Wealth is rapidly becoming more evenly distributed throughout the republic. Even W. J. Bryan, the 'peppy lawyer' of 1896 and peerless leader of the plain people, is worth $500,000 in gold.

The populists have held all the offices in Sherman county for the past ten years. Wouldn't it be a sensible idea to break into this circle once and see how matters look through a different political lens.

It has been said that G. H. Gibson expects to carry this election through personal friendship. Well that is very true. No man's enemies vote for him to any appreciable extent, and Gibson is proud of the charge that he has so many staunch and true friends.

A few years ago the cry went out from populists that it was not good to have an entire republican supreme court, therefore the people were asked to elect a populist to that body so that it might be of different political faiths. This year we are confronted with the same conditions, only if the fusionists elect their man it will be an entire fusion body. Let the people stop and consider a moment, whether the old cry of a mixture of political beliefs is not still a good thing in that body.

W. J. Bryan delivered a long harangue at Broken Bow last week, deploring the fact that in '96 he carried that county by more than 1,000 votes, while in 1900 his majority fell below 100. He said that his party was shooting at the heads and hearts of the people while the Republican party shot at their stomachs and won. Mr. Bryan never made a truer statement. His party endeavored to shoot prejudice and party hatred into the people regardless of the welfare of the home and fireside, regardless of whether there was flour in the barrel and shoes on the little ones feet. He sowed distraction, hunger and rags among 70 million free people and cried aloud, while he lived upon the fat of the land, that they should be content to starve for the privilege of following him. But they turned their back upon him and were filled, and in 1900 they swept the Bryan falacy from the face of the earth and did it upon full stomachs. He may be able to work upon the prejudices of the credulous, but to offer the people a stone and say he will fill, will never send him to the white house. Bryan the idol, is shattered and the masses were the iconoclasts. His senseless verbiage is uttered in the same strain it was ten years ago, but there are less willing ears to hear now than then. Calm deliberation and a replenished farder has robbed him of his charms. His prophecies were content from the minds of the people and his policy would make their babes cry for bread, but his wail that has gone out in the wilderness, to come back to the fold, will fall upon deaf ears. The blind has seen and the deaf has heard, and their conclusion is no good for Mr. Bryan.

Prostrated Trees Bearing Fruit.
A peculiar sight seen on many farms in Allegheny county, N. Y., this year is that of large apple trees lying flat on the ground, yet loaded down with blossoms. These trees—and there are hundreds of them—were uprooted by the severe ice-storm last winter.

New System of Telegraphy.

A Hungarian engineer named Eugene Zoltan has invented a new system of telegraphy by which he claims to be able to connect one wire with as many as eighty apparatus and telegraph the same number of messages simultaneously. Exhaustive tests are to be made of his method.

Beautiful But Costly.

The old-fashioned brocades and rich silks and satins; the fine embroideries in shaded silks, and the painted chiffons and gauzes, make the evening and dinner gowns of today things of rare beauty, but great price.

Milking Millions of Cows.

British farmers and dairymen are today milking over 4,000,000 cows, and producing annually in their dairies $22,000,000 worth of milk, butter and cheese.

Suggesting a New One.

The city might do a nice little stroke of business by charging pedestrians for walking on the shady side of the streets.—New York World.

The Bowery Beats the World.

In a small two-story building with a basement on the Bowery are three aspiring occupants, although the space occupied by each is not much larger than health requires. Over the entrance to the store is this sign: "Cheapest hardware store on earth." Over the entrance to the basement is this sign: "Cheapest barber shop in the world." Over the entrance leading to the second story is this: "Cheapest restaurant on the planet."

John Welliffe's Manuscripts.

