Them. Probably at no time in the world's history has so much attention been paid to the interior decoration of homes as at present. No home, no matter how humble, is without its bandiwork that helps to beautify the apartments and make the surroundings more cheerful. The taste of the American people has kept pace with the age, and almost every day brings torth something new in the way of a picture, a draping, a piece of furniture or some form of mural decoration. of 161 One of the latest of these has been given to the world by the celebrated artist, Muville, in a series of four an Australian bandsome porcelain game plantes by birth, came handsome porcelain game plaques. Not for years has anything as handsome in this line been seen. Patent Office Business.

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 25, 1898 There were 42,120 applications for patents filed in the U.S. Patent office during the year ending June 30, '98. and 22,731 patents granted during the same time. This indicates that nearly half of the applications filed have been rejected. Possibly many of the subjects of the applications were not patentable inventions. But it is more probable that many of the applications were not properly prepared and prosecuted. Many that were finally rejected by the Primary Examiners Beauty is Blood Deep.

"Esteemed friend," suggests the litcall Lovey Dear, an endearing title bestowed by the irrepressible Bobby Smythe, who chased her all around the garden with a siphon of soda-water one afternoon in endeavoring, so he said, to perform the ceremony of baptism in a perfectly legal way.

That the name fits her goes without saying, for, however droll he may be, Bobby is incapable of that would-be funny sarcasm which makes unkind cuts of one's small eccentricities of appearance or personality, and if she were not just the sweetest, gentlest, and altogether most lovable of young creatures Mr. Smythe would have dubbed her otherwise or not at all. At any rate he never would leave a loophole through which a less chivalric nature might poke ridicule.

Betty laughs and blushes charmingly. 'Yes, thanks," says she, "that's it-er Where was I? Oh, yes, 'I am writing this, my esteemed friend, on the back of my mess plate, which is the only writing desk the quarters afford, and my impressive style makes it go "ker-plunk, ker-plunk" at every word. I have placed a few lumps of moist sod beneath my feet to keep them out of the pleasant pool of water which has found a resting place in the tent, and as I sit here more or less drenched, I must confess, my-er-er-esteemed friend, that the damper which has spread itself over my person threatens to even permeate my patriotism, and I don't believe anything except a sunny letter from you will dry it off. I cannot help. under these circumstances, turning a longing retrospective eye upon that dear old room where at about this time in the afternoon, Lovey Dear, in her gray gown, was wont to pour tea for a thirsty mob, while you and I turned up to treat them to-perhaps I ought to say inflict them with-what Bobby Smythe with a perverted and distressing sense of humor called a Deweyett," lingering on the ett, as he always lingers at any suggestion of eat."

Betty paused to laugh gaily. "That was good," cries she. "Freddy on." awfully funny, don't you think, Lov-

"No, I don't think," answers Lovey Dear, in a gently injured way. To disparage, be it ever so lightly, that home-

I declare the way that old lady does rave over me! It is embarrassing, really. But I cannot conscientiously give her encouragement, Lovey dear; there is such a differences in our ages, and for me to wed Betty would be mating May to December, would it not? 'Pon my soul as I notice how aged and decrepit she is getting it reminds me of a story-" "Help! Help!" crics Betty,

"Of a story?" says Lovey Dear, encouragingly, though Bobby needs none, An entire roomful of people all protesting violently against hearing one of his tales have many a time bees made to stand and hearken to the bitter end, for no man has ever been known to prevent Bobby spinning a yarn which he thinks funny or appropriate. Therefore, it goes without saying that Betty's appealing wail has no effect.

The girls laughed lightly, possibly from the force of habitual politeness, and Bobby, as usual, doubles up and howls at the wit of his own yarn. People, unkind critics, are wont to ascribe Bobby's persistence of anecdotes to this laugh of his. They say he roars so himself and makes such a noise that he thinks every one else is enjoying it. "Bobby," remarks Betty when at last Mr. Smythe's mirth has subsided, "it has just occurred to me that you

And there is a little ring in his voice on the cheerful prospect. Scudday as he says this that brings a light into Lovey Dear's soft gray eyes-a light but as chipper as a sparrow. He says: that, perhaps, who knows, may never

"You are a good boy, Bobby," reif I tell you there is a watermelon on ice in the refrigerator?"

"Have spasms in rapid succession tle girl whom every one has come to until it is produced," replied Mr. Smythe promptly.

> Whereupon, rather than expose herself to the danger of hydrophobia, so Betty says, she leads the way diningroomwards, where, in the luscious juice of a round slice of really indecent size, Bobby buries his homely visage and apparently the gravity that was his a moment ago.

Presently Betty, being small and easily satisfied, rises.

"I leave you two budding boa constrictors to gorge yourselves out of proportion while I go and write a line to Freddy; and, Bobby, for mercy's sake wipe that melon off the end of your nose! Why can't you eat respectably, like other people?"

"Well," answers Bobby, grinning over a half moon of rind, "you know a quili-driver must be so much around a pen that he loses style. Good-by, dear. If there were not another prospective slice of melon between us, Betty, I should be tempted to eat you -you look like a stick of peppermint eandy in that red and white get-up." "Candied compliment," says Betty, and disappears to avoid reproaches. For a moment there is silence in the room, then Bobby looks up with the same odd, grave expression on his face that was there a while ago.

"I know," observes he, speaking hurriedly, "that you girls think banners and fireworks of the fellows who are going to fight for all that is best in Cuba. It must seem tame to you for me not to go. Did you," jerkily now, "er-do you-er-like-er-me less, think less-er-of me for it, Lovey Dear?

And Lovey Dear (how the name fits her) answers gently: "O, no; not less of you, Bobby. There are even higher duties than those which one owes to one's country, and the best and the bravest and the grandest battles fought are the battles that no one sees; and the greatest heroes are the silent ones who must stand fast to the plain things while others go marching

"Lovey Dear," and though Bobby is beaming like the midday sun and his pleasant, homely face is wreathed in smiles, his voice breaks in an odd little way, and there is something besides light shining in his eyes, "Lovey Dear, you're a brick! Have another slice of melon with me!"-New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Scoundrels in the Early Congresses.

Durand tells us that Tom Paine, who was then the secretary of the committee on foreign affairs, and of course knew all its secrets, was engaged by the French minister, for $1,000 a year, to inspire the people with sentiments favorable to France." No doubt the rascal earned his money, but who the other members were that were thus inspired we do not know. That such "inspiration," however, was used to a greater or less extent, there can be no possible doubt. One of the biographers of John Jay relates that some thirty years after the events here mentioned Gouverneur Morris went over from Morrisania to visit his old friend Jay at Bedford. During their conversation Morris suddenly ejaculated through clouds of smoke: "Jay, what a set of damned scoundrels we had in that second congress!" "Yes," said by's appetite is such an acknowledged | Jay, "that we had," and the venerable ex-chief justice knocked the ashes from "I have eaten my way into even the his pipe.-Charles Kendall Adams in Smugglers Foiled.

Even Saxon courtesy may be carried a little too far. When about to return from a Bchemian village to a frontier town in Saxony, the occupants of a sledge had their foot-warmers carefully rinsed out and replenished with full-bodied Hungarian wine. Thus they passed the guard post without let or hindrance to the merry jingling of the sleighbells. Laughing and joking at the success of their little dodge, they called at a wayside inn for refreshments. On resuming their seats one of the party exclaimed: "Why, the foot-warmers are quite hot!" Then the boots of the inn stepped forward and said, with a friendly grin: "The footwarmers were quite cold, gentlemen. so just to oblige you. I emptied and filled them again with hot water."-Weekly Telegraph.
