Press-Journal
THURSDAY, DEC. 19 1901.

Geo. A. Phipps, Editor.
ENTERED IN THE POST OFFICE AT HARRISON NEBR. AS SECOND CLASS MATTER
OFFICIAL PAPER
OF SIOUX COUNTY.
1 Dollar Per Year.

The Hill boom in Nebraska seems to have fallen rather flat.

The expressions of the press in regard to the president's message show that people in general are disappointed with the document. While the west can give thanks for the irrigation measures recommended, the country at large cannot but notice that Mr. Roosevelt has changed his attitude in regard to the trusts since his famous Minneapolis speech. There is no doubt that the elephants have bin around.

Washington dispatches say that all the western senators and representatives have united on irrigation measures and will this present much more formidable force than formerly. Congressman Shallenberger, the new representative from the 5th district has been chosen secretary of the irrigation organization. Mr. Shallenberger will certainly be an able and tireless worker in this the most important measure for the west, which is before this session of congress.

Carnegie has made the offer to President Roosevelt of enough money to endow a national university at Washington, D. C. The purpose of the school is to put higher education on as high a plan in the United States as in Germany. The work done is intended to be post graduate work entirely. While the object of this gift is certainly commendable it is doubtful whether the thousands of laboring men and women who have made this money for Mr. Carnegie would have voted it for this purpose.

Before another issue Christmas will have come and gone. It is therefore fitting that the PRESS JOURNAL wishes you all a Merry Christmas. During our short stay in Sioux county we have learned that they people are not out classed in generosity and kindly words and deeds by any county in our glorious state and United States. We therefore feel assured that you will enjoy the happiness and blessings which an all wise Father has bestowed on you in a way which will bring pleasure to yourselves and appreciation to others. May your hearts be warm and your hearts full of good will to men for many Christmas to come.

The B. & M. paper at Alliance, called "The Pioneer Grip," used a half column recently in telling its readers how much to their advantage will be the results of the recent railroad consolidation. One reason given was that the competition which has been destroyed will make shipping rates cheaper and more uniform. Now if Mr. Pioneer-Grip will conclude his argument by saying that this power—which is now wielded by a few men—should be placed in the hands of the people, he will, no doubt be admitted with out further comment into the ranks of the socialists. But as he isn't a socialist we will watch with interest his announcement that freight and passenger rates have been reduced, etc. Being from Missouri, you know, we will have to wait till the "showing" comes before we will swallow his logic as it now stands.

Increase of Population.
The increase of population in Europe and North America during the last century has been enormous. France has grown from 25,000,000 to 40,000,000 Germany from 20,000,000 to 55,000,000 Russia (partly from annexation) from 10,000,000 to 135,000,000, the English-speaking population of the British Empire from 15,000,000 to 55,000,000, and the United States from rather over 5,000,000 to nearly 80,000,000. Altogether the growth is, in round numbers, from 170,000,000 to 510,000,000, or the space which, at the beginning of the century, was occupied by one person must now accommodate three.

Asymptote.
Asymptote from the Greek, meaning "not coinciding," is a line that continually approaches nearer and nearer to some curve, but only meets it in an infinite distance. It is only with regard to mathematical lines that the proposition is true; and the truth of it has to be conceived by an effort of pure reason, for it cannot be represented.—Montreal Herald and Star.

Monument to Kaiser's Mother.
The newspapers announce that the Kaiser has ordered a monument to be erected to the memory of his mother in the most conspicuous place in Berlin, at the end of the famous street Uster den Linden. It is to stand just outside the Brandenburg Gate. He has himself made the design, which includes fountains and flowers and a figure of his mother in bronze. The cost will be $20,000.

Reconstituting an Individual.
The Waterloo bridge murder of 1857 is a celebrated example of the reconstitution of the individual. From the mutilated remains—found in a carpet bag on one of the piers of the bridge—the experts were able to show that the victim was a man of he was thirty and forty years of age, about 5 feet 9 inches in height, of dark complexion and killed by a stab between the third and fourth ribs on the left side. The date of Count Pasco in "The Woman in White" was believed by many to represent the end of the Waterloo bridge victim.

