The Bow of Orange Ribbon A ROMANCE OF NEW YORK

By AMELIA E. BARR

Author of "Friend Olivia," "I, Thou and the Other Cne," Etc. Copyright, 1886, by Dodd, Mead and Company.

CHAPTER V .-- Continued.

sumed coldness and calmness.

and he wanted time to fully consider Lightly as Hyde had taken the chalhis ways. He was no physical cow- lenge, he was really more disinclined ard; he was a fine swordsman, and he to fight than Neil was. In his heart felt that it would be a real joy to stand he knew that Semple had a just cause with a drawn rapier between himself or anger; "but then," he argued, "I and his rival. But what if revenge would not resign the girl for my life, cost him too much? What if he slew for I am sensible that life, if she is Hyde, and had to leave his love and another's, will be a very tedious thing his home, and his fine business pros- to me." pects? To win Katherine, and to All day Neil was busy in making his marry her, in the face of the man will and in disposing of his affairs. whom he felt that he detested; would Hyde felt equally the necessity for not that be the best of all "satisfac- some definite arrangement of his busitions?"

cussing these points with himself, till He drank a cup of coffee, wrote sevthe shops all closed, and on the stoops eral important letters, and then went of the houses in Maiden Lane and Lib- to Fraunce's, and had a steak and a erty street there were merry parties bottle of wine. During his meal his of gossiping belles and beaux. Then thoughts wandered between Kathhe returned to Broadway.

to a narrow road which ran to the It happened to be Saturday, and the river, along the southern side of Van shutters were closed, though the door Heemskirk's house. Coming swiftly was slightly open, and Cohen was situp it, as if to detain him, was Capt. ting with his granddaughter in the cool Hyde. The two men looked at each shadows of the crowded place. Miriam other defiantly; and Neil said with a retreated within the deeper shadows cold, meaning emphasis:

"At your service, sir."

touching his sword,-"to the very hilt, sir.'

"Sir, yours to the same extremity." it is;" and he pushed aside his em- last they rose. Hyde extended his broidered coat in order to exhibit to hand. "Cohen," he said, "few men Neil the bow of orange ribbon be- would have been as generous and, at neath it.

said Neil passionately.

"In the meantime, I have the felicity view.

CHAPTER VI.

At the Sword's Point.

Neil's first emotion was not so much have him at my sword's point," he kept saying to himself as he turned presence? from Hyde to Van Heemskirk's house.

down the garden, my love."

She looked at him wonderingly,

Capt. Hyde still sleeping when he Nell was intensely angry, and his waited upon him. Hvde laughed lightdark eyes glowed beneath their ly at "Mr. Semple's impatience of ofdropped lids with a passionate hate. fense," and directed Mr. Beekman to But he left his father with an as Capt. Earle as his second; leaving the choice of swords and of the ground The sarcastic advice annoyed him, entirely to his direction.

ness. He owed many debts of honor, He walked about the streets, dis- and Cohen's bill was yet unsettled. erine and the Jew Cohen. After it he Still debating with himself, he came went straight to Cohen's store.

of some curtains of stamped Moorish leather, for she anticipated the im-"Mr. Semple, at your service,"-and mediate departure of the intruder. She was therefore astonished when her grandfather, after listening to a few sentences, sat down, and entered "As for the cause, Mr. Semple, here into a lengthy conversation. When at this hour, as considerate as you. I "I will dye it crimson in your blood," have judged from tradition, and misjudged you. Whether we meet again or not, we part as friends."

of wearing it;" and with an offensively "You have settled all things as a deep salute, he terminated the inter- gentleman, captain. May my white hairs say a word to your heart this hour?" Hyde bowed; and he continued, in a voice of sericus benignity: The words of the Holy One are to be regarded, and not the words of men. Men call that 'honor' which He will one of anger as of exultation. "I shall call murder. What excuse is there in young men, who had probably divined your lips if you go this night into his There was no excuse in Hyde's lips, Katherine sat upon the steps of the even for his mortal interrogator. He stoop. Touching her, to arouse her merely bowed again, and slipped Hyde's blood. attention, Neil said, "Come with me through the partially opened door into

At that moment Neil and Hydo were on the fatal spot.

