DOCTORS IN MADAGASCAR.

French Establishing Free Dispensary Service Throughout Island.

The French have just begun to carry out a great work of humanity in Madagascar. Medical missionaries were until recently the only doctors in the island. The Governor General several years ago established a school of medicine and a hospital at the capital. The medical school has already turned out fifteen native physicians who have proved themselves competent to practice medicine. With his white medical staff and the intelligent natives who are being trained to practice medicine, the Governor General now expects widely to extend the service. He has therefore decreed that all branches of the medical service in the island shall be consolidated in one organization and that hospitals similar to that in Antananarivo, where 125 sick persons may be accommodated at one time and where free medical service is dispensed to applicants numbering 100 to 150 a day, shall be established in the larger towns. Many natives trained for medical service will travel from one village to another distributing medicines and treating the ill. Particular attention will be given to the care of children, as the mortality among infants is actually 40 per cent of the total deaths. Pamphlets are now being printed in the Malagasy language giving rules of hygiene. It is hoped that the measures which are being taken to improve the health of the people may result in the rapid increase of the population, which now numbers only 2,500,000. The Governor General says that in a half century the population of Madagascar should be double.—New York Sun

TRAGEDY OF A LOCOMOTIVE.

Inglorious Ending of the Career of a World's Fair Wonder.

Engine No. 999, so the types have told, draws a daily milk train on the New York Central railroad. Therein lies the tragedy of a locomotive. Eight years ago this same 999 was a pet exhibit in the machinery department of the World's Fair at Chicago. It was the monarch of the rails, the holder of a world's record, the subject of great newspaper headlines, and the inspiration of editorials on attainable speed. In May, 1893, without breathing hard, No. 999 did a nine-mile spurt on a level track at the rate of 102 miles an hour. On the same trip and many times afterward the great locomotive drew the Empire State express during a long run at a sustained speed of more than a mile a minute. It was photographed in its great act by the biograph process, and to this day, on countless moving picture screens, breathless music hall crowds may see its counterfeit presentment approach and vanish in a calcium glare. And now 999 draws a milk train! Having traveled "the pace that kills," it has gone to the rest cure. Overtrained, like a human athlete, the ex-champion of the steel highway must henceforth "live softly" all its days. But what a churling it would give the fresh Orange county cream if some day old 999 should suddenly awake, as did the old deacon's famous trotter, to a revived sense of its former prowess!—New York Sun.

Jenny Washington.

Phillip Vickers Fithian, a tutor at Nomini Hall, Virginia, in 1774, gives this description of Washington's niece, Miss Jenny Washington. Evidently she was a personable young lady, with all the graces of her time. "Miss Washington is about seventeen; she has not a handsome face, but is neat in her dress, of an agreeable size, & well proportioned, and has an easy winning behavior; she is not forward to begin a conversation, yet when spoken to she is extremely affable, without assuming any girlish affectation or pretending to be overcharged with wit; she plays well on the Harpsichord & Spinnet; understands the principles of Music, & therefore performs her Tunes in perfect time, a Neglect of which always makes music intolerable, but it is a fault almost universal among young Ladies in the practice; she sings likewise to her instrument, has a strong full voice and a well-judging ear; but most of the Virginia Girls think it labour quite sufficient to thump the Keys of a Harpsichord into the air of a tune mechanically, & think it would be slavery to submit to the Drudgery of acquiring Vocal Music."—Youth's Companion.

No Million in This.

A square foot of the best Persian rug is worth about $10, and it takes a single weaver twenty-three days to complete it. This allows the weaver about forty-four cents a day for his wool and labor, but three-fourths of this amount goes to pay for the wool. Only eleven cents a day is left for the weaver.

JOKE ON THE JOKERS.

How a Victim Prepared Some Choice Words for His Friends.

