COURT ADJOURNED.

Russell Case is Granted Change of Venue. Nels Rosenberg not Guilty. A Summary of Civil Cases.

The work of the district court of Sioux county for the December term was brought to a close last Saturday night. After the Force case had been settled the court took up the work of trying the case wherein Nels Rosenberg was charged with grand larceny. Nels Swinbank was the complaining witness and alleged that Nels Rosenberg had stolen a horse of him which had subsequently been found in Rosenberg's possession and recovered. It seemed from the evidence given that there had been several persons implicated in the deal and it was therefore impossible for the jury to fix the crime on Mr. Rosenberg. He was therefore declared "not guilty."

In the Russell murder case numerous affidavits had been filed by prominent residents of Sioux county, stating that they did not believe Mr. Russell would receive a fair and impartial trial in Sioux county. There being no refuting evidence the court granted the change of venue and the case will be tried in Dawes county at the term of court which meets Jan. 6.

The case wherein the state prosecutes Frank Hughson for alleged assault was settled out of court and was therefore dismissed.

The civil cases on the docket were principally concerning the foreclosure of land for taxes.

Other cases were: James H. Cook vs. Charles Biedler, county treasurer. Plaintiff allowed to file petition instanter upon payment of all costs to date.

Wilber F. Shepard vs. Mary J. Langdon, continued.

Lewis Wohlitzer vs. Dakota Loan & Trust Co., dismissed.

E. Sables vs. H. Cottman, et al, dismissed.

Nels P. Rosenberg vs. B. & M. R. R. Co., continued for demurr.

Francis M. Smith vs. unknown heirs Anson B. Southwick, dismissed.

Matter of sale of lands of Joseph E. Hovey, deceased, confirmed and deed ordered.

PREFERRED THE DUSKY ONES.

Would Rather Teach Filipinos Than Husband's Children.

Mrs. Fannie Wadsworth of Milwood, Neb., seems to have little or no sentiment in her make-up. At least she does not appear to be endowed with an over-sweating love for the children of her husband. The telegraphic correspondence in the Insular division of the war department discloses that a "Miss" Wadsworth of the aforementioned town in Nebraska some time ago applied for an appointment as teacher in the public schools of the Philippines and received the desired commission, which carries with it a good salary. Subsequently a dispatch was received by the head of the Insular division signed "George Wadsworth" which said "Mrs. Wadsworth could not go because she had young children to look after. The lady was asked telegraphically about this new development by a war department official and wired back that "the children were her husband's by a former wife," and she wished her appointment to stand. Then she got on the cars, crossed the line into Kansas and wired the war department for transportation, received it and sailed away to Manila, leaving "George" with the kids to hol.

Woman Still Forging Ahead.

When Bishop Potter of New York was asked the other day what he thought of woman suffrage he made the diplomatic reply: "My dear woman, I have got away beyond that. I'm trying to make the best terms with the tax that I can obtain." This brings to mind the motto of William M. Evans when asked by a lady if he did not think that woman was the best judge of woman. He replied: "Not only the best judge, madam, but the best executor."

Occupations Consist of Doing Handwork and Drinking Coffee.

The women of the Sioux Indian tribes are not indulgent in their habits, but at their homes always had something to occupy their time. They do far more work than the men, but they don't know very much about modern housekeeping. In their log cabins they have a bed in one corner, a trunk against the side, head curtains on the wall sometimes and a large stove as near the center as possible. In the stove a coffee pot and tea kettle are always resting and are kept constantly filled. The Sioux woman is an inventive coffee drinker. She believes firmly in its efficacy as a universal medicine. The cooking operations go on outdoors in the summer, with a primitive arrangement of cross-poles to support the kettle. In the winter the women are always busy doing some kind of handwork. Whenever a son or a daughter gets married or any other event occurs the Sioux woman prepares a feast. She will spend her last cent in a big entertainment. Then they all dress up in their gayest colors, paint their faces and put on all the handwork they can on their children. Their dress is simplicity itself. It is made with two seams, one at either side. It is short in the back and front and long in the sides. In addition they usually wear a long beaded belt and a shawl. They never wear headgear, even on the hottest days they go hatless.

A Forgotten Craft.

It was probably known to nearly every Roman citizen how the mortar which cemented the stones of their buildings was made—just as it is known to the majority of people that the principal ingredient of English mortar is street scrapings, says a London newspaper. But the knowledge being general, nobody wrote it down, and in time as the Romans shifted their buildings upon slaves and foreigners, the recipe of their mortar was lost. So far it has not been discovered, though the secret of it would be immensely valuable, for the cement outlasts the very stones which it joins.

How Japs Smoke.

The Japanese smoke in a very peculiar manner. The pipes have very small metal bowls, with bamboo stems and metal mouthpieces, and only hold enough tobacco for three or four whiffs. They use a tobacco which is cut extremely fine, and looks more like a light blonde hair than anything else. It is of a very good quality, however. The Japs take a whiff of smoke and inhale it, letting it pass out through the nostrils. They rarely smoke more than one pipeful at a time.—Chicago Journal.

