

"I SUFFERED TERRIBLY WITH FEMALE WEAKNESS;"

SAYS MRS. ESTHER M. MILNER.

"I had the headache continually—Could Not Do My Work—Peruna Cured."

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, DeGraff, Ohio, writes: "I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continually. I was not able to do my housework for my husband and myself. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine and have recommended it to my friends with best results."
—Mrs. E. M. Milner.

Miss Mamie Groth, Plattville, Wis., writes: "Accept a grateful girl's thanks for the wonderful help I have received through the use of Peruna. Although I looked well and strong I have for several years suffered with frequent backache and would for several days have splitting headaches. I did not wish to fill my system with poisonous drugs, and so when several of my friends advised me to take Peruna, I asked my physician what he thought of it. He recommended it and so I took it and am entirely without pain of any kind now."

SOME OF THE VERY LATEST IDEAS IN DRESS.

Smooth Surfacted Cloths Are Giving Way to Rough Weaves, Like Zibelines and Astrakans—Trimming that Will Be Used with Them.

New York correspondence:

Next winter, apparently, the reign of smooth surfaced cloths will be over. It seems hard to believe, for the better examples of these weaves have been things of beauty, aside from tests of wear, from which they came off well, as a rule. But handsome as these goods are in the piece, and nicely as they make up, the signal has been given for a change, and already the better grades of fall woollens are rough faced, zibeline and astrakan effects abounding. Some of these woolly goods make fine street suits, and there is no doubt but that they are to be the stylish standard. In the methods of making no surprising change is in various designs and all shades will be worn. White cloth or heavy white silk embroidered in dots or French knots will trim many gowns.

Hints of forthcoming wraps concern garments all the way from airy accessories for early fall, to the heaviest furs for midwinter. A beautiful model fur coat is much like certain of the soft summer cloaks half length, loose, with huge flowing sleeves and lace underleaves. For these sleeves with winter wear there will be heavy gloves with handsomely embroidered long gauntlets. This is an extreme fashion, but for women who can afford them, loose flowing fur cloaks following the lines of summer wraps will be fashionable. In nearly all materials the loose cloak will have the lead, and the full sleeves when not flowing will be gathered into a cuff with a broad opening. The cape collar is a noticeable feature of the newer coats and cloaks, and much of the dressiness of the garment will depend upon the skill with which this collar is shaped and fitted. It must set snugly over the shoulders, give a long, sloping effect and come well down over the arm, almost to the elbow. A standing collar may be worn or not.

With all the offerings of long coats, short jackets still will have standing, and Louis coats will be numerous and fine. The severe model in black cloth with buttons and chains of gold and enamel will delight the woman with a figure to do such a garment justice. Among the shorter coats for fall are interesting novelties that should stand up successfully against almost any vogue for longer wraps. Two of these appear in the second pictures. One was black pearl de soie and cream lace, with pleated sleeves and cape col-apparent, though less trimming is used than was put on the smoother stuffs. The gown of the initial picture, and the second models of the larger pictures were of this grade of goods. In the first were delicate gray zibeline and black silk braid in bands and medallions. In the second were dark blue camel-hair cloth and white silk facing and cord ornaments for the cape collar. Elephant gray zibeline was the fabric of the third gown, oriental embroidery and red velvet ribbon trimming it. In most model gowns of rough materials there is more of novelty in the trimming than in the cut. Some coarse contrasts in the embellishments are a bit staggering, while the hairy surfaces in some cases receive adornment of sorts to

