From what we could learn Charley had a close call.

—Go to Pioneer Pharmacy for Xmas presents.

—We will wager a doughnut against most anything that there isn't a town anywhere along the F. E. & M. V. railroad, between Norfolk and Casper, that has done as much actual building and repairing during the year, that will close within a couple of weeks more, as has been done in our thriving little town. To be sure no large business blocks have been erected, no palatial residences, such as might grace a metropolitan city, but several nice little dwellings have been built and others repaired, and old buildings painted up, giving the town a very much better appearance, and we predict for next year, more progress along the line of building and improvements than has been done the present season. While we do not expect to build up an Omaha or a Lincoln, we confidently expect, in time to compare with any city between here and Norfolk.

—Wonder if our school teachers intend going to their homes on a visit during the holiday vacation and take chances of being exposed to smallpox? We hope, for the good of schools, the town and all concerned they will forego the pleasure of a home visit that is liable to endanger the health of the community, unintentionally, of course.

—Herbert Lacy is having a addition built to his house 14x22, which will make him a very nice farm residence. But the enlarging of his domicile would indicate, we are soon to hear the sound of the wedding bells ringing in that direction. Well, Herbert is an industrious, young man and the young lady who succeeds winning his favor to become his life companion, will have reason to feel proud.

The introductory paper by W. A. Clark, Ph. D. of Peru will present a practical educational view of the teachers educational relation to the study of children. The main theme of the program, however, is the period of adolescence. It will be treated from different standpoints by persons thoroughly qualified to speak with authority on their special topics. Professor Henry B. Ward will discuss the subject from the standpoint of Biology Professor T. L. Bolton, from that of psychology; Dr. Isaac C. —Merchant Bigelow, has had the first story of his store on the north side, the length of the main building weather boarded. In the spring he intends removing the upper story and otherwise improving the lower part of the building.

Never Too Old to Learn.

Socrates at an extreme age, learned to play on musical instruments for the purpose of resisting the influences of old age.

Plutarch when between seventy and eighty, commenced the study of Latin. Boccaccio was thirty, when he commenced the study of polite literature, yet he became one of the greatest masters of the Tuscan dialect, Dante and Petrarch being the other two.

Sir Henry Spelman neglected the sciences in his youth, but commenced the study of them when he was between fifty and sixty years of age. After this time he became a most learned antiquarian and lawyer.

Colbert, the famous French minister, at sixty years of age returned to his Latin and law studies.

Ladovaco at the great age of one hundred and fifteen, wrote the memories of his own times.

Ogilvy, the translator of Homer and Virgil, was unacquainted with Latin and Greek until he was past fifty.
Franklin did not fully commence his philosophical pursuits till he had reached his fiftieth year.
Dryden in his sixty-eight year, commenced the translation of the "Iliad," and his most pleasing productions were written in his old age.

Bobarc Gleanings.

Such bright beautiful weather, as we are having, will make the cold winter seem much shorter, but it is evident Sant Claus will not be able to come in his Reindeer sledge this year. Some of the little ones think he may come on a bicycle but are doubtful about the size of the pack he can carry on one.

The young people of Bobarc, attended a quiet dance and supper at the home of Mrs. Scott, one evening last week, and a general good time is reported by those who were there.

The teacher of district No. 9, will give her pupils a week's vacation, beginning on Monday next, in which to enjoy the treasures which Santa may bring them. We learn that Miss Jordan's school in the Meyers district has closed on account of sickness, presumably Typhoid fever.

Mr. Miller and family took dinner at H. Zimmerman's Sunday.
Mrs. J. W. Hunter, is on the sick list. Every one should attend the literary on Wednesday evenings. M. A. C.

Brave Men Fall.

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, head ache and tired, listless, rundown feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. J. W. Gardner, of Idavill, Ind., says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man who he don't care whether he lives or dies. It gave me new strength and good appetite. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents. at J. E. Phinney's Drug Store. Every bottle guaranteed.

Well the Boers have gained another signal victory. They seem to be lit Banoo's ghost, they will not down. Eey, land, the robber nation that she is, has now resorted to the disreputable mode of war, that so civilized nation ever did do, except Spain and that is the burning of the homes and property of the brave Boerburgers. No wonder that Mr. Chamberlain, England's foreign secretary, is being accused of being a thief by his countrymen.
