

SYRUP OF FIGS

IS AN EXCELLENT FAMILY LAXATIVE—
IT IS REFRESHING TO THE TASTE
AND ACTS
PLEASANTLY AND GENTLY.
IT ASSISTS ONE
HABITUAL CONSTIPATION
TO OVERCOME PERMANENTLY

With many millions of families Syrup of Figs has become the ideal home laxative. The combination is a simple and wholesome one, and the method of manufacture by the California Fig Syrup Company ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product, which have commended it to the favorable consideration of the most eminent physicians and to the intelligent appreciation of all who are well informed in reference to medicinal agents.

Syrup of Figs has truly a laxative effect and acts gently without in any way disturbing the natural functions and with perfect freedom from any unpleasant after effects.

In the process of manufacturing, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinally laxative principles of the combination are obtained from plants known to act most beneficially on the system.

Smooth Old Bishop.

Had Bishop Potter of New York not become eminent as a churchman, he might have won high honors as a diplomat. Asked by a lady the other day what he thought of female suffrage he answered: "I have got far beyond that point; I am trying to make the best terms with the sex that I can obtain."

Look at the Label!

Every package of cocoa or chocolate put out by Walter Baker & Co., bears the well-known trade-mark of the chocolate girl, and the place of manufacture, "Dorchester, Mass." Housekeepers are advised to examine their purchases, and make sure that other goods have not been substituted. They received three gold medals from the Pan-American exposition.

Noted Writer Changes His Name.

Ernest Seton-Thompson, the well known author and writer, has been granted permission by Justice Gleason of the New York supreme court to change his name to that of Ernest Thompson-Seton. Mr. Seton-Thompson in his petition said that the surname of Thompson was a pseudonym adopted by his family, which hid from the English government after having taken part in the Jacobite rebellion of 1745.

BOOKISH FARE COLLECTORS.

Students as Street Car Conductors in Holyoke, Mass.

When you pass through Holyoke, Mass., on the trolley line in the summer time, says a correspondent of the Springfield Republican, and the conductor asks you for your fare, be sure you address him politely, for there are chances that he is a college undergraduate earning money to pay for his tuition and knows a thing or two besides fares, transfers and meeting points. Holyoke young men as a rule have a way of making a success in life, when they set about it, and a dozen or so very earnest and determined young men rely upon their work as conductors on the Holyoke Street Railway company's lines during the vacation months to assist them in their efforts to obtain an education; and it doesn't hurt them a bit, and the outdoor air and exercise—there is considerable exercise in the life of a conductor, which you will observe if you keep your eyes open—generally gets them into pretty good physical form for the year's work at college. They are a standing rebuke, these determined, often athletic and always courteous and intelligent young fellows, to the many street loafers and cheap jacks with which Holyoke is afflicted. "They make good conductors," said John McDonnell, chief conductor of the Holyoke Street Railway, recently. "They are quick to learn usually and intelligent and polite. We never have trouble from the college boy conductors; wish we could get more of them. Some of them run both ends, the strongest of them. It's the policy of the company to have a number of men who can run both ends to use in case of an emergency. But they act as conductors for the most part. What do they earn? Well, that varies; from $14 to perhaps $15 a week. Many earn $15 for making extra runs. The regular schedule of pay is $2 a day and they work seven days a week. Most of them have night runs, and are not able as easily to make extra trips. The best day runs are given to the men in the order of seniority of service." The summer months require a number of extra motormen and conductors, and the men striving for a college education have taken advantage of this fact, with good results, apparently, to themselves and the road.

HOTEL BOOKKEEPING.

Curious Mysteries of Account-Keeping in Hostelties Explained.