Hatched in Short Order.
The mosquito eggs are, it is said, hatched in from four to seven days, according to the warmth of the weather.

Napoleon Turned Pale.
In a recent magazine article Anton von Werner speaks of his famous painting, representing the meeting of Bismarck and Napoleon on the Champs de Marchy. Bismarck describes the scene to him minutely, mentioning among other things one amusing detail: "I stopped my horse to get off. My revolver accidentally got between my legs and hindered me in dismounting. I seized it, and seeing this thing (Napoleon) turned pale as chalk."

When the Town Wakes Up.
Farmers are very busy this week in their fields, and in consequence the town is somewhat dull, trade only being good in the evenings.—Tremont (Ill.) News.

Women Fall as Bull-Killers.
An experiment with women as toradors was recently made in the bull ring at Cadix, Spain, and was far from satisfactory. The women proved very poor bull killers, and the cheers turned to hisses before the day's entertainment was over.

Is the Lobster Doomed?
The agents of the Massachusetts fish and game commission are doing their part in enforcing the short-lobster law, and when the lobster eventually "passes," as many think he will, there will be quite a falling off in the state revenues. One Lynn man was recently "soaked" to the tune of $275, over fifty "short" lobsters having been found in his possession, and many other fines of from $10 upward have been assessed. A seafaring man who is familiar with the entire coast and its lobster fishing and packing industry from Cape Cod to New Foundland, expressed the opinion that the lobster is surely doomed. "If I had my way," said he, "I would repeal all the short-lobster laws and let the fishermen make a grand scramble for every lobster in sight. They have got to go anyway, and you might as well get rid of them at once as to go through the farce of trying to keep people from catching them."—Boston Globe.

Injudiciously Chosen Text.
A church was a considerable time without a pastor. A great number of persons of varied talents preached to them with a view to obtaining the post. All went well until he gave out the text: "See that ye refuse not him that speaketh." Imagine the consternation the people experienced when he read out the text in a lofty and commanding manner. He was unwary of the feeling he created. The people did the opposite from the text. The young man was not called.

A Room for Pictures.
The best background for pictures is plain terra cotta or brown paper. A woman who is the proud possessor of many old prints and engravings has them in her dining room. The walls are covered with wrapping paper, or something that looks very like it, and above is a fringe of orange distemper. The picture rails and woodwork are white. The hangings are of orange-colored velvet. All the furniture is mahogany.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Once Sat in That Chair.
Queen Anne was once surrounded by a host of gayly dressed courtiers, and in the throng was an old man of 82, wearing the plain dress of a country farmer. "Have you ever seen such a sight before?" asked a looker-on, and the throng was startled to hear the old man say, "Never since I sat in her chair!" It was Cromwell's son Richard, who went into retirement on the restoration of King Charles II.

Carry Pine Root.
Southerners who do not live in the long-leaf pine country like to have the scent of the pines about their person, therefore they wear a piece of pine root in their pockets. Once in a while they bite off a chew and masticate it as they do tobacco. Many regard it as a panacea. To sleep on a bed of dried pine needles is better than all medicine for rheumatism and kindred ailments.

Occupations of Candidates.
The candidates in the ticks in New York at the last election comprised 112 lawyers, forty-seven artisans and mechanics, forty merchants and tradesmen, seventeen clerks, twelve physicians, thirty-two liquor dealers, eleven professional politicians, ten office holders, twenty-five real estate brokers and eight undertakers.

Blasfemous Gas Motors.
It has been found in Germany and other parts of western Europe that the gases from blast furnaces may be advantageously used in running motors. The motors are employed for actuating air-compressors and electric generators, and it is said that they effect a considerable saving in the cost of founding.
