The leading newspapers of London have materially changed their minds on the amendment to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty during the past few weeks. At first their tone was very bellicose but after a little sober second thaught John Bull seems to have come to his senses and now concludes that for the safety of all who use the canal it must be thoroughly policed by a power capable of coping with every exegencies.

Nebraska has for some years now furnished the initial to every democratic vote in the senate as is so plainly indicated by the recent vote on the army bill and the prohibition amendment thereto. Of course our missfortune comes through the fact that our obstructionist senator carries the name of Allen, which entitles him to head the list in alphabetical torm. No enmity should be laid up against Nebraska for this.