Neil flung off his coat and waistcoat and stood with bared breast on the spot his second indicated. Hyde removed his fine scarlet coat and handed it to Capt. Earle, and would then have taken his sword; but Beekman advanced to remove also his waistcoat. The suspicion implied by this act roused the soldier's indignation. and with his own hands he tore off the richly embroidered satin garment, and by so doing exposed what perhaps some delicate feeling had made him wish to conceal-a bow of orange ribbon which he wore above his heart.

The sight of it to Neil was like oil flung upon flame. He could scarcely restrain himself until the word "go" gave him license to charge Hyde.

Hyde was an excellent swordsman and had fought several duels; but he was quite disconcerted by the deadly reality of Neil's attack. In the second thrust his foot got entangled in a tuft of grass, and, in evading a lunge aimed at his heart, he fell on his right side. Supporting himself. however, on his sword hand, he sprang backwards with great dexterity, and thus escaped the probable death-blow. But, as he was bleeding from a wound in the throat, his second interfered and proposed a reconciliation. Neil angrily refused to listen. He declared "he had not come to enact a farce;" and then, happening to glance at the ribbon on Hyde's breast, he swore furiously "He would make his way through the body of any man who stood between him and his just anger."

Up to this point there had been in Hyde's mind a latent disinclination to slay Neil. After it, he flung away every kind of memory, and the fight was renewed with an almost brutal impetuosity, until there ensued one of those close locks which it was evident nothing but "the key of the body could open." In the frightful wrench which followed, the swords of both men sprang from their hands, flying some four or five yards upward with the force. Both recovered their weapons at the same time, and both, bleeding and exhausted, would have again renewed the fight; but at that moment Van Heemskirk and Semple, with their attendants, reached the spot.

Without hesitation, they threw themselves between the young men. But there was no need for words. Neil fell senseless upon his sword, making in his fall a last desperate effort to reach the ribbon on Hyde's breast; for Hyde had also dropped fainting to the ground, bleeding from at least half a dozen wounds. Then one of Semple's the cause of quarrel, and who felt a sympathy for his young master, made as if he would pick up the fatal bit of orange satin, now dyed crimson in

But Joris pushed the rifling hand form, to be permanent, should secure the busy street. Mir:am returned to fiercely away. "To touch it would be a support from public opinion which her place and asked plainly, "What | the vilest theft," he said. "His own it is. With his life he has bought it."

IS TIME TO LINE UP idea. Tariff revision was the cam-

FOR THE POLITICAL FOOTBALL GAME IN 1904.

fariff is to Be the issue, and Wobblers Must Decide Whether to Remain Republican or Join the American Free-Trade League.

The Free Trader (organ of the American Free-Trade league) for November says:

"Now and during the next two years is the time for the Free-Trade league to gain the opening ear of the people, to educate their intelligence and direct their growing indignation until they rise in their might and make an end of protection monopoly.

President Lamb in an "appeal" to the people invites the Republicans who are nursing the Iowa and other ideas to join the free traders in the battle against protection. He says

"The true policy, the Plain duty, of these reformers is to ally themselves with advocates of free trade. Free traders do not concern themselves with the past belief of the present opponents of the Dingley tariff, and they do not ask for any retraction. They welcome these dissatisfied protectionists; and what they do ask of them is, no matter what led them to support protection in the past, that they should now realize and declare that the time has come for them to advocate a change of policy.

How proud Gov. Cummins, Director of the Mint Roberts and their allies should be to be thus welcomed to the free trade camp! In one sentiment we must agree with Mr. Lamb; a man must be one thing or the other; there is no middle ground, no straddling. Any departure from the policy of the American system of protection is a step into free trade.

Free traders know that they cannot carry out their wishes to the full. They will only be too glad to break the ranks of their opponents, to conquer by dividing. This is the only hope they have of gaining a victory for their un-American cause. They do not insist on their opponents becoming pronounced free traders; they are satisfied to have them renounce protection in whole or in part, but they want them to stay "dissatisfied."