lar. The other was tan cloth and Persian embroidery, with lace sleeve puffs. Altogether, there is an outlook of much variety in wraps, with a good chance for everyone to be suited if only the price makers are kind. The use of several chiffon veilings in varying tints under a sheer fabric is more and more followed for evening gowns, though it needs an artist to give just the right touch. Shot voile or voile de soie over a different color also makes a lovely color harmony. Black mousseline scattered over with faint shadowy flowers makes a charming gown for evening wear. One handsome gown seen had a foundation of lining of white silk, veiled first by pale yellow chiffon, then by pale which heretofore they have been strangers. Braids and hand embroidery are to be the trimmings most in vogue, but generally the braid or embroidery is applied, not to the material of the gown, but to some other stuff in contrasting color used in medallion effect. Touches of gold are appearing, and silver is much used, not only on heavy materials, but on the thinnest tissues. Trailing embroideries of silver upon white chiffon or gauze are considered very fashionable. Russian and Chinese embroideries in brilliant colorings are to give striking touches on dark wool gowns. They also look well on a brownish gray that is to be fashionable this fall. Worked eyelot holes are much in evidence on many new wool gowns, and one white cloth model showed all skirt seams, sleeve seams and some bodice seams laced throughout their length with silk cord run through worked eyelets. Cording pink chiffon and finally by the black mousseline, which was flowered with loosely bunched yellowish pink roses. The result was particularly fine around the foot of the gown where the soft-bu'ded chiffons flared out in many little frills. Another gown of this character was the original of the artist's right-hand full-length figure in the second picture. Here black silk mousseline was over rose pink chiffon and white silk. The elaborate trimming consisted of ivory white and gold lace and pink velvet ribbon. Lace is much favored as dress trimming, and lace gowns will be in the list of fall and winter fancies. A characteristic lace-trimmed fall gown was put at the left of the second picture, and was wedge-wood blue veiling and cream lace. Opposite this in the same picture is a gown of black chantilly, a very stylish lace for gowns, with finish of emerald green velvet.

UNSPOILED BY EDUCATION.

"I was at a luncheon the other day," said a North side woman, "where the hostess was a graduate of Smith college, three of the graduates were graduates of Wellesley, two went through Vassar, two had been Bryn Mawr girls and the other ladies present were graduates of Northwestern, the University of Chicago, and Wells respectively." "Well," one of her hearers said, "it must have been very interesting. How I wish I could have been there. What did you talk about?" "Let me see. Oh, yes; about how hard it is to keep help."—Chicago Record-Herald.

OF UNTOLD VALUE.

The information contained in this statement is valuable. The hale, hearty, strong can afford to toss this paper to one side impatiently when they read the following, but any sufferer in this vicinity who has suffered hours of torture caused by kidney complaint will stand in his own light if he does not follow the valuable advice offered here.

Mr. Fred Koletzke, dealer in musical instruments and mouldings of 733 College avenue, Appleton, Wis., says: "Louis Holzer, shoemaker at Heckert's store, and Mr. Tony Van Ouyen, the liverman, both friends of mine, induced me to use Doan's Kidney Pills. They had tried them and pronounced them up to their representations. I strained my back six years ago lifting a piano. It must have injured my kidneys, for trouble with these organs and rheumatism followed. I was lame and ached all over for several months. Then, in a measure, it ceased. A recurrence took place and I was confined to my bed for ten weeks. During the time I was attended by doctors and took all kinds of medicine, but grew worse instead of better. The pain in my back was excruciating, the kidney secretions were dark and thick. Part of my body bloated and other parts were skin and bone. I could scarcely walk from one room to another; could not eat and almost came to the conclusion that I was done for. Acting on the advice of my friends, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Woolz Bros.' drug store and took four boxes. They cured me."

A free trial of Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that cured Mr. Koletzke, can be had by writing the proprietors, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Cut this advertisement out and name paper.

Embossing is done on a press, and comes, therefore, under the heading of press work, although the process is a little different. Embossing is done by means of two dies, the male and the female, generally the hardest of electrotyping metal, zinc, copper, brass or steel, the male generally of some composition, made to come under the paper and press it up into the female die and raise the design above the surface of the paper. The cost of embossing, as compared with ordinary presswork, is about as two to one. At one time it was very popular for catalogue covers, but became so common that lately it has gone somewhat out of fashion.

What an Almanac Did.—Mrs. Matthews, Ark., Aug. 25th.—Mrs. Lee S. Sanders, of this place, tells how an almanac saved her life.

"I have been troubled a great deal with my kidneys all my life and was constantly growing worse."

"I chanced to get a copy of Dodd's Almanac for 1902 and in it read some stories of how Dodd's Kidney Pills had cured many very bad cases of Kidney Trouble."

"My husband bought a box and I began to use them, and in a short time we were surprised and delighted at the wonderful improvement in my case."

"I am now as well as anybody and I can not say too much for Dodd's Kidney Pills. It was a lucky day for me when I picked up that almanac."

"I believe Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure anyone who suffers with Kidney Trouble."
