IT'S ODD ABOUT GEESE.

They Can't Stand a Rainstorm When Thirsty.

"Geese are peculiar," said an old poultry salesman in Manhattan market. "Put them out in a rainstorm when they have a good thirst on, and they are liable to die. About ten years ago I was engaged by a firm to go out through the west to buy live geese and chikens. I bought about ten carloads, put them in crates, and started east. The geese were in the crates nearest the floor of the open carthat's the regular way to ship themand on top of them were piled the chicken crates. We got about ten miles from St. Joseph, Mo., when the load on one of the cars sagged, and the whole pile of crates were spilled on the side of the track. In piling the crates on again the geese were piled on top. I knew I was taking chances, because a rainsform meant death to the geese, but there didn't seem to be any storm in sight, and I thought we could make St. Joseph and shift the load there. The train had only gone a short distance when a storm came up so suddenly that the rain was falling almost as soon as the clouds were noticed. The geese had been without water for some hours, and the moment they felt the rain they were stretching their necks through the openings between the slats and holding their bills open to catch the drops. Well, I got an old coat and laid it over as many of the crates as it would cover, so as to save as many as possible. Then I got a switch and tried to force the others to keep their heads inside the crates. They didn't mind the switch very much, and I had to give each one four or five good hits before it would pull in its head, and when I started on a new head the old one would pop out again. When we got into St. Joseph it was still raining, and every goose in the crates, with the exception of those under the coat, was dead."-New York Sun.

"AIRQUAKE" IN ITALY.

Many Persons Made Homeless in the Town of Rieti.

The earthquake that took place in the Umbian town of Rieti on the Velino, in Italy, the other day was accompanied by a phenomenon of which the first meager account of the shock gave no mention. According to a correspondent of the Osservatore Romano it was not an earthquake but an "airquake.' The air shook or vibrated like a violently agitated liquid; great rents were made in tall buildings and towers, and no shifting of the street pavement was noticed. From the bishop down to the beggar, all seemed frightened. It is said that many felt the air vibrations and were thrown to the ground, while others were almost suffocated. A dense black cloud hung over the town while the phenomenon was passing. The church steeples, the saving bank, the theater and no fewer than six palaces were more or less wrecked, as well as eighty or one hundred dwellings. Five hundred tents have been sent to the place by the government. The people, in the meantime, are living in hastily built huts and in the half ruined postoffice and churches. Soldiers have been sent from Rome to the scene of the disaster, and they, with the students, are busy policing the ruins and trying to save some of the household goods. King Humbert has sent 35,000 francs from his private purse to relieve the first necessities of the people. At the time of the catastrophe a slight earthquake, like a shudder, was felt in Rome. Even there, too, people say they noticed a peculiar convulsion of the air.

THE RUSH FOR GOLD.

From the Times, Blufs, Ill. The rush of gold seekers to the Klondike brings thrilling memories to the "forty-niners" still alive, of the time when they girdled the continent or faced the terrors of the great American desert on the journey to the land of gold. These pioneers tell some experiences which should be heeded by gold seekers today. Constant exposure and faulty diet killed large numbers, while nearly all the survivors were afflicted with disease, many of them with rheum a tism. Such a sufferer was Adam Vangundy, who now resides at Bluffs, Ill., where he has been justice of the peace and was the first president of the board of trustees. In a Frecent interview he said: er. 5 a sufferer of rheumatism "A Forty-niner." for a number of years and the pain at times was very intense. I tried all the proprietary medicines I could think or hear of, but received no relief. "I finally placed my case with several physicians and doctored with them for some time, but they failed to do me any good. Finally, with my hopes of relief nearly exhausted, I read an article regard-Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which induced me to try them. I was anxious to get rid of the terrible disease, and bought two boxes of the pills. I began using them about March, 1897. After I had taken two boxes I was completely cured, and the pain has never returned. I think it is the best medicine I have ever taken, and am willing at any time to sign my name to any testimony setting forth its good merits."

The American Monthly Review of Reviews for September presents the usual timely features that we have come to expect from this magazine. The various events connected with the end of the war with Spain are fully discussed by the editor, while the Porto Rican campaign, from start to finish, is described by John A. Church, formerly of the Army and Navy Journal. The cost of the war and the financial provisions for meeting it are ably summed up by Charles A. Conant, an experienced financial writer. Henry MacFarland, a Washington journalist, contributes a character sketch of William R. Day, the Secretary of State, which is of special interest at this time because of Judge Day's appointment as leading member of the American peace commission.

Prof. Dean C. Worcester, of the University of Michigan, will contribute to the September Century a paper based on personal experience, entitled 'The Malay Pirates of the Philippines' and illustrated from photographs taken by the writer. "Alone in Porto Rico," will be narrated by him in the same number, which win also contain the first of several articles on "Life and Society in Old Cuba," from the journals of the late Jonathan S. Jenkins, written in 1859, but dealing with many topics now in the public consideration, such as yellow fever, coffeeplanting, etc.