WOMEN ON GERMAN ROADS.

Their Services Are Sought Because of Their Great Efficiency.

Women in this country have as yet made but little headway in the service of the railroads, but in Prussia the head of the state railways has announced that for the future as many women as possible will be employed by them in those posts suitable for women. They will hold positions at the ticket offices, telegraph offices, telephone clerks at the counting offices and at the goods offices. In Prussia a great number of women are already employed in various government posts and each year sees fresh openings made for them. In Germany there are numbers of women dentists as well as doctors, and many people prefer to have their teeth attended to by a woman, and children seem less nervous when a woman attends to them. In spite of this, however, the women dentists are not so popular as women physicians. Many men dentists have women assistants, their patients finding this a pleasant arrangement, for though the assistant does not actually step the teeth, she is always in the room to help her employer.

Suggestion for the Charitable.

A philanthropic woman who is much interested in the children's ward of a hospital is piecing a coverlid for the bed of one patient little incurable that will delight his cruelly tried soul and would be acceptable to many another small invalid. The quilt is made of flags and is just the size of the bed and not intended to be tucked in. The flags are the little silk ones of all nations that are cheaply bought in quantities. Each has been lined with a firm muslin, as the silk is too poor a quality to be durable. The flags are put together with a simple feather stitch, the quilt being made up with wool batting, which is both light and warm, a thin silk used to line the other side. The idea was suggested to the hospital worker by the pleasure her little nephew took in a quilt of the kind which his mother provided and kept to interest him in his occasional sick days. While in theory the normal child ought not to have enough sick days through the year, he is specially provided for, in fact, thanks to our processes of living and eating he is quite likely to, and this bit of bed cheer is by no means to be despised. The same idea may be applied in the making of a cushion for a window seat or couch of a boy's room.—New York Evening Post.

Some Dollars at Home.

The paper dollar is a variation of the German word thaler, and the Danish escudo daler. The name arose about the year 1669 in Germany. The Counts of Sicking were then coinage pieces from silver obtained in their mines at Joachimsthal (Joachim's Dale), in Bohemia, which gained such high repute as to become standard coins; whence the name Joachimsthaler, which finally, for shortness, took the form of thaler—literally a "valley piece." The derivation of the dollar mark ($) has been variously ascribed to (1) a combination of the initials U. S., meaning the United States; (2) a modification of the figure 8, a piece of eight being formerly indicated by the character S-8; (3) a form of HS, which marked the Roman unit; (4) the contraction of P and S employed in Spanish accounts to indicate peso; (5) a device formerly seen on the reverse of the Spanish dollar, and again since 1848, on the peso duro, representing the Pillars of Hercules, and round each a scroll displaying the inscription "Plus ultra."

Old Marine Relic.

An ancient ship was recently discovered in the bed of the old River Lea, in England. The vessel, found at a depth of seven feet below the surface, is about fifty feet long and is constructed of oak throughout, with the exception of the keel, which is of elm. The ribs of the boat are secured to the sides by tree-nails, while the timbers are secured with crude iron nails. The floor boards are fastened together with nails and the caulking is done with felt. Antiquarians think it belonged to the fleet with which King Alfred the Great fought the Danes.

Waterworks of Two Cities.

New Orleans, a city of nearly 300,000 population, consumes less than 15,000,000 gallons of water daily. The cost of the New Orleans water works was $1,000,000. St. Louis has spent $20,000,000 for the same purpose and has a daily consumption of 60,000,000 gallons.

Old Philadelphia.

Oct. 25th was the two hundredth anniversary of the incorporation of the city of Philadelphia, which, in 1701, was already a town of some 1,500 houses, with more than 5,000 inhabitants. It was laid out as a parallelogram between the two rivers.

A Floating Cobbler's Shop.

A floating cobbler's shop is one of the features of the Penobscot Bay and Lake Umbagog, Maine. The Yankee Nation, going from place to place and giving attention to mending old shoes and boots while the people may save up for his company. Capt. Scarcity of Snails in France.

Some alarm is expressed by certain Paris papers because the supply of snails of the finest quality seems to be falling off to a serious extent. This apprehension, however, will cause no distress upon an extended scale, as the taste for the deliberate creature that carries his house upon his back has never been world-wide. In fact, it has never gained much ground outside of the Latin race, and beyond the borders of France itself the number of connoisseurs who have extolled the snail as a table delicacy of the most desirable sort has not been a long list.

Brought Apples to England.

Of all the productions of the vegetable world which the skill and ingenuity of man have rendered conducive to his happiness and to the increase of his enjoyments the apple stands forward as the most conspicuous. It is now a fruit crop of universal growth, and although the most beautifully sun-stained examples reach us at various periods of the year from Canada and California and the temperate regions of our great Australian colonies, for flavor none of them equal those grown in England. The garden apple is believed to have been introduced into Britain by the Romans, and the wild apple of our hedgerows is the type of the fruit when left to degenerate and to which it would speedily return but for constant culture.—London Telegraph.
