

Ringed Noises

Troubled for Years With Catarrh, but Now Entirely Cured.

"I was troubled for years with catarrh, which caused ringing noises in my ears and pains in the back of my head. I was advised to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did so and a few bottles entirely cured me."

HENRY MCKIRKBYER, Laporte, Iowa.
Hood's Sarsaparilla
Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier.
Hood's Pills cure indigestion, biliousness.

A Quick Dessert.

From the American Kitchen Magazine. When an emergency arises where a dessert must be prepared quickly, open a can of peaches, apricots, raspberries or any available fruit. Put it in a rather large kettle with a close fitting cover. While it is heating mix one pint of prepared flour with one beaten egg and one scant cupful of milk. Drop this like dumplings in a stew over the fruit, cover closely and steam from ten to fifteen minutes. Unless the fruit is juicy, there is danger that it will burn on the kettle while the dumplings are cooking. Serve the dumplings and fruit together, with sugar and cream or with a hard sauce.

A Valuable Franchise Secured.

The franchise of easy digestion—one of the most valuable in the field of medical science—can be secured by any person wise enough to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, either to suppress growing dyspepsia or to uphold it at maturity. Bilious, rheumatic and fever and ague sufferers, persons troubled with nervousness and the constipated, should also secure the health franchise by the same means.

"Say, Weary, there's a woman trying to get congress to pass a law forcing every man to marry." "I'll bet that's her only chance."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Beauty is Blood Deep.

Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without it. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic cleans your blood and keeps it clean by stirring up the lazy liver and driving all impurities from the body. Begin to-day to banish pimples, boils, blotches, blackheads, and that sickly bilious complexion by taking Cascarets—beauty for ten cents. All druggists, satisfaction guaranteed, 10c, 25c, 50c.

Ell: "How do you like the fit of my new jacket?" Hattie: "Fit! Why, it's more like a convulsion."—Tit-Bits.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

To quit tobacco easily and forever, be magnetic, full of life, nerve and vigor, take No-To-Bac, the wonder-worker, that makes weak men strong. All druggists, 50c or $1. Cure guaranteed. Booklet and sample free. Address: Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

A RAMBLE IN THE PAST

By Dorothy Tanner.
LONDON is crowded with history. I have taken a small bit of territory and dipped lightly into its past, just to show how interest gathers at every turn.

We will start from Whitehall, as it is near Westminster, and we shall feel at home.

Going back to the days when Cardinal Wolsey was enjoying pomp and pride, we may array ourselves in purple and fine linen and join the gay life at Whitehall, then called York Palace. Later, with the Tudors, let us attend banquet and ball. Never was one place the scene of greater festivity for a long period.

The scene shifts, and we see an anxious, excited throng awaiting the execution of Charles I. There in front of the banqueting house is the very spot where the scaffold stood.

Then followed days of sombre quietness in the palace with the Cromwells, only to have festivities doubly renewed with the restoration.

Many were the plans for rebuilding Whitehall, but none were completed except the plan for the banqueting house. This building is the link between past and present. Since the time of George I. it has been used as a chapel and there divine service is held every Sunday.

Passing along the historic street of Whitehall, where we now find the Horse Guards, government offices and other important buildings, we reach Charing Cross, and memory takes a backward look. Edward I. is erecting crosses to the memory of Queen Eleanor. Here stands one, and from it the place derives its name.

During the Reformation the cross was destroyed and a statue of Charles I. took its place. Before Tyburn became popular as a place of execution, Charing Cross was the scene of such horrors.

About Charing Cross are many small streets of interest—Hartshorn Lane, where Ben Jonson passed the first few years of his life, and St. Martin's Court, where he was sent to school, are among the number.

As we enter the Strand let us remember that in the York and Lancaster period this was open country, with a few castles along the river bank. In the time of Henry VII. the castles were exchanged for more peaceful mansions, and when Edward VI. ruled, the number of mansions had increased on the south side, while a row of houses made great pretensions on the north. A few years later the Strand becomes a fashionable street where the ladies drive.