Of course the keeping of books for 1,500 patrons of a big hotel who have all sorts of expenses charged to their accounts, from the ordinary hotel charges to telegrams, cabs, flowers, theater tickets, packages delivered, C. O. D. and money loaned, and of the 1,500 employees is a very complicated problem, says a writer in Albion's Magazine. That, however, is only a part of the bookkeepers' duties. To prevent any leakage which might seriously impair the small percentage of difference between success and failure, all big hotels employ a system of checking. Every order from the dining room passes through the hands of two or three checkers before it reaches the kitchen in the shape of a requisition, which is held as a voucher for the delivery of the portion. After the order has been filled in the kitchen it is again inspected by another checker, who marks off each item on the order blank. "When the bill, with the separate items added up, has been paid by the guest, it goes to the cashier, who receipts it, tears off the stub for the waiter and files the bill itself. Every twelve or twenty-four hours, according to the system, the original order in the guest's handwriting and the several memoranda made by the cashier and the checkers are turned in to the auditor's department, where they are compared for the purpose of discovering any discrepancies. Each department is conducted independently of every other in its accounts, so that at a glance they may be compared as sources of revenue. In his books which are really daily logs of business, the proprietor can find a record of the number of dinners served on any day of the receptions and banquets, of the coal burned and electric light used, of the stock on hand and repairs made, of the weather, and, in fact, of every detail of the thousand or more that go to make up the business of running a big hotel.

LONDON'S IMMENSE TRAFFIC.

City Proper Small, but Over a Million People Traverse It Daily.

The movement of the traffic in the city of London proper, the center of the financial activity of the world, is suggestive. Although but a square mile in area, with a day population of about 300,000, and a night population of but a tenth of this, in a single day over a million and a quarter of people and 100,000 vehicles enter and leave its limits.

The general street traffic is carried on by about 200 miles of tramways, nearly 150 lines of omnibuses, and 12,000 cabs. Internal communication is also provided by two lines of underground railways, with suburban connections, says Engineering Magazine, and three deep-level roads operated electrically. Two lines are under construction, six more authorized, and parliamentary rights are sought by existing or new companies for thirteen railways or modifications or extensions thereof.

Headgear of Columbia's Men.

Many pictures of Columbia's crew in white, with toboggan caps on their heads, have been published from time to time, observes Victor Smith, but they have not lessened interest in the peculiar headgear of Barr's pets. Boys wear such caps in the streets in cold weather, plainly knitted articles of every conceivable color, with tasseled peaks hanging down the back. Sometimes a pompon takes the place of the tassel. Columbia's crew wears toboggan caps of horizontal stripes of yellowish green and bluish black, and the general effect reminds you of Palmer Cox' Brownies or of watchful sprites materialized.

AN HONEST NAME.

An Illinois Statesman Tells a Good Story—Knew His Father's Son Would Not Lie.

The Honorable Alva Merrill of Chillicothe, member for the Twenty-fourth District, State of Illinois House of Representatives tells an interesting story:

Some two years ago Mr. Merrill gave a testimonial stating that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured his rheumatism. This with Mr. Merrill's portrait were published in thousands of papers all over the United States.

On the train returning home from Springfield one day last winter were the Honorable Mr. Merrill and several other members. After a time one of them said:

"Merrill, what time do you get to Chillicothe?"

This attracted the attention of an old man who had been apparently awaiting some identification of Mr. Merrill and as soon as he heard the name he rushed up to his seat and extending his hand said:

"You are Alva Merrill and you saved my life. I was most dead with Lumbago and in an advertisement I saw your picture and your recommendation of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I knew your father, and I knew his son would not lie, and therefore I decided to try the Pills."

"I am satisfied that Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else have saved my life and I have been waiting this opportunity to thank you personally, for had I not seen your recommendation I might never have been led to use this remedy, but, thanks to God, through your honest name and the honest medicine which you so heartily recommended I am still alive."

"I have been watching you since you got on the train at Springfield and thought I recognized your face as the one I had seen in the advertisement, and as soon as this gentleman called you by name, I knew you were the man I had to thank."

AN OPEN LETTER

Address to Women by the Treasurer of the W. C. T. U. of Kansas City, Mrs. E. C. Smith.

MRS. E. C. SMITH.

"Having found by personal experience that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine of rare virtue, and having seen dozens of cures where my suffering sisters have been dragged back to life and usefulness from an untimely grave simply by the use of a few bottles of that Compound, I must proclaim its virtues, or I should not be doing my duty to suffering mothers and dragged-out housekeepers.

"Dear Sister, is your health poor, do you feel worn out and used up, especially do you have any of the troubles which beset our sex, take my advice; let the doctors alone, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it is better than any and all doctors, for it cures and they do not."—Mrs. E. C. SMITH, 1213 Oak St., Treasurer W. C. T. U., Kansas City, Mo.—$5000 forfeit if above testimonial is not genuine.