As President Lamb says: "The reason why free traders believe it important that all reformers of the tariff should renounce adhesion to protection is the same which leads them to believe that they, on their part, are right in consenting to the gradual steps proposed by dissatisfied protectionists, even while confident that better measures could be taken. The reason is that measures of reshall be united and loyal. If tariff reform does not avow its intention of it may succeed at the polls, as in 1892, but it is sure to fall in Congress, as it did in 1894, and to be undone as in 1897, and the work must all be done over again. The tariff reform movement failed because it was abandoned by the dissatisfied protectionists, who had supported it in 1890 and 1892." This is the new free trade idea, and it is most acceptable. Let us be, as we must be, cne thing or the other, free traders or protectionists. If the tariff is to be the issue for 1904, and the battle is to begin now, let us line up where we belong and as we believe. Those who want a commission, or revision, or reciprocity, or any of the cure-alls, are in line with the Ameri-can Free Trade league, whether they want to acknowledge it or not. The proof of this is the fact that the league no longer calls upon the old guard of college professors for arguments, but contents itself by quoting from Cummings & Co.

paign issue only as the Democrats appeared as its champions, and Democratic tariff revision was voted down. The people voted for Republicans, not because they were revisionists, or because they were anti-revisionists, but because they were Republicans. Tariff revision by Republicans is a matter of schedules, not of principles The schedules were not an issue at the last election. The people did not vote on them; they never thought of them. They are a matter for adjustment in party councils, or party caucuses, and not in national elections, and while the people did not vote for revision, as Mr. Babcock says they did, neither did they vote against it -- Pittsburg Gazette.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON XIII, DEC. 28: GOLDEN TEXTS FOR THE QUARTER.

Golden Text-"Lord, Thou Hast Been Our Dwelling Place in All Generations"-Psalms $0:1-The Lessons for the Year.

First Review .- The Rise and Progress of the Hebrew Nation: The Founder, Abraham, about B. C.

The Family, the Patriarchs, The Egyptian Experience. The Exodus, B. C. 1491, Wilderness Discipline. The

The Conquest of the Promised Land, 1451.

The Rule of the Judges, B. C. 1427-1094. Time-About 900 years, from B. C. 2000-:100.

Countries-Chaldea, Palestine, Egypt, Arabia.

Lessons.-1. God is preparing a people, not for themselves alone means, making the whole world to be his kingdom.

The progress is slow, difficult, variable, but on the whole a steady growth.

3. There is seen to be a great variety of influences,-punishments, glorious works, manifestations of love, hard batgreat victories, revelations of God and his will, rewards of faithfulness, long discipline.

Second Review .- The Development and Growth of the Nation During Three Centuries:

Time-From B. C. 1451. Place-Palestine.

Persons-Give a character sketch of the leading persons, and the party they took in making the nation. Joshua, Caleb, Rahab, Achan, Gideon, Naoml, Ruth, Orpah, Ell, Samuel, Events-Appearance of the captain of the Lord's host. Arousing courage for a great work. Crossing the Jordan. A divine wonder. Capture of Jericho. A miracle and a sign. Defeat on account of Achan's sin. Reward of faithfuiness, though long deferred. Cities of refuge. Good advice from an aged man. The past teaching the future. The times. Mingled good and evil. The sins and crimes, disobedience, idolatry, unfaithfulness, wars and devastations on the one hand; and on the other the herolsms, the penitence, the long periods of prosperity, such glimpses of the inner life of the people as are furnished by Deborah, Ruth, Hannah. Boaz, Eli, Samuel. The victory of Gideon and his three hundred. The character of Ell and his sons. The call of Samuel.

Third Review.-An Ancient Pilgrim's Progress:

From the Bondage of Sin and Ignorance, on the Way toward a Perfect Life and a Perfect World.

1. The Egyptian bondage represents the bondage of sin and ignorance.

2. The Exodus represents the new start

3. The Wilderness Discipline: A leader. Manna or food from heaven. The pillar of cloud and fire, guidance by the Spirit and the Word. The tabernacle, religious services. Feasts. Living water, Grapes of Eshcol, Falling into sin, Sufferings, la bors, trials, victories, heips, delays, dying out of the old, and growth of the newer life.