As we saunter along the street to-day, Northumberland avenue attracts our attention, and we recall the old palace which stood here more than two hundred and fifty years.

Continuing eastward, we pass Somerset House, and think of the original palace, where lived in turn the wives of James I., Charles I. and Charles II. If we enter the present building, which is used for government purposes, we may find on file in the wills and probate office the wills of Shakespeare, Newton and Dr. Samuel Johnson.

A little farther down the street—in imagination—we dance around the May-pole, perhaps in the company which Samuel Pepys saw when on his way to Westminster May 1, 1667. Remember? He says, "I met many milkmaids with their garlands on their palls dancing with a fiddler before them, and pretty Nellie Gwynne was standing at her lodging door in Drury Court in her smock sleeves and bodice looking at me." He thought her a "mighty pretty creature."

While at Drury Lane, let us remember its past. It takes its name from the family of Druries, and is described by Pope as a "place of residence for poor authors." As for Drury Lane theater we prefer it in Shakespeare's day. Think of it, with such names as Shakespeare, Ben Jonson, Dryden and Garrick making its past famous.

Returning to the Strand, we hurry by the Royal Courts of Justice as altogether too modern for our purposes, merely recalling Butchers' Row, which was destroyed to give room for them—Butchers' Row, which suggests Kit Kat Club; and where, in 1605, might have been seen the conspirators of the Gunpowder Plot, with heads close together and fingers on lips.

At Fleet street we speak of Isaac Walton's near home, and Mrs. Salmon's wonderful waxwork exhibition in 1795 at 17 Fleet street—"it was a most convenient place for the coaches of quality to stand unobscured."

Passing the end of Chancery Lane—a street devoted to lawyers, law and lawful things—we are at St. Dunstons-in-the-West. As we look at it we remember the old church which stood in the same place, had the same name and possessed a great fascination in the two life-sized figures of savages that softly tapped the quarter hours with clubs. The clock and figures are now preserved in Regents Park.

Fetter Lane. At the corner stood Pelee's Coffee House. At number 17 lived John Dryden—a tablet recalls him, "Born 1631, died 1700, Glorious John." We will leave Fleet Market, now Farringdon Market, and pass on to Memorial Hall. Here, for eight centuries, stood Fleet street prison, which proved the next step to the Star Chamber, and the third step was the block, or stake.

Fleet street is an especially enlightening memory to us, as Dr. Samuel Johnson lived in and loved it. The most beautiful park about London could not equal it in his estimation; he knew every building the entire length of it—particularly the taverns and coffee houses.

Along Ludgate Hill, a short distance, is Old Bailey, through which we will wander. We see the black Newgate prison—the scene of untold wretchedness for so many years. Coming out at Newgate we are near what was Snow Hill. On the hill, you remember, was the coach-house where Squeers took up his abode when arranging for new pupils. Not far from here, past Holborn Circus, were Field Lane and Saffron Hill, where Bog told us to look for the pickpockets.

Hasten our steps along Holborn. A little to the north is Grays Inn. Here in the time of Edward IV. young gentlemen were taught all the learning required at court—including singing, dancing and music. Later it had clustered about it much of legal interest, and many illustrious men have been its members. Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors" was performed in the hall, and here Raleigh came frequently to enjoy friendly converse with Bacon.

Let us hurry through the once fashionable quarters of Great Queen street and Long Acre. You see a few good old mansions still, but must not stop—you are on your way to Coventry. Leigh Hunt tells us that in his day Coventry did not bear a good name—savoring too much of the gaming-table.

Here we are in Haymarket. Not in the hay-selling days from whence the name is derived, but nowadays when it forms a busy thoroughfare to Pall Mall. In the garret of a little shop in this street Addison wrote his "Campaign."

