Danger of Colds and Grip.
The greatest danger from colds and grip is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. It will cure an attack of the grip in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all Druggists.

Johnnie, being asked by the teacher to write the figure nine on the blackboard, replied that he did not know how.

"Well," she said, "write the figure six upside down and you will have the figure nine."
The next day his grandpa asked him, "How old are you?"

Revenge is Sweet.
James, 4 years old, has been naughty to the point of evoking a whipping from his long-suffering mother, and all day long a desire for revenge rankled in his little bosom.
At length bedtime came, and kneeling before her, he implored a blessing for each member of the family individually, she alone being conspicuous by her absence. Then, rising from his devout posture, the little suppliant fixed a keenly triumphant look upon her face, saying, as he turned to climb into bed:
"Is 'pose you noticed you wasn't in it."—Harper's Magazine.
The entertainment given at Andrews last Friday evening was a decided success. The weather was very nice and there was a large crowd in attendance. The most of the young people of Harrison were there, and so Harrison was well represented. The exercises were well rendered by the scholars, and no doubt they had to do considerable practicing. It was a pleasure to hear them, after the school exercises, a number of selections were spoken by the older ones.
After the exercises some of the spectators returned to their homes, but some of them spent the night in the city of Andrews and returned home the next day, and some did not return for four or five days.—don't know whether they got lost, and wandered around on the streets or fell in love with her beautiful scenery; probably they spent their time in boat-riding on White river, which flows through the city, well we don't begrudge their pleasure for we are glad we got there and out again without calling for a guide, but we are longing for the time to come when we can have the pleasure of listening to the scholars of Andrews, as they render another programme as well.

FOR SALE.

Owing to the clemency of the weather there was not a very large crowd at the pie social Monday evening, but all those who attended had all the pie they could eat, and a jolly good time. Early in the evening it began to rain, but about the time the social was to be held it had ceased, but did not look very favorable, and the Leaguers were quite a while deciding whether to hold it or not, but finally decided to have it and set the pie solicitors to gathering the pies, and it wasn't very long until they were being devoured. While the pies were passing away the rain started to pour down again, and the crowd tarried for quite a while expecting to see it stop, but they finally had to walk home through the rain, and when morning came behold the rain had turned to snow.

Poem.
To Zekiel.
We read in the Press-Journal this evening You meditate moving to town, And may with it's sunshine and blossoms Will find you there settled down.

There are many who've moved to the city

Who sigh for the freedom they've lost,
Who long for the broad stretch of prairie again
And wish they had counted the cost.
Your regrets seem all for the bird's songs
And the flowers that bloom by the way
Have you none for the neighbors you're leaving
Who have brightened the years of your stay?
You think they are glad and won't miss you
A mistaken idea we feel,
Let me call to your memory this maxim
It's a poor spoke not missed from the wheel
The city may have it's attractions
To one who for pleasure would seek,
Where Leagues, Lodges, and Banquets
Fill up every night in the week.
Where each man's a Knight or Woodman
A Mason or some other dodge,
Where money, that mighty ruling power
Will admit you into each Lodge.
We wonder what spirit has moved you
Away from Wyoming to stray,
With it's ermines, gold mines, and rye fields
And come to Sioux county to stay.
We shall miss all those wondrous stories
That so freely have flowed from your pen,
And will find ourselves searching the columns
Vainly hoping to read them again.
The larks and the sweet pea tangles
Are beautiful in their place,
But are trifles when weighed in the balance
With the light of a neighborly face.
So keep a green spot in your memory
For the people that around you do dwell,
Some time you may wish to move back there
For the future no mortal can tell.

SEVERE ATTACK OF GRIP.
Cured by One Bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
"When I had an attack of the grip last winter (the second one) I actually cured myself with one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Frank W. Perry, Editor of the Enterprise, at Shortsville, N. Y. "This is the honest truth. I at times kept from coughing myself to pieces by taking a teaspoonful of this remedy, and when the coughing spell would come on at night I would take a dose and it seemed that in the briefest interval the cough would pass off and I would go to sleep perfectly free from cough and its accompanying pains. To say that the remedy acted as a most agreeable surprise is putting it very mildly. I had no idea that it would or could knock out the grip, simply because I had never tried it for such a purpose, but it did, and it seemed with the second attack of coughing the remedy caused it to not only be of less duration, but the pains were far less severe, and I had not used the contents of one bottle before Mr. Grip had bid me adieu." For sale by all Druggists.

The programme given here April 24th, was a success. The house was crowded and hardly enough room to accommodate all present. The children rendered their parts beautifully, and all present were delighted, and thanked the teacher and pupils many times for the treat. We hope Andrews will keep up the reputation for good programmes always.

The school work is over, summer is near; Oh, let us remember the lessons so dear. Enjoy this vacation all you can and get refreshed so you can enter into your school next year with renewed strength and vigor. Mrs. S. C. D. Bassett visited our school last Wednesday and reported the discipline good and instruction the best. We felt complimented for writing in the register "first class school." This was her fifth visit to our school. She gave us a very interesting and profitable talk. Mrs. Bassett said in part, she had seen an item in a paper, of a colloquy between a distiller and a saloon keeper as follows: They were walking through a cemetery and reading the inscriptions on the grave stones, they recognized there Drinking Dan, here Tippling Tim, and Whistling Whiskey Will and other drunkards. The saloon keeper was agitated and exclaimed that if the customers died so rapidly their business would soon be ruined. The distiller pointed to the school yard near by where rosy cheeked frolicking boys and girls were playing and said, "As long as we can get the boys to patronize us we will keep up our business."
They must have the boys at any cost. No matter about praying, broken hearted mother's and father's counsel. No wonder they hold out the allurements of music and dancing, and oppose temperance teaching in the schools.
She emphasized the importance of temperance instruction in the schools. At the close Mrs. Bassett made the point that if all the boys and girls of our land would sign the pledge and keep it, the saloons would die for want of patronage when the present generation of drunkards were gone.

have the pleasure of making acquaintances which perhaps is far better, but I think any one is foolish to exchange the free air of the country for the city, but every one has their own opinion.
Rev. Horton was kind enough to come out and deliver to us a very nice sermon Sunday, we all appreciated it so much. The school house was filled, we were glad to welcome the visitors who came also. There were Mrs. Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Burke and four little ones, Mr. and Mrs. Williams and family of Harrison, Miss Maggie, John, and Joe Schaefer of Bodarc, we hope they will all come again, our S. S. will beat 2 o'clock P. M. every Sunday and church every two weeks at 8 o'clock P. M. every one invited. The next preaching then will be: remember all, on May 10th don't fail to come and hear a good sermon, it will do you good.
Mr. John Plunkett and sons Tom and John and Marcus Valdez were branding horses and cattle Sunday, and prevented them from attending church. Now there is some more of your industrious workers in this fashion of working on Sunday is a very foolish habit and a very useless one. I know if you would stop to think you could have done what you lay off for Sunday just as well through the week.
These are only a few of the many who have just as bad, but none so easy reminded I don't believe, and I don't believe any one ever gained anything by Sunday work. I speak for experience which some times is a very dear lesson. Let no one be offended at this, but profit by it as that is the way it is intended for you.