4. Taking possession of our Promised Land. The new life fully entered upon. 5. The Promised Land held by enemies, beset with temptations.

6. The captain of the Lord's host. 7. Miracles of grace, heavenly helps (crossing the Jordan, the fall of 8. Some of the fruits of the land, forehand.

Then the tender thoughts which had lain so deep in his heart flew to his der at the last." lips, and he woo'd her with a fervor and nobility as astonising to himself my sweet Katherine! Who is there girl she is." that can take you from me?"

"No one will I marry. With my father and my mother I will stay."

love you, with the whole soul. You are to be my wife, Katherine?" "That I have not said."

"Katherine, is it true that Capt. Hyde is wearing a bow of your orange ribbon?"

bon I gave him."

"Why?"

"Me he loves, and him I love."

"You have more St. Nicholas rib- and kind. A word to Van Heemskirk bons? Go and get me one. Get a bow, or to the Elder Semple would be suf-Katherine, and give it to me. I will ficient. Should she not say it? wait here for it."

"No, that I will not do. How false, how wicked I would be, if two lovers suddenly rose, and, putting on his my colors wore!"

Hyde's breast. I will, though I cut the door; an hour after sunset I will his heart out with it."

He turned from her as he said the words, and, without speaking to Joris. passed through the garden gate to his own home.

In the calm of his own chamber. through the silent, solemn hours, when the world was shut out of his Heemskirk's driver passed, leading his life, Neil reviewed his position, but loaded wagon; and to him she gave he could find no honorable way out of the note. the predicament. He was quite sensible that his first words to Capt. earlier than usual, and Bram only Hyde that night had been intended to was in the store. He supposed the provoke a quarrel, and he knew that strip of paper to refer to a barrel of he would be expected to redeem them flour or some other household necesby a formal defiance. However, as sity. the idea became familiar, it became Its actual message was so unusual imperative; and at length it was with and unlocked for, that it took him a a flerce satisfaction he opened his moment or two to realize the words: desk and without hesitation wrote the then he answered the summons for decisive words:

ty's Service:

bear cannot allow the treachery and and felt all the fear and force of her dishonorable conduct of which you words; but for some moments he have been guilty to pass without pun- could not speak, nor decide on his first ishment. Convince me that you are step. more of a gentleman than I have reason to believe, by meeting me to-night as the sun drops in the wood on the it. Oh, no thanks! Do not stop for Kalchhook Hill. Our seconds can lo- them, but hasten away at once." cate the spot; and that you may have no pretense to delay, I send by bearer Semple was just leaving business. He two swords, of which I give you the put his hand on him, and said, "Elder, privilege to make choice.

"In the interim, at your service, "Neil Semple."

He had already selected Adrian Beekman as his second, a young man of wealth and good family. Beekman accepted the duty with alacrity, and. principal's instructions, that he found | lad!"

rose at his request and gave him her | murder is there to be, grandfather?" "It is a duel between Capt. Hyde and another. It shall be called mur-

"The other, who is he?" "The young man, Semple. Oh, Mir-as to Katherine. He reminded her of iam, what sin and sorrow thy sex all the sweet intercourse of their hap- ever bring to those who love it! There py lives, and of the fidelity with which are two young lives to be put in death he had loved her. "Oh, my Katherine. peril for the smile of a woman-a very

"Do I know her, grandfather?" "She passes here often. The daughter of Van Heemskirk-the little fair "Yes, till you learn to love me as I one, the child."

> "Oh, but now I am twice sorry! She has smiled at me often. We have even spoken."

Cohen, with his hands on his staff, and his head in them, sat meditating, perhaps praying; and the hot, silent "Yes. A bow of my St. Nicholas rib- moments went slowly away. In them, Miriam was coming to a decision which at first alarmed her, but which, as it grew familiar, grew also lawful

Perhaps Cohen divined her purpose, and was not unfavorable to it, for he cap, said, "I am going to see my kins-Well, then, I will cut my bow from man John Cohen. At sunset, set wide return."

