

A Thirteen-Year-Old Child Paralyzed.

It Was Caused By a Nervous Affection, and Rendered One Arm Lifeless.

(From the Times, Paia, Kansas.)
A happy family is that of Mr. James McKinney, of Hillsdale, Kansas, on whom a Times reporter recently called. His business with the people was to learn the facts for his paper of the cure of their 13-year-old daughter from a case of nervous prostration, and the facts were learned from Mrs. McKinney herself, who quickly told the following story:

"The first perceptible result of her extreme nervousness was apparent in a halting step of the child in her right limb," said the mother, "and a physician was called in to attend her. No apparent change coming, another doctor was called to attend her. She continued to grow worse, although we thought the doctors helped her, until she lost the use entirely of her right arm, which hung listless, and apparently lifeless by her side."

"The physicians finally told us," continued Mrs. McKinney, "that Mary would outgrow it in time, but by accident my husband picked up a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, that we concluded to try them. Mr. McKinney procured a box at Grimes' drug store in Paia, and we began by giving Mary a half pill at a time, and gradually increasing to one pill at a time, and before we had used one box we could see they were doing her good. This was one year ago. She had been suffering at that time for four years, under the doctors, and we were so encouraged over the good effects of the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, that we continued to use them, and the child started to school again and has been able to attend school ever since, gradually getting stronger and in better health all the time as you now see her, and we do not notice the old trouble any more."

"Yes, we are always ready and willing to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and do so all the time to our friends," replied Mrs. McKinney to our question; and continuing she said: "We do not know what the doctors called Mary's affliction, but we took it to be something like paralysis or St. Vitus' dance, and we became very much alarmed about her."

"Our local physician," she says, "now tells us that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a good thing as we could use; and while Mary is apparently well, she has occasional attacks of nervous headache, and then she says: 'Ma'ma, I must take another Pink Pill, so you see she has great faith in them, but does not like to have us talk about her late affliction.'"

Mr. McKinney is as much or more enthusiastic over the great benefit done his daughter through the use of these pills. He said: "Nothing too good can be said by me of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—they are a great medicine."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, over-work or excesses of whatever nature.

Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

A CHRISTMAS SISTER.

OUR great, strong boys, and not even one little girl!" exclaimed Aunt Becky Olmstead, who had come to spend a month with her favorite nephew's family.

"I had a little daughter—our first child—but she died before our eldest boy was born," said the mother of the "four great, strong boys" with a sigh. "She was a lovely child, and the most beautiful one I ever saw. I'll show you her picture, Aunt Becky."

She arose, and opening a small cabinet, brought forth a water-color painting of a year-old baby, whose sunny, laughing face captivated Aunt Becky at once. Short golden ringlets crowned the little head; the smiling face was dimpled and fair; the laughing eyes were blue as violets.

"The darling baby!" exclaimed Aunt Becky admiringly. "I'm thinking the Lord knew she was too beautiful for this world, and she's better off where she is—the sweet pet. But all the same it would be nice if there was one little girl in your home. You have fine boys, Emily. I never saw better behaved ones, even if they are full of fun and noise from morning until night; and I'm sure I wouldn't have them otherwise. I never could bear girl boys—never. But I hope the Lord will send them a sister—I do so."

Emily Olmstead laughed softly. "No," said she, "I don't think he will. I did hope so, but I have given up that thought. Bertie will be ten years old on Christmas Day, and he is the youngest."

About a month later, one bitterly cold December day, Aunt Becky was making a tour of the slums—that is, she was visiting a neighborhood from which had come to her tales of sorrow and suffering.

"If Jesus had been here he'd have gone to see the poor souls," she said to herself, "and that's enough to send me."

So she went—her heart full, her hands full, her purse full, to succor and to save. She did not return to lunch, finding too much to do for others to think of herself.

I could not tell you of all her loving ministrations that day of days, but she went about doing good. It mattered not to Aunt Becky that Christmas was near at hand, and that she had intended looking into the wonderful shop windows that very day. In fact, she forgot herself entirely while working for her Master. He had given his life for her, so she gave him willing service.

She led a poor "lost" girl to the Rock, Christ Jesus. She smoothed the dying pillow of an aged man, to whom she had pointed the Way, the Truth, and the Life. She fed the starving children of a miserable drunkard, and the poor little things clung to her as if they could never let her go.

But these were only a few of her loving ministrations "in His name" that golden day. Emily Olmstead had begun to worry about Aunt Becky as the day—the short winter's day—was about closing. The three sturdy boys had just gone to a Christmas Eve party, and Richard Olmstead had come home to the six-o'clock dinner when Aunt Becky arrived on the scene. In her arms something like a ragman's treasures, but it squirmed.

Aunt Becky sank into a chair, bundle and all.

"I'm about tuckered out," she said with a faint smile; "but I'm happy. Here, Emily and Dick," addressing her nephew and his wife, as she gently unhurled the bundle, "the Lord has sent you another little girl. So, after all, the blessed boys will have a sister."

A tiny, frail little human blossom stood revealed to the astonished eyes of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Olmstead. She was thin and pale, with big brown eyes and short, wavy hair of reddish brown. She was two years old, but no larger than a healthy child of a year. Neglect was written all over her, from her heavy, matted hair to her poorly clad feet. She looked at Mr. and Mrs. Olmstead in a frightened way, who, in their turn, looked at her, one might say, in the same way. Surprise kept them silent. They wondered if Aunt Becky had "gone crazy."

"Why don't you speak?" asked the kind old lady. "Will you accept her, this child, from the Lord? He sent her by me. I could not leave her there all alone—poor baby!"

