 2 cents a mile and also a bill making all tickets and mileage books sold good until used by the bearer, and both bills were placed on general file. Bills placing express companies, telegraph companies and telephone companies under jurisdiction of the board of transportation and requiring railroads to build union depots and connecting switches were favorably reported by the railroad committee. A resolution introduced by request of the seven republican senators authorizing a thorough investigation of the accounts of ex-State Auditor Eugene Moore was adopted. A joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution authorizing investment of the permanent school fund was advanced to a third reading. Two bills relating to dismembered school districts were discussed in the committee of the whole.

The house devoted the entire day to the trans-Mississippi exposition bill and resumed consideration of the measure at a night session.

INVESTIGATION AUTHORIZED.
 The following resolution introduced the day before the request of all republican senators was called up by the Talbot of Lancaster:

Whereas it is currently reported that the outgoing state auditor has not accounted for and paid over to his successor or into the state treasury the amount of funds due the state and collected by him during his term of office, and Whereas, the taxpayers of this state are entitled to know the exact condition of the accounts of the outgoing state auditor, therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the senate that said office should be investigated to the end that the taxpayers of this state may know of the true condition of the accounts of said outgoing officer and we demand a full, thorough, searching investigation of the condition of the accounts of said officer by a committee of this senate and that we desire and ask that the presiding officer of this senate appoint such committee immediately for the purpose of making such investigation and reporting back to this body the result thereof.
 Murphy also spoke, declaring the republican minority deserved to go on record as favoring a thorough investigation.

The Efficiency of Labor.

The other night, at the business meeting, the Rev. T. C. Eason astonished many of those present by professing sanctification.