> As soon as he had gone, Miriam wrote to Van Heemskirk these words: "Good Sir-This is a matter of life and death; so then, come at once, and I will tell you. Miriam Cohen." It was not many minutes before Van

That day Joris had gone home his father promptly. Miriam proceed-"To Capt. Richard Hyde of His Majes- ed at once to give him such information as she possessed. Bram stood "Sir-A person of the character 1 gazing at the beautiful, earnest girl,

> "Why do you wait?" pleaded Miriam. "At sunset, I tell you. It is now near no time have you to lose. At sunset, Neil and that d---- English soldier a duel are to fight."

He obeyed like one in a dream.

"Eh? Where? Who told you?" "On the Kalchhook Hill. Stay not for talk."

"Run for your father, Bram. Run, indeed, so promptly carried out his my lad. God help me! God spare the CHAPTER VII.

At "The King's Arms."

The news of the duel spread with the proverbial rapidity of evil news. Batavius heard the story from many a lip as he went home. He was bitterly indignant at Katherine, and hot with haste and anger when he reached Van Heemskirk's house.

Madam stcod with Joanna on the front stoop, looking anxiously down the road.

Just as Dinorah said, "The tea is served, madam," the large figure of Batavius loomed through the gathering grayness; and the women waited for him. He came up the steps without his usual greeting; and his face was so injured and portentous that Joanna, with a little cry, put her arms round his neck. He gently removed them.

"No time is this, Joanna, for embracing. A great disgrace has come to the family; and I, who have always stood up for morality, must bear it, too."

(To be continued.)

"BAIT" FOR WILD TURKEYS."

Hundreds of the Birds Have Fallen Before Gun of Expert.

Wild turkeys are still quite plentiful in some portions of North Carolina, as they also are in Arkansas, Texas, Indian Territory, Oklahoma and Southern Missouri, says the American Field, but just how long they will be plentiful in any of these states is a question, if the states possess a Gil McDuffie, as does North Carolina, who, it is said, only a short time since killed seven turkeys at one shot. It is claimed that McDuffie has killed 1,500 wild turkeys and 700 deer in his time. besides countless numbers of smaller game. The way he makes his war on turkeys is by "baiting." He finds where a flock of turkeys use and he lays a train of corn to a locality where he can arrange a good blind. The blind is made and corn is put out in good quantity for the turkeys not far away, he being careful to place the corn in such shape that when the turkeys feed upon it they will be well bunched. He then secretes himself in his blind and lies in wait for the turkeys. When they come and get bunched up over the quart or two of straightforward one of voting for corn, he turns loose with a shotgun, tho and the slaughter is tremendous.

Fence of Elks' Horns.

A fence nearly 200 feet long at Liv. ingston, Mont., is made entirely of horns of the elk-more properly called wapiti. These animals, like the others of the deer family, shed their horns once a year and grow new ones The old horns are found in large num bers in the forests and are used for various commercial purposes.

So let us line up for the great game of 1904, and let us all be honest enough to get on the side where we belong

BABCOCK AND REVISION.

Trade Idea. Representative Babcock's interpretation of the meaning of the result of the recent election is ingenious, but not conclusive. "if," he says, "the would have signified that the people want no tariff revision for the next as it would have been to accomplish anything in tion with a Democratic house and a Republican Senate." The impossibility of securing a revision of the th a Democratic House and Republican Senate is easily conceded. but nothing more. Had a Democratic House been elected Democrats would not have construed it as a rebuke to Democrats; Republicans could not have rejoiced in it as an indorsement. but it would have been universally regarded as a distinct encouragement to a free trade agitation. The people do not sustain and foster any set of national policies by voting the enemies of those policies a foothold in this government. They may some neasure up to such subtlety, but now their procedure is the plain, whose policies they approve and against those whose policies they ndemn. The issue of the campaign was not a deadlock between the two ses to prevent tariff revision by publicans, but matters in controsy between the parties. No Relican anti-revisionist appealed to people to elect a free trader for purpose of preventing revision. he Republican victory, like all other Republican victories, is a triumph of the protection idea over the free trade

Burlington Gazette "to base an argu ment in favor of a protective tariff on consistent progress toward free trade, the presumption that it promotes prosperity." Has Burlington no taxes for itinerant merchants? Is there no sentiment in Burlington based on the presumption that the prosperity of the city is promoted by buying at home? Are the artisans and laborers of Burlington satisfied that it is all the same to them whether they do the work of Burlington or whether the orders are placed in Chicago or St. Louis?

