Chairman Hanna has issued the formal call for the Republican National Convention to meet at Chicago on Tuesday, June 21st.

George Francis Train, one of the greatest as well as the most erratic writers and authors in this nation's history, died in New York City, Monday. He was born in Boston, March 24, 1829.

The dove of peace is hovering over Russia and Japan but within hailing distance. If the ink wells hold out we may expect the controversy to last to somewhere in the dim and misty future only to be witnessed by future generations.

The following resolution was passed unanimously by the executive committee of the Nebraska vice presidential committee at a meeting in Omaha, Jan. 7, 1904:

Resolved, That we favor and recommend to the Republicans of the state an early state convention for the purpose of unequivocally pledging the support of the state to the candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt for president and of John L. Webster for vice president, and that we favor and recommend the selection as delegates to the National convention of such persons only as are known to be earnestly and aggressively favorable to the candidacy both of President Roosevelt and of Mr. Webster.

The congressional investigation of the right of Apostle Smoot of the Mormon church to a seat in that august body is now on in all its glory. Smoot is understood to be one of the strongest pillars of the Mormon faith, which claims polygamy as one of its fundamental principles, and yet he avers he is not a polygamist in practice or profession, nor has subscribed to any oath to that effect, as all good Mormons are supposed to be required to do. Either Smoot deals very sparingly with gilt-edged truthfulness or any old kind of an apostle is good enough for the Mormon church at the present stage of the game. This is what congress is trying to determine. Possibly present day Mormonism considers it no great sin to prevaricate in the interest of the church, on the hypothesis that it is none of the Gentile's business anyhow. But it is up to congress to show up the Smooty aspect of affairs if it can.

There is a merry war on now between the medical fraternity on the one hand and the anti-toxine combine on the other. It seems that a new trust has been formed that controls, practically, within three firms all the anti-toxine output. The medical fraternity labels it the "death trust," and say it is nothing more or less than a traffic in human life, and make the claim that the trust has advanced the price of the product over 100 per cent. Thus it is that the trust and combine forces are fast sealing their own death casket by a hoggishness that will arouse the entire people into a specific demand for the removal of the trust blot, and it will be done quickly when once the people get aroused to the necessity for immediate action. The people are long suffering and forbearing, but the time is fast ripening for revolt and the trusts and combines are hastening their own destruction.

Is the expenditure of today more than the income of tomorrow?

Hope for success in all your undertakings, but hustle to make sure of it.

Rewards are granted to those who deserve them. 'Tis seldom one goes astray.

A single good Samaritan can give but little relief, but with a gigantic combination of such, inestimable good may be accomplished.

While none need to borrow trouble, it is always wise to be prepared for it. Borrowing trouble and being prepared for it are in no way connected.

The coal oil that Rockefeller has been furnishing for this part of the country is like a great deal of the combined trust stock, somewhat watered.

When death is meted out to you at the hands of the Creator, will He need seek his records for one to fill the vacancy thus made, or will any one be the equivalent?

In these cold, wintry days we do not forget the glory of the summer. We know that it will come back again in all its bloom and brightness. Neither let us be sorrowful when the shadow comes, for, it shall surely pass away and the springtime of hope again scatter its bright blossoms around our life path.

To keep the ball rolling some one must ever follow it up with an occasional push.

Scientists tell us that a perfect vacuum is difficult to obtain, but they have never examined the purses of most people.

The funeral of Governor Bushnell of Ohio occurred Monday morning, at Springfield, Ohio. There seems to be an unprecedented number of deaths lately of prominent men in the nation's history.

Look over the columns of the paper from week to week and notice the advertisements of our merchants and professional men. They want your business and ask for it.

Advertising pays. The paper is a medium of exchange of thought, a fountain of facts. The merchant has goods to sell. He wants your trade. He asks for it through our columns. The more you patronize the home merchant the more he can afford to advertise his goods.

The more he advertises the better paper we can afford to give our readers, and the better the paper the more the reader gets for his money. Is that not a good proposition? If so, buy of the merchant who advertises and help us to give you a better paper thereby. Thus the reader, the merchant and the paper furnish three links in the golden chain of prosperity that cannot be broken.
