

CONGRESSMAN ALDRICH ENDORSES THE TONIC, PERUNA

Says: "It Will Build Up a Depleted System Rapidly."

Hon. W. F. Aldrich, Congressman from Alabama, writes from Washington, D. C.:

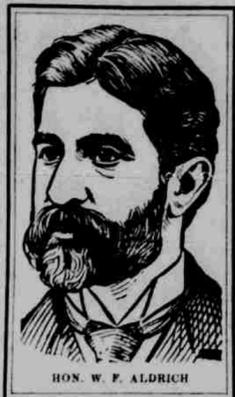

"This is to certify that Peruna, manufactured by The Peruna Medicine Co. of Columbus, O., has been used in my family with success. It is a fine tonic and will build up a depleted system rapidly. I can recommend it to those who need a safe vegetable remedy for debility."—W. F. Aldrich.

H. S. Emory, Vice Chancellor and Master of Arms, K. P.'s, of Omaha, Neb., writes from 213 North Sixteenth street, the following words of praise for Peruna as a tonic. He says:

Catarrh of Stomach.
"It is with pleasure I recommend Peruna as a tonic of unusual merit. A large number of prominent members of the different Orders with which I have been connected have been cured by the use of Peruna of cases of catarrh of the stomach and head; also in kidney complaint and weakness of the pelvic organs."

"It tones up the system, aids digestion, induces sleep, and is well worthy the confidence of sufferers from the above complaints."—H. S. Emory.

Nervous Debility.
Everyone who is in the least degree subject to nervousness, sleeplessness, prostration, mental fatigue or nervous debility in any form, finds the best remedy of June, July and August very hard to bear, if not dangerous.

HON. W. F. ALDRICH

The only safe course to take is to keep the blood pure, digestion good, and sleep regular. No remedy equals in all respects, Peruna for these purposes. If the system is run down and weakened by catarrh, Peruna renovates and rejuvenates the nerves and brain. A book on the catarrhal diseases of summer will be mailed to any address, upon request, by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio. The above testimonials are only two of 50,000 letters received touching the merits of Peruna as a catarrhal tonic. No more useful remedy to tone up the system has ever been devised by the medical profession.

FARM AND GARDEN

Circular Form of Silo.
The consensus of opinion of those who have studied the silo problem indicates that the circular form is preferable. There are, however, many square and rectangular silos in successful operation. Especially is this the case with those having rounded corners. Where great strength and large capacity are demanded the frame circular silo will best meet the requirements. This form of silo can be made quite durable by plastering the inside with cement. The circular stave silo, owing to its simplicity and economical construction, seems to fully meet the requirements of the farmer. With the form of silo properly erected the waste of silage is reduced to the minimum.

Hoops for the silo can be made of any suitable material, such as half-inch, seven-sixteenths inch or five-eighths inch round iron, one-eighth inch flat iron two inches wide or wire. The woven wire fence hoop is often used since it is regarded as being very economical. Doors may be simply sawed out, or made continuous from the bottom to the top of the silo. The ly manage the saw. The post, as shown in the cut, should be about eight feet high to admit of having a pendent sufficiently long to give the required length of stroke. The weight on the outer pendent should be just sufficient to prevent the saw from riding. The spring from main post to the saw should be strong enough to help the Sawyer on the return stroke. A stout cord running over a pulley with a weight attached may take the place of the spring. A stiff wire with a hook in the lower end answers very well in place of the wooden pendent shown in the cut. When it is adjusted just right the walking beam will see-saw easily as it follows the motion of the saw.—John Jackson, in Agricultural Epitome.

Aids to Whitewashing.
The use of the fruit-spraying pump makes easy the task of whitewashing stables, henhouses and cellars, and it is much more effectual than the use of the brush, because by making the stream a little larger and more forcible, which most spraying nozzles admit of, a stream can be sent into cracks and crevices where the brush would not reach. It may not prove as penetrating or as powerful a disinfectant as the gas from burning sulphur and charcoal, but it takes next rank, and can be used where it might not be well to use the sulphuric acid gas, as in cellars under living rooms. If it is to be used as a disinfectant, or as an insect destroyer, the addition of a little carbolic acid or a little dissolved copperas to the whitewash may be an advantage, and we prefer the latter, at least in cow stables, because it emits no offensive odor. Let the lime be thoroughly shaken, and strained through a cloth, so that it may be thin enough to work well in the nozzle. And sides, ceilings, corners and floors can be well sprayed in one-fourth the time needed for the use of the brush. Applied during the hot weather, it does not take long to dry, and two coats can easily be given if one does not look thick enough when dried.—New England Homestead.