Richard Olmstead still sat silent and undisturbed, but Emily found her voice.

"Did you really think, Aunt Becky, that we would take this baby?"

"Yes," was the quiet answer, "at least I hoped so."

"Where did you find her? Is she an orphan?"

"I found her in a dreary room all alone and crying from hunger. An overgrown, neglected girl looked after her out of pity, when she could; it was she who often compelled to leave the poor baby all alone. The father of this little one, so beautiful a little man, was killed by an accident. The mother died a month ago—died of a broken heart. She was a good woman—a Christian woman—trusting her Father in Heaven to the last. They told me there, over in the poverty-stricken place, that just before she died she prayed, 'O Lord, please find a home and a mother for my little one.'"

Emily knelt before Aunt Becky, and threw her arms around the little stranger, who responded by smiling into her face.

"Well, then," she said, amidst tears and smiles, "the Lord willing and Dick willing, the poor mother's prayer is answered to-night."

"Tis I, who led thy steps aright; 'Tis I, who gave thy blind eyes sight; 'Tis I, thy Lord, thy Life, thy Light; 'Tis I; be not afraid."

It was Christmas morning—a bright but bitterly cold morning. The Olmstead boys, however, did not care how cold it was. They were all out of bed at early dawn to see what Christmas had brought them. Bertie, aged ten, did not wait to dress, but ran down stairs in his night clothes to see what he could find. Fred, aged twelve, and Edgar, not quite fourteen, managed to get their clothes before following their younger brother; Fred, meanwhile, singing as he danced about in frantic efforts to "beat Ed."

The shouts of the three boys awoke the rest of the household, and Bertie found it necessary to run back to his room to dress.

The boys had been well remembered. They found everything they had wished for, from balls to boxing gloves; but there was one present swinging gracefully under the chandelier that made them open their eyes wide in astonishment. It was a doll—a lovely flaxen-haired doll—with a sweet baby face, and dressed in long lace-trimmed baby clothes.

"Well, I declare," shouted Fred; "that must be for Bertie. He's the youngest, so he's our baby, and Aunt Becky has bought him a doll baby. Ha! ha! ha!"

They all laughed, even Bertie, who of course did not believe what Fred had asserted, but thought that the doll was one of papa's "jokes."

The answer will be by initial unless some other means of identification is adopted by applicant. If you do not know the exact date or hour of birth send TWO two-cent stamps for special instructions. Every request for a horoscope will be answered in its turn. Several hundred have already been filed. Persons wishing private readings by mail, at once, must inclose TWELVE two-cent stamps. Address all letters to Prof. G. W. Cunningham, Dept. 4, 194 South Clinton street, Chicago, Ill. This week's horoscopes are as follows:

N. Y. Z. Crete, Neb.
You are a mixture of the signs Aries, which Mars rules, and Taurus, which Venus rules, and therefore Mars and Venus are your ruling planets. You are medium height or above; medium to light complexion; the eyes have a peculiar sparkle and sharp sight and are of a medium to light color. You are very active and energetic and quite ambitious to push business; yet, if this time is correct, you have no constitution that will allow you to carry out your ambitions, and your worst ailments will be in some way connected with your head. You have a great love for the beautiful in art and nature; you are possessed with a great ability to talk, write and work fine embroidery and paint; you have natural ability in some of the fine arts. However, only those that know you well will fully appreciate you, and the first half of life will be uphill work, the last half will be some better. Marriage is unfortunate for you.

"Flax," Smithboro, Ill.
Data proclaim you a mixture of the signs Libra, which Venus rules, and Scorpio, which Mars rules, and, therefore, Venus and Mars are your ruling planets. You are medium height; well-set figure; medium complexion; hazel eyes; hair was flaxen when young, but has been getting some darker as you have grown older. If you had been born a few minutes earlier there would be indications of a dimple in your chin. You are endowed with the indications of both the gentle, confiding, modest Venus; also the bold, aggressive, refractory, warlike Mars, and you will act in accordance with whichever one of these happens to be called forth. You are fond of anything that relates to chemistry and mystery; also the beautiful in art, such as music, painting, drawing, sketching, etc. You need some special instructions or you will get rid of all the money you can make and have nothing left to show for it. Marriage fortunate.

"Mrs. Helena," Cairo.
According to data, the sign Sagittarius, which Jupiter rules, was rising at your birth, and, therefore, Jupiter is your ruling planet or significator. You are medium height or above, with a well-set figure. The complexion very clear and healthy; the hair medium to light; eyes light; you are noted for being of a cheerful, happy disposition; you do not allow anything like the blues to come near you; you are also noted for being fully appreciated by all, and you can secure and hold a good position at any time you wish; you have had a very eventful life and have been a great traveler, and the last half of life has been the most fortunate; you can always command a good salary if you wish, and will make and handle large sums of money during your life, yet will meet with many losses. You are a great lover of horses. You have great ambition for a large business. You have a remarkably strong constitution.

Hein, Dubuque, Iowa.
You have the zodiacal sign Libra rising, and therefore Venus is your ruling planet. You are medium height or above; slender figure; medium to light complexion, hair and eyes. If born 1- or 2-minutes earlier you have Uranus also for ruling planet, and that would denote a little darker shade to the eyes. You are cheerful and happy most of the time, yet will be subject to short spells of the blues, and if anyone does you an injury you are not apt to forget it very soon; yet you will forgive them and be very just to them if you had any dealings with them, for you are a lover of justice, and have also a great admiration for the fine arts. You will have very strong intuitions at times, yet this will only be spasmodic in its actions. Marriage will be more than average fortunate for you.