Manuscripts of John Welliffe's translation of the Bible into English are of extreme rarity, and even imperfect specimens occur only at very long and irregular intervals. One came up for sale in London recently. Although incomplete, wanting the greater portion of the Old Testament, it comprises the whole of the New Testament. The MS. extends to 269 leaves, and is the work of an English scribe of about 1410, and the text collates exactly with the 'Later Version,' as reprinted from the Royal MS. in the British Museum, under the editorship of Sir F. Madden and the Rev. Josiah Forshall, in 1850. The MS., written in the old English black letter, is in excellent preservation, 32 of the pages are richly illuminated with ornamental capitals and borders in burnished gold and colors. The volume is of special interest because it was written at a time when the mere reproduction of the Bible was an offense forbidden under very severe penalties. It realized $6,000.

A WHITE HOUSE INCIDENT.

Mrs. McKinley's Kindly Greeting to a Little Chap.

A New York woman, who spent a few weeks in Washington just before the President started on the trip which resulted so disastrously for his wife, tells a little story which illustrates Mrs. McKinley's sweet ways with children. One morning the New Yorker went out with a friend to look at the White House. While they were there they heard that Mrs. McKinley was soon to take her daily drive, and decided to wait and see her. Quite a crowd of people were there for the same purpose, and among them was a well-dressed woman with a child, a manly little chap about 4 years old, with an attractive face framed in light golden curls. Presently Mrs. McKinley came out. She bowed very graciously to the crowd several times and then started for her carriage. Suddenly she caught sight of the little boy and went back to where he stood. She stopped, bent down, and began to talk to him. The New York woman was fortunate enough to hear a part of the conversation. "I know who you are," the little boy said, and meeting her smile, he went on, "You're the President's wife." "And who are you?" said Mrs. McKinley. "My name's Arthur," answered the boy. "I want to be President, too, some day." "That's right, Arthur," said Mrs. McKinley. "Butter boys than you have grown up to be presidents. Mr. McKinley was even littler than you are once." Then the first lady of the land gave little Arthur a warm kiss, bade him good by, and went on to her carriage.—New York Times.

BROOKLYN GROWING FASTER.

Census Shows That Its Population Is Catching Up to Manhattan's.

Table 10 of Census Bulletin 65 shows the growth of New York city's population, and brings forcibly to notice the fact that when it comes to actual growth, Manhattan island is a sure-enough slow place when compared to lively and progressive Brooklyn. By the census of 1790 there were eight inhabitants of Manhattan Island to each one of Brooklyn. In the next 20 years New York increased nearly 100 per cent and after that until 1830 New York grew the faster of the two. In 1830 there were 202,000 inhabitants on Manhattan Island and 20,000 only in Brooklyn—10 to 1. In the next decade New York increased 50 per cent; Brooklyn increase 100. Between 1840 and 1850 New York nearly doubled in population, Brooklyn more than trebled.

By 1860 New York was up to 800,000, four times more than in 1830, while Brooklyn was up to 280,000, ten times more than it was thirty years before. During the next decade, including the civil war, New York gained 120,000 inhabitants, Brooklyn gained 140,000. In 1870 New York passed the million mark; Brooklyn a fraction short of 600,000. By the last census Manhattan had 1,850,000 and Brooklyn 1,166,000, and at the present ratio of growth, which has been continuous in both boroughs since 1830, it is merely a question of time when Brooklyn will be the more populous borough of the two. The area of Manhattan is 13,400 acres and of Brooklyn 39,000, or three times as large, and the opportunities of growth and development are, therefore, much greater in Brooklyn borough than in Manhattan.—New York Sun.

Experience in Love.

An Atchison girl who is in love for the seventh time says she doesn't notice any difference in her attacks, except that she is more than she used to be curling her hair.—Boston Globe.

The Royal Society of Architects, in England, allows a man to qualify as an associate, and already two girls have successfully passed their examinations. One of the English ladies observes that there is a real need for the girl architect in the matter of domestic architecture, and ventures to predict fame and a future to the girl who provides, say, the first home heated and worked throughout with electricity.

See Thelma Waters the singer. The Garnett (Kas.) Eagle says: "A Garnett girl has a novel way of entertaining her sweethearts. She makes him water the flowers and then the lawn mower every evening. He comes to see her. She stands by and watches his work. She thinks that is the way to pay, but the young man is thinking about ordering a strike."