Help Home Labor and Produce

It appears very "ridiculous" to the Treasury Revenues.

Prosperity even for the few cannot long continue without employment for the many in productive industry. It is safe to say that Burlington people of the laboring class who are not working have poor credit at the stores. If conditions are such as to inforce idleness the loss of credit is expanded, and the loss of credit brings want, distress, business failure and panic. If things stop congestion follows, prices drop, money is locked up and the business of everybody is to make the worst of the situation.

The thing to do, if possible, is to keep the machinery going and the markets open. If there is plenty of work at a fair price prosperity is in the air. With opportunity to work abundant it is ridiculous to make argument against prosperity. How is labor to be well employed if left to nurse its shins and suck its thumbs? There must be work to do and remunerative wages. The presumption is that Burlington does not need to im-Democrais had won the house it port labor for its steady jobs, and no more does the United States. The protective policy is based on the presumption that it is wise to do as much of our own work as we can. Therefore in the business of raising revenue from imports the protective policy aims to give the advantage to home producers, to the end that our home labor may be prosperous. Protection promotes prosperity .- Sioux City Journal.

What Would Happen.

Any one of the great combinations that has to do with protected articles, if the protection is removed, will simply set itself to driving independent operators out of business until it has made a place for itself large enough to give it a profit under any and all conditions. There will not be a sign of trouble in the trust. But there will be a storm of bankruptcies on all sides of it. The outsiders will all go to the wall or they will go into the trust. That is the outlook in case of a Democratic Congressional victory this fall. and there is no way of escaping it except by a solid majority in favor of the prosperity of all instead of the prosperity of the few who would profit by a national panic .-- Columbus Journal.

Palladium a Costly Metal.

Palladium is a metal used for the mounting of astronomical instruments and costs $482 a pound.

tastes of the perfected life. 9. Renewing the covenant.

10. Cities of refuge, helps for the slips and failures and imperfections of our daily life.

11. The Judges, the great struggle of life. 12. Periods of rest, prosperity, growth;

the peaceful tenor of daily life 13. The call of God, to a consecrated life for the service of God and man.

Reaching for God's Hand.

It is recorded of Frances Willard's girlhood that in the summer twilight she was wont to lie upon the grass with her hand held up longingly for God to touch.

When we read her life story, the history of the toiling, strenuous, grandly successful years, we cannot help feeling that the young impulsive reaching out for the help of God's hand was characteristic of the mature woman as well as of the girl. In her joys and her sorrows, her successes and her defeats, there was always that childlike turning toward the sure sympathy and tenderness of her Father.

Would not life be wonderfully brightened and many of its tangles straightened if we reached out more constantly with confiding trust? Most of us indeed find it easy and natural to seek our Father's presence when trials come. How is it in the sweet, summer days when the fragrance of flowers is about us and there is the song of birds in our ears? Do we reach our hands up just as instinctively? It makes the days vastly sweeter and happier for us if we do, and surely it must please our Father.

The Money of God.

Friends, cast your idol into the furnace, melt your mammon down, coin him up, make God's money of him and send him coursing. Make of him cups to carry the gift of God, the water of life, through the world-in loving justice to the oppressed, in healthful labor to them whom no man hath hired, in rest to the weary who have borne the burden and heat of the day, in joy to the heavy hearted, in laughter to the dull spirited. What true gifts might not the mammon of unrighteousness, changed back to the money of God, give to men and women, bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh ?-George Macdonald.

Branching Out.

The Reformed church in the United States, better known as the German Reformed church, is showing great missionary activity. It has recently purchased from the Church Missionary Society of England a large mission plant at Lochow, Tunan, China, consisting of mission house, chapel, hospital and spacious grounds. The Church Missionary Society has moved its work further inland. Several additional missionaries have been sent to strengthen the force of the Reformed church in China.

Triumph of Protection Over the Free

two year impossible that di tariff W day 1

and face the opponent's goal.