While you are thinking of subscribing or your yearly reading matter, remember that the PRESS-JOURNAL will take subscriptions to any paper on earth and save postage and time for you.

In Wyoming.

Francis Deuel was building a fence on his claim the first of the week.

Henry Wertz is putting in a dipping vat for Andrew Christian this week.

Before this is in print we will be feasting on new peas and perhaps new potatoes.

We understand that George Davis is thinking of moving back into this part again.

Bill Shatto has sold his well drill to the Devels boys, who began drilling for the Box outfit on last Monday.

Nate Leach, a brother of Z. G. Deuel and a former resident of our part, arrived here from Montana on last Saturday.

We wish to congratulate Rev. Warren and welcome him into the ranks of the benefactors. May long life and prosperity follow them through life as the wish of all.

James Deuel returned home, week ago Sunday from Fayette, Idaho, where he had been since last Christmas. He was quite sick the last three weeks that he was there.

The rain on the morning of the 4th was quite a disappointment to a number of the residents here who intended celebrating in Harrison. Still quite a number braved the weather and went.

Unless the weather warms up soon the year 1902 will go into history as the year without a summer. The year 1815 was without a summer; snow fell and ice formed during every month, not only in this country, but in England there was nothing raised, and almost a famine was the result.

Dear Friends of the Press-Journal:

My last was written in the rain in Cheyenne. The rain continued so that we did not think it wise to break camp on Saturday as we intended. But we stayed right where we were until Monday. Cheyenne was almost the highest point of our journey thus far, being 5,118 feet above sea level. It is a pleasant city of about 11,000 inhabitants, looking like a city in the desert, for the high dry country all around it grows cactus mostly, and is inhabited chiefly by prairie dogs. We had a quiet Sunday. The rain had ceased and we went to church in the city both morning and evening.

Monday morning we resumed our journey, going 55 miles. We saw nothing but prairie dogs except passing trains the mile posts that told us what progress we were making and a section house about every 10 miles. It was up hill for the first 10 miles and then we began to go down. We camped at night on the edge of a cactus belt in a most unpromising looking place. Nevertheless we were comfortable and ready to start again in good season on Tuesday morning.

A few miles brought us to an irrigated country and "settlement" and the contrast was wonderful. Monday we saw nothing growing but very scant brown grass and cactus. Tuesday the green fields were on every side of us and every other house stood in a grove of trees.

Land is worth $100 an acre on some of these farms. There was one drawback, however everything was under fence and the lanes were often occupied with a ditch on one side and very poor camping places. We managed to find an open piece of dry land for Wednesday night.

A few of the poorest cattle we have seen since we left home seemed to be dependent on it for a living and I think the ponies would have soon been poor if they had depended on such feed long.

We passed through Greeley about 3 P. M. and met there Mr. Davenport a former resident of Glen. He hospitably urged us to stop at their home 2 1/2 miles from town but we thought we must get farther than that before night overtook us.

Wednesday brought us within 10 miles of Denver and this time we had to buy the ponies alfalfa and get permission to pitch the tent in a man's yard. Thursday morning we drove into the city, left Mrs. Ray at the depot where she was to meet Mr. Ray and made our way to the house of Mr. Rice's niece, Mrs. Brigham, with whom we are to spend a few days.

We wondered a little how the ponies would feel about city sights and sounds, as we had to pass through some pretty busy streets to find the depot. But they met streetcars, bicycles, and automobiles with composure and we are more than ever convinced that they are treasures.

We are having a pleasant time with our friends here. The fourth member in our party Mr. Rice's Omaha niece has been here a week, and we will be ready to start on early next week, when we will doubtless have further experiences to relate.

Emma L. Rice.

BREEZES FROM CENTRAL CITY.

Rev. J. B. Warren made our home and quarters during his visit.

"Grandpa Halling's war" came in time to take in the State S. S. Convention and visited with us several days, when was a great pleasure to us.

Mother and brother are in Iowa visiting. "When the cat is away the mice will play," and as we have but work to do, here goes if this is not written in proper style please remember that we are beginners.

The State S. S. Convention which was held in the S. E. church of this city was a grand success. There were 226 delegates who registered, and among them all, we could find none from Sioux Co. There were very good speakers at the convention the instructor in the Primary was especially good.

The year this year is generally good, the wheat very good and the farmers are very busy harvesting, but there is a much-improved weather that they are afraid the grain will spoil in the shock, and if the weather should continue so a few more days, some that is now standing, will fail.

"The Mick"

The 4th of July has come and gone, and everybody in our quiet little town have got down to business again. The day was enjoyed by all that were present and that was a large crowd. Some of our citizens from the country showed great patriotism in driving in through the rain that they might participate in the pleasures of the day. A good number were in from Pleasant, Ridge and Manville, Wyoming.

In the morning the crowd marched to the court house and there the declaration of independence was read and songs sung. A parade was furnished by the orchestra. In the afternoon the races took place, and below are the names of the winners.

1st. Peter Haeckmann.

- 2nd. Archie Davis.

The score in the ball game was 6 to 18 in favor of Harrison.

The dance began about 2:30, and the floor had no rest until the next day about 12 o'clock. The Hall had about as many occupants as it could hold during the night and everybody had a hard time keeping off of everybody's feet. The music was excellent and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves. About 2 o'clock in the morning there was a small row, but nobody was dangerously hurt. In the morning the Manville people learned that the train was 3 hours late, and so they decided to spend their time in dancing until noon. Their music was produced by the organ and harmonica. After noon they departed for Manville.

The same Old Story.

J. A. Kelly relates an experience some time ago that which has happened very near to him in the United States and has been told and retold by thousands of others. He says: "Last summer I had an attack of dysentery and purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used according to directions and with entirely satisfactory results. The trouble was controlled much quicker than former attacks when I used other remedies." Mr. Kelly is a well known citizen of Henderson, N. C. For sale by J. E. Phinney.
