Porter wishes to make the fol-lowing announcement: Beginning June 1st and continuing through most of July I expect to discuss questions at the foundation of the belief in Christianity. As near as can now be outlined the subjects will be as follows: June 1. Why I believe in a Personal God; evidenced from lower nature. June 8. Why I believe in a Personal God; evidenced from man. June 15. Why I believe in a Personal God; evidenced from other sources and synthesis of all the evidence. June 22. Why I believe Christianity to be the true and the only true religion. June 29. Why I believe Christ is the son of God. July 6. Why I believe the Bible is the word of God. July 13. Why I believe in Future Rewards. July 20. Why I believe in Future Punishment. Being a christian myself, I believe the christian position is the only cor-rect one. I believe it can be proved to be, not only the most rational, but the only rational position on these sub-jects. I believe modern science bears out the truth of this statement. During these series of talks, every one will be allowed to ask such ques-tions, bearing on these subjects, as he may choose. Questions handed to me or mailed so as to reach me before Fri-day noon, will be considered at the next public service. Those received later in the week will be considered at the service held a week later. Questions will not be answered at other times than at the regular service, if I can answer questions asked I shall do so; if not, I will frankly admit my inabil-ity. In any case honest questions will be met honestly. These subjects are to be considered because of a belief on my part that many people are in error on these sub-jects, are honest in their convictions, and ready, if led to see their error, to embrace the truth. I believe error on these basic questions is fatal, and for this reason urge careful, exact, and fair investigation while the opportuni-ty is open. Jenny Washington. Philip Vickers Fithian, a tutor at Nomini Hall, Virginia, in 1774, gives this description of Washington's niece, Miss Jenny Washington. Evidently she was a personable young lady, with all the graces of her time. "Miss Washington is about seventeen; she has not a handsome face, but is neat in her dress, of an agreeable size, & well proportioned, and has an easy winning behavior; she is not forward to begin a conversation, yet when spoken to she is extremely affable, without assuming any girlish affecta-tion or pretending to be overcharg'd with wit; She plays well on the Harpsichord & Spinnet; understands the principles of Music, & therefore performs her Tunes in perfect time, a Neglect of which always makes music intolerable, but it is a fault almost universal among young Ladies in the practice; she sings likewise to her instrument, has a strong full voice and a well-judging ear; but most of the Virginia Girls think it Labour quite sufficient to thump the Keys of a Harpsichord into the air of a tune mechanically, & think it would be Slavery to submit to the Drudgery of acquiring Vocal Music." —Youth's Companion.

The forests and the rivers watering rich valleys, the mountain ranges, the rocky ledges, and the landscape gener-ally is very much like the Quaker State. The population is about 30 per cent less.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Conductor Was an Ex-Tar. Passengers on a Brooklyn bridge trolley car were greatly amused the other day at the antics of their conduc-tor, who had been an old sailor and was going through some strange per-formances on the rear platform to show that he wasn't all landlubber yet, although he had been ringing up fares for several years. The rejuvenated sailor said: "I had a fine old time, scul-ing ropes when I had a berth on the three-skysail-yarder Stanhope. I takes on a 'alyard like this," he continued, grabbing the trolley rope and pulling until the motorman rang for power. Before he was through with his ex-hibition of prowess the brake had been used as a capstan, the rear seat as a forward deck and the fender as a long boat swung from its davits. Just then, says the New York Mail and Express, the Brooklyn end of the bridge was reached and the man resumed his role of ordinary conductor.

Now that the storm season is here and there will be much danger from Lightning, you should think about Lightning Rods. If you have none, or your old ones are out of repair, bet-ter write to "Nebraska's resident dea-ler" W. E. Drake, Grand Island Nebr., who does an honest business and is fast reclaiming the fallen reputation of this line of work, which has suffered much by the abuse of unprincipled traveling "fakirs," who have greatly abused the grand discovery of Franklin. Read his advertisement elsewhere in this paper.
