CHANGES IN S. SCHOOLS.

LINCOLN, Aug. 19.—(Special.)—Closer organization of city schools, an increase in the average salary paid to the teachers of both rural and city schools and a decrease in the number of school buildings through consolidation are among the changes predicted by State Superintendent Fowler to take place in the school conditions of Nebraska during the remainder of the decade. Mr. Fowler is just completing a campaign with the teachers' institutes throughout the state. He has visited upward of half of the counties, and his predictions are based largely upon his own observation of actual conditions. "I feel safe in predicting a much closer organization of the city schools," said Mr. Fowler. "I believe all the city superintendents and principals will be required by law to make as complete reports and to furnish as accurate statistics as the county superintendents now are, and that their work will be done more systematically. There will be a revision of the method of assessment and levying of taxes before 1910 and a consequent reduction of the minimum levy. Let us hope that the number of men teachers employed, which decreased 30 per cent during the past decade, will increase, while the number of women teachers, which decreased only about 4 per cent, will remain stationary. In this connection I would call attention to the fact that the average monthly wages of men during the ten years increased $3.25, while that of the women decreased $1.02. In both there should and must be a material increase if we wish to keep in the profession the better qualified persons.

Changes in the Schools.

"I believe that in 1910 the enrollment will be a larger percentage of the school population than in 1900, but what is of vastly more importance, the average daily attendance will be a much larger per cent of the enrollment and of the school census than in 1900. The number of sod and log school buildings in the state will rapidly decrease and the number of frame school buildings will slightly decrease, while the number of brick buildings will increase. During the next ten years there will be a decrease in the total number of school buildings in the state of Nebraska through the consolidation of rural school districts. There will be a material increase in the length of the term in many school districts of the state; and let us hope that in 1910 our county Superintendents will average at least $1,000 a year each. Our state teachers' association, our great university and our state normal school will increase their enrollment materially. There will then be three state normal schools. In 1910 in many of the rural portions of the state the farmers' children will have the same advantages of education in a well arranged, well organized, well graded school that the village and city pupils now enjoy.

The above was clipped from the Omaha Bee, and contains thoughts worthy of consideration by men of all political faiths. In our two years work with Mr. Fowler we have found him one of the most progressive and aggressive educational men in the state while it is true he is not of our political belief, but I feel sure Mr. Fowler is so interested in the building up of schools of Nebraska, that he has little time to think of politics, and that should be the aim of every one that represents educational interests, let it be county or state, we are sure Mr. Fowler has done as much for the common schools of Nebraska as any state Superintendent has done in the same time, and from this time forth his work will show more progress for the educational work of the state is a large thing, and it takes about 2 years to get the reins properly in the hand, and if Mr. Fowler is returned or reelected this fall to the office which he now fills so
