MAX O'RELL.

Max O'Rell, who recently joined the staff of the Paris Figaro, thinks that the press now fulfills the duties formerly monopolized by diplomacy and urges his companions of the pen to refrain from writing on any subject with which they have not at least an elementary acquaintance. If this plan were followed everywhere he says that twenty years hence the peace of the world would be assured.

PRESS-JOURNAL

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1891.

GEO. A. PHIPPS, Editor.

ENTERED IN THE POST OFFICE AT HARRISON, NEBR., AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF SIOUX COUNTY.

Dollar Per Year.

"Ideal" is the name of a magazine, the initial number of which will appear in April, 1892, from Albion, Neb. Its motto, "High Ambition, True and Noble Living, Culture, Character," promises that it will be a high class magazine and one of which the West can be proud. The PRESS JOURNAL is not acquainted with the editors, but hopes that the success which they merit may come to their endeavors. The field which they propose to cover is certainly a broad one and one which cannot be too thoroughly brought before the people.

Some five or six weeks ago, a fire occurred in Harrison, in the adjoining county of Sioux, which destroyed the home, together with every piece of furniture therein, of a worthy citizen of the town. The property was used as a hotel, and it was the owner's only means of providing for himself and family. He conducted a model little hotel, at which the traveller was always sure of a welcome and kind treatment. He was a good man—as good as the average citizen—and his wife was a lady. There was not one dollar of insurance upon the property, and the people determined to come to the rescue, which they did, and last week's Harrison Press Journal states that some $1500 has been raised. What a testimony is this to the generosity and all-round worth of the people of little Sioux—among the smallest in point of population of any county in the state.—Henningsford Herald.

MURDER.

Another great murder trial has gone into history in Sioux county. All the repulsive and terrible details of the awful tragedy have been told before the people and have gone into record. Somebody is responsible for it. What it is no one knows except, probably, the guilty man himself. But that man will probably carry with him into his grave a guilty conscience which will make all other punishments pale into insignificance. But whether he does or doesn't, the scenes which followed this tragedy have left an indelible impression on the minds of all who listened to the witnesses as they testified. The scene of the old, gray-haired father and broken hearted sisters and brothers as they told of the find of the body and the performing of the last rites could not but have left in all hearts a feeling of pity and sadness that such things could be.

With all these terrible scenes fresh in our minds is it not fitting that we should see the lessons from them? It is an awful thing to take the life of another. Not only is it a terrible thing to have on one's mind, but there is absolutely nothing to be gained.

It is all loss and no gain. Surely no one can dispute that fact. And if it is profitless, who will care to repeat it, and thereby carry with him to his grave a guilty conscience which needs no accuse? Surely when one is tempted in a moment of angry frenzy to take the life of a man who in his heart he hates, he will pause and think of the sorrow it will cause and the profitlessness of it all. And if he pauses and thinks he will surely not let his frenzy lead him to take that which he cannot return, the life of another.

Four Territories Seeking Admission.

There are now four territories seeking admission into the Union as states and according to all precedents they have a better chance of succeeding in the matter in Congress, especially in advance of a presidential election, if they are of the same politics as the dominant party in Washington. Of the four, three, Oklahoma, New Mexico and the Indian Territory are generally regarded as Republican, and only one, Arizona, as Democratic.—New York Sun.

Epitaph for Equus.

A recent number of the Westminster Gazette contains the following obituary notice: "Merrily sent to sleep at Landguard, full of years and honor, Freedom, a chestnut mare belonging to Dr. Cowper. She was bred by me and was named 'Freedom' by Mr. Bartlett on account of her absolute freedom of movement when quite a tiny filly. In her best days she would be hard to pass on any road."