All Manayunk is chuckling over a joke played the other day by Al Rudolph, his victims being the patrons of a certain barber shop over in West Manayunk, says the Philadelphia Record. This place has the reputation of being the rendezvous of a gang of jokers, who confiscate anything in the nature of eatables or drinkables brought in by an unsuspecting customer. A man came in the other day with a dozen fried oysters that he was taking home as a peace offering to his wife, and when he was released from the chair every oyster had disappeared. Watermelons have been known to go the same way, and when Al Rudolph had an imported cheese stolen while he was being shaved he planned a deep, dark revenge. While in town the next day he went to a restaurant and ordered some deviled crabs made, giving specific directions as to their ingredients. The component parts were sawdust, red pepper and bits of old rubber shoes, covered over with bran, slightly baked. Then he went to the barber shop and while he was being shaved he left the counterfeit crabs, neatly done up in a box, on a chair. When he went out he purposely forgot them. In the place at the time were "Professor" David Wallace, Special Officer Harry Haggerty, Bill Lyle and Teddy Watchorn. No sooner had Rudolph gone than Lyle grabbed the package and opened it and a mad scramble ensued for the contents. In the meantime the joker was peering through the window and he says the scene that followed beggars description; that he never before heard such profanity and hopes he never will again.

Wood-Eating Mules.

Mr. S. A. Harris, a grocer of Charlotte, has lost a mule and the better part of a delivery wagon. The wagon body was made of poplar. The mule was made of just simply ordinary every-day mule. Tuesday night the mule got out of the stable and set about a task of eating up the delivery wagon. He ate the frame work to the floor and might have finished the floor if he hadn't stopped long enough to die. Mr. Cam King, one of the original Two Orphans, was at the old Courthouse when he overheard Squire Maxwell telling an Observer reporter about the death of Sam Harris' mule. "I believe every word of it," spoke up King, "and I will tell you why. Mules will eat wood when they are wanting forage and can't get it (meaning no reflection on Sam). At Staunton, Va., during the war, I was in charge of the commissary wagons. We had plenty of corn for our mules, but for day after day they had no forage whatever. One night my mule ate out five spots from a wagon wheel to which they had been tied. That morning I got a load of chestnut rails to feed my mules on and they ate every one of them. Not a mule died. What caused the death of Mr. Harris' mule, I can't say, but I do know that many army mules were great wood eaters."—Charlotte Daily Observer.

Arab Harem in Mexico City.

A genuine Arab's harem has come to light in this city, or rather to the ears of the police, through the complaint of a young Mexican girl, who some time ago was prevailed upon to become an inmate, says the Mexican Herald. The lord of the harem was an Arab known as Al Isaham, who came here with a number of his tribe, and finally set up housekeeping with four comely damsels of the tribe on the corner de la Rosa. The Mexican girl, whose name was Soledad Gonzalez, was a native of the house, where some special marriage rites were performed, and she was arrayed in Arab costume. She was much disconcerted at finding there were four wives already, but she finally became resigned to the life. Her lord and master gave her a severe beating, however, and making her escape, she applied to the police for protection. The house was had got wind of the affair and in the traditional manner of his countrymen, he had "folded his tents" and sneaked away.

The Conductor Was an Ex-Tur.

Passengers of a Brooklyn Bridge trolley car were grossly amused the other day at the antics of their conductor, who has been a long while and was going through some strange performances on the platform to show that he wasn't all landlubber yet, although he had been ranging up fares for several years. The rejuvenated "tor said "I had a fine old time, "cutting ropes when I had a berth on the reekey-sail-yard or Stanhope. I takes a layard like they rope and pulling the trolley man rang for power. The trolley through with his exertion of provoking the rear seat as a as a captured the fender as a long and deck and its davits. Just then, the New York Mail and Express, of the Brooklyn end of the bridge was chided and the man resumed his role as a trolley conductor.

Earl Cadogan's Immense Estate.

Some idea of Earl Cadogan's wealth may be gathered from the fact that he has spent in the last fourteen years or so some thirty or forty million pounds in the purchase of the Culford estate in Suffolk, and the rebuilding of the house, a fine site in Chelsea, known as Bloo Islands, to the Guinness trust for the erection of workmen's dwellings. It is probable that during the next few years his wealth will double.
