October 1st was the Sixty-seventh birthday of Grandma Waite who is living with her son Wilbur in this city and her relatives and friends planned a very pleasant surprise for her. She was incited to go calling in the afternoon and during her absence a number of her old acquaintance and friends met at her home. She was then sent for, a sumptuous supper was served and a good social time followed.

A. P. Culley has just received the third car of winter wheat seed and like the rest it is going like hot cakes. This is an indication that the farmers of this county are going to sow more winter wheat than ever before and we believe it to be a move in the right direction. Spring wheat in this part of the country, has for several years past, proven a failure, both on account of drouth and chinch bugs, while the winter wheat crop is generally made before drouth and hot winds can do much damage or the ravenous chinch bugs get in their work of destruction.

DIED.

Samuel Hancock, died at his home in this city last Saturday, September 28, 1901, at 4:20 p. m., after a lingering illness of several years. Mr. Hancock was born in Cook county, Tenn., on August 13, 1826, and was at the time of his death, 75 years 1 month and 13 days old. He had been married three times and was the father of 15 children. Three to his first wife all of which went early to their graves with their mother. On the 26th day of September 1855, he led his second bride, Miss Rachel Dayhuff, to the altar, and after 34 years of companionship with her, she departed this life on the 26th day of February, 1889, at their farm 3 miles below Loup City. To this union 12 children were born, two, James and Mahlon, died in infancy, while Josie died in the early spring of '97. The other nine are living and are in different and remote parts of the country except William, who lives near the old homestead and who was a constant visitor at his father's bedside and tenderly closed the death dimmed eyes when the end came. On the 13th day of February 1895, he was married to Mrs. Margaret Bitters of Hamilton county, Nebr., who has zealously watched his every care during his long sickness. No more devoted wife ever wedded mortal man. Her charge has been one that few are called upon to experience, yet uncomplainingly she watched him through the different stages of his sickness, and showed by her constant and kind attention, that she reaped great pleasure from ministering to his increasing wants, as he neared the valley of death. "Uncle Sam," as we were wont to call him, was a kind and lovable man, and a patriot in the truest sense of the word. On the 26th of August, 1862, he shouldered his musket and offered his life to the fortunes of war that the flag that he loved might be unsullied, and when he was mustered out, in June 1865, he bore home with him a commission as Second Lieutenant, signed by Indiana's gallant war governor, O. P. Morton, and earned by heroic deeds on the field of battle. Of late years, tears would well up in the old patriots eyes when he gazed upon the stary banner and it was his winding sheet as his old comrades of the G. A. R. tenderly bore him to his soldier grave, and he dropped a tear, as his spirit answered to the roll call in heaven. This world is better for "Uncle Sam having lived and

"We'll find him and know him
Among the good and true,
We'll know him up in heaven
In that faded coat of blue."

He was one of the first settlers in Sherman county, there being but 13 families in the county when he landed in 1873, and filed on a homestead south of town. He was laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery, Sunday Sept. 29th in the afternoon, Rev. L. D. Weyand preaching the funeral sermon from First Corinthians, 15, 55.

Crushed Beneath Shakespearean Ideal.

What I feel is that the poetic drama has for two centuries and more, been crushed beneath the weight of the Shakespearean ideal, says Stephen Phillips in the Critic. Poets have tried to write like Shakespeare, and critics have urged them on, not recognizing that, though his matter was for all time, his form, his technique was for his own age, and no other. It needed Shakespeare, and no lesser man, to infuse any permanent vitality into the measureless complications of the Shakespearean drama. I often think that the art of the Elizabethans was typical of the Anglo-Saxon genius, as described by Lord Rosebery—the genius for "muddling through somehow." Shakespeare breathed upon chaos, and chaos quivered into immortal life. But even his great contemporaries seldom or never performed the same miracle; and all subsequent attempts to imitate it have ended in disaster. Or am I wrong? Can you name a play on the Shakespearean model, written since the restoration, that has any real life in it?

We were asked several times last week, who our friend was that resembled McKinley so much. The honor belongs to Mr. J. M. Exds, the A. O. U. W., deputy who was here at that time.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Thirty Years of Suffering.

"I suffered for thirty years with diarrhoea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Hawley, French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and suffered so much that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhoea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, but by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by Odendahl Bros.