CIRCULAR SILO.

sawed out doors may be ranged one above the other, with a stationary ladder placed alongside running to the top of the silo, as shown in the cut. When the silo is built on the outside of the barn, a roof is needed. This may be simply a shed roof constructed with plank, or a neat, inexpensive shingle roof, as shown in the cut.

A Suitable Dust Bath.

All chickens seem to thoroughly enjoy a dust bath, and its use undoubtedly is a benefit to their plumage, besides ridding them of lice. If the plumage is to be kept clean and bright, especially on birds intended for exhibition purposes or of white varieties, it is essential that the dusting place be kept absolutely dry, as otherwise it will soil the plumage and the fine bird on which you may pride yourself will look very dingy.

The roofed box in the sketch will give an idea of how birds may be provided with a dry dust bath in nearly all kinds of weather. Cloths may be tacked across the top ends, with hooks at bottom for stormy weather, if the box is in a field. Some poultry raisers allow their fowls the liberty of the sheds where the farm machinery is housed and here they get a fine dusting in all sorts of weather, but if the birds roost on them it does not improve their looks nor the working of the farm implements. Better keep them out, and assign them quarters more fitting. The most of cleaning machinery of hen nature on some farms would build suitable abodes for the hens and make them a profitable part of the farm.—John G. Knott, in Farm and Home.

To Make Hens Lay.

When hens do not lay in summer, the fault may be due to overfeeding, owing to the abundance of insects, grass and weeds on the range or pasture. It is better to send such hens to market if they are over two years old, and depend upon the early hatched pullets as winter layers. All pullets that are to be retained should be kept in good growing condition, not fat, by allowing a variety of food, meat being much better than corn or wheat for all kinds of young poultry.

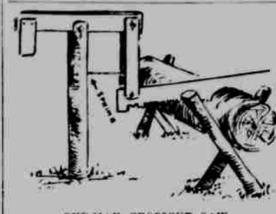

Feeding Grain to Steers.

Feeding grain to steers on grass is justified when pastures are short and where these cannot be supplemented with some kind of fodder. Where steers are partly warmed up with grain before being turned to grass it may prove an excellent practice to continue feeding them about one peck per day. By following this practice the animals may be kept going from the first day. Such animals may be marketed earlier than those that are grazed alone and invariably will command a little higher price. It is generally advisable to grind corn for grass fed steers. Animals on grass alone frequently lose weight during the first weeks after being turned out, so that the time required to make this up is entirely lost. When grain is fed it is a good plan to feed a little roughage such as timothy or clover hay, during the first week after turning to grass in order to prevent scouring.—Iowa Homestead.

A One-Man Saw.

A cross-cut saw will get through a great deal more wood with a given amount of muscle than any other hand device. With this rocking walking beam attachment and its weighted and swinging pendulums, one man can easily manage the saw. The post, as shown in the cut, should be about eight feet high to admit of having a pendent sufficiently long to give the required length of stroke. The weight on the outer pendent should be just sufficient to prevent the saw from riding. The spring from main post to the saw should be strong enough to help the Sawyer on the return stroke. A stout cord running over a pulley with a weight attached may take the place of the spring. A stiff wire with a hook in the lower end answers very well in place of the wooden pendent shown in the cut. When it is adjusted just right the walking beam will see-saw easily as it follows the motion of the saw.—John Jackson, in Agricultural Epitome.

Some Superstitions.

While searching for some small coin a woman customer in a department store dropped her pocket book on the floor. A polite man sprang to the rescue, and had his fingers in it when she exclaimed: "No, no, no! Don't touch it! Let me pick it up!" Having recovered it, she spat in it for luck. When such a woman drops a comb she touches it with her foot before picking it up; that is to stave off disappointment. When the hem of her skirt is accidentally turned up she spits on it, which insures a new dress. Any sort of garment which happens to put on wrong side outward means good luck. When a knife falls on the floor a man is coming to the house, and when a fork, a woman will call. —"Tip" in New York Press.

New York City, Aug. 18th.—Mr. Charles Back, of 64 Rue de la Victorie, Paris, France, relates a most interesting experience:

"Ever since I was about three years of age I have suffered severely with Kidney Disease.

"Last year I spent some time at the baths at Carlsbad (Bohemia), but I came back after five weeks' treatment with a severe pain still in my kidneys.

"My doctors in Paris and Hamburg could do nothing for me.

"I was obliged to start from Paris to Montreal, Canada, and when I arrived in the Canadian city I was half dead.

"I read an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills in a newspaper there and began to use this remedy, and after two days' treatment I felt that my pains were leaving me, and in a week I had no pains at all.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wonderful remedy in the world. I keep them always with me for I believe I could not live without them."