Pall Mall is so named because of a game Charles I. and his courtiers played before stone, brick and mortar caught sight of the place. It was then a charming walk to the park, with trees on both sides. Now it bristles with clubs.

Many long years ago, when fashion rejoiced in a huge ruff at the neck, there lived near here a man who catered to fashion by keeping for sale these ruffs which were called peccadils, or peccadillas. Articles of such importance were much talked about, and in due time the street was noted as the place to obtain them—hence the name Peccadilly.

Today the shops are enticing, but the street has also an historical interest. Charles II. had a hunting-ground here, and at number 140 Lord Byron once lived.

Garniture for Milliners.
Furs, especially sable and chinchilla, are fashionable garnitures for millinery, and rich velvets and silks are draped over soft frames, producing wonderfully effective results. This method of draping a hat cannot be described; one must see it in the reality of a picture to fully comprehend just how it is done. Purple is still holding the imperial way it has for three years, although a wonderful deep red is a close rival to it, while royal blue, silver gray, black and white, white and black, all black and all white obtain. Brilliant buckles and pins are used to fasten flowers and plumes to position. Indeed, wherever an effective bit of color or brightness can be artistically arranged there it is in evidence.

There is a Class of People
Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over 1/4 as much. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cents and 25 cents per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

The Disadvantages.
The Cleveland Plain Dealer tells of a colored man who noticed a board displayed in front of a building in course of erection. It bore these words: "Keep away—Danger!" The colored man walked up close to the board and traced the letters with his finger. His lips moved as if he were spelling out the words. Before he had finished the "Keep away" a brick fell from an upper story and struck him squarely on the head. Without even looking up he backed across the sidewalk and examined the big smash in his hat. As he smoothed it down he sadly remarked: "Dat's one of de drawbacks to a limerted edercation!"

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietor has so much faith in his curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials. Address: Dr. J. C. English Steel Rails.
In tearing up a siding on the Straitsville division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, the other day, the section men discovered that several of the rails had been made in 1863. Subsequent investigation revealed the fact that these rails were part of a lot that were bought in England during the war at a cost of $125 per ton in gold. The rails were still in very fair condition and for light motive power would last ten years longer.

A Coin in the Bottle.
There have been patented all kinds of schemes devised for the purpose of securing a bottle that can be refilled after once being emptied of its contents. A great deal of fraud is said to be perpetrated by filling the bottle of some standard liquor with an inferior grade, and palming it off as the original bottling. An ingenious Philadelphiaian proposes to accomplish this by blowing a coin in the body of the glass bottle, and he thinks that this will be tempting enough to induce someone to break the bottle as soon as it has been emptied.

Papa Knows.
Detroit Free Press: "Arn't you afraid," asked the caller of the fond mother, "that your son will permanently impair his health, studying so diligently as he does?" "I was inclined to be uneasy, but his papa says the dear boy will have nothing to do after he is admitted to the bar and will have ample time to recuperate."

CURES RHEUMATISM, ETC.

A Recent Discovery That is Working Wonders.
The most prevailing afflictions that for a century have been engaging the most scientific skill of the medical world are rheumatism, neuralgia, catarrh, asthma, la grippe and their kindred ailments. The country is full of sufferers from these complaints. Although the most learned experts of the medical profession have labored for a century to produce a curative, until quite recently no positive results were effected. To the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co., 167-69 Dearborn street, Chicago, belongs the credit for having produced the new remedy. It is being extensively advertised under the trade mark of "Wife Drops." The trade mark is self-explanatory. Five drops make a dose. The effect is magical. In days gone by other alleged cures have been marketed with the promise to take effect in thirty days or more. Five Drops begins to cure at once. Immediate relief is felt. In order to more effectively advertise its merits the company will for the next thirty days send out 100,000 of their sample bottles of this positive cure for 25 cents a bottle by mail prepaid. Large bottle, 300 doses, $1 (for thirty days 3 bottles $2.50.) Those suffering should take immediate advantage of this generous offer and write them to-day.
