WITH ILLUSTRATIONS BY DON C. WILSON (Copyright, 1902, by Little, Brown, and Company) (All Rights Reserved)

CHAPTER II. Through the weeks of the late summer, old Tatro, the butler, had been angered by his father's refusal to inattending the meetings held by the crease his already liberal allowance, peasants. But, being a firm believer had, with characteristic villany, let in the old regime, he had reported fall some insinuations impeaching the faithfully to Monsieur le Baron all that had transpired at these gatherings, telling him of the vicious ordered upon a mission which would speeches made by Fauchel, and of the latter's evident determination to influence the peasants against the people of the chateau.

after one of these reports from Tatro, uninvited guests, form a better idea the baron said, "Find Margot, and send her to me.'

When the faithful old servant had left the room his master looked out ted against the cloudless blue of the sky.

of the Huguenot minister clinging to his arm, had said, as he barred their ing air. way, "To-day, Monsieur le Baron, you have won, and have taken for wife her whom her dead father gave to me arms went quickly around the boy- flying like scared sheep; and the fight spring chickens had disappeared he when he refused you, a Papist. But ish form. "Is it thou, my beloved was ended. I warn you to beware of the day when | Pizarro?" I shall seek my revenge!"

The baron, in the strength of his vigorous manhood, and in the happy laughing as he kissed Jean's flushed dreams of his passionate love, had cheeks, while the baron looked on The dead had been laid in upper tles and long-settled countries. A very laughed at the melodramatic threat of his humble rival. And to-day, white-haired and lonely, he smiled disdainfully as he recalled it.

But the smile died softly in a sigh that was almost a moan, as thought of the narrow mound he had looked upon the spring before, banked with violets and snowdrops, in the old churchyard by the Loire, near the cottage where he had known a brief name of Etienne-how he had come year's dream of happiness.

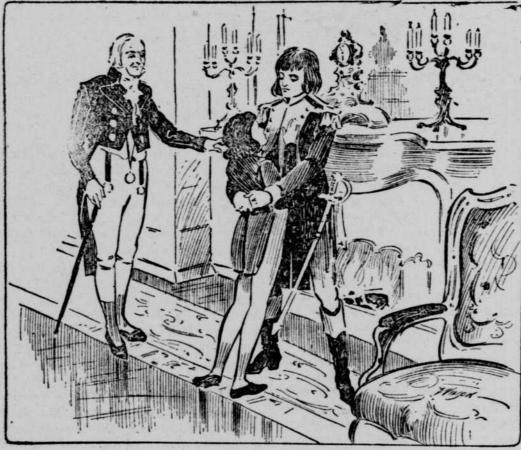

quested for the bearer and his escort. The fact was that Etienne, recently latter's loyalty to the Revolutionary cause; and the officer, who had been take him several leagues beyond the chateau, was instructed to stop there upon his return, the object being that the Committee might, from the man-On a certain September morning, ner in which the baron received his as to his true sentiments.

Jean did not deem it wise to present himself until the dinner hour should arrive, but had passed the of the window toward the park; but time in questioning Margot and Tatro his darkly circled eyes saw something as to the probable meaning of this quite different from the trees silhouet- strange invasion of the chateau's privacy. Then, going in to the dining- of mine for sparing my life." room with an unusually subdued air, They saw the pale, angry face of although his heart was fluttering with Tomas Fauchel, the young schoolmas- excitement, the lad's shyness evapo- caught by Leboeuf, and his dead form the most effective remedy he had on ter, who, meeting the baron as he rated in a glad shout at sight of the was not laid upon the floor before Gre- the ranch for the extermination of came from the magistrate's door with officer standing before the fireplace, the pretty, sixteen-year-old daughter where burning logs made cheerful the Fauchel's head, and tumbled him sort, but it also has a weakness for press, and at 10 o'clock the first apartment and warmed the chill even- from the ladder-dead as the man he spring chicken that made it an ex-

> "Aha!" he cried, precipitating himself upon his father's guest, whose

> "Truly it is, little Monsieur de Soto." answered Lieutenant Bonaparte, with amazement, and old Tatro paused in the report he was making as to the soldier's dinner in the outer hall, to stare with equal surprise at these demonstrations of affection between the stranger and his master's

> When they were seated the officer explained to Monsieur le Baron-although in a way not to bring in the to know the boy; and Jean, now quite

"Is it thou, my beloved Pizarro?"

got entered, and bade her to be seat- rattled on after a fashion that relieved

"Margot, I have sent for thee that | tertaining his guest. I may unburden my mind somewhat as to matters which have been weigh- ficer and his host were seated in the ing heavily upon me for many months | drawing-room, having a game of chess. past," he began.

der mingled with some alarm, as she long beyond his usual bed-time, watchcould see no reason for his words, nor | ing them from a near-by divan, when for the mood which seemed to inspire | Tatro, his face and voice showing the sumed more calmly, and dropping the le Baron! The peasants! A great familiar manner of speech he had previously used; "times when but a few | nue! Hark-you can hear their | country, tells a story of a pretty womhours suffice to turn affairs from ap- shouts!" parent security into confusion and danger. I-wish, therefore, to place a considerable sum of money in your their chairs; and Jean, all sleepiness friends that she would not marry terward and Mr. Bennett retains the care, for I feel that perhaps it may be safer with you than with me. It is all | them. I have of my own to give Jean; and it will relieve me to know that, no matter what may come to me, or however Etienne may seek to rob the boy, my Jean will never know actual

The baron was now standing by the side of his desk; and pressing the the hall, where they stood, with ready edge of a panel in the oaken wainscoting, it flew open, disclosing a the baron, who were nearer the stoutsmall recess, wherein were a small metal box and a number of little can- hubbub of voices now close to the

"Come here," he said, turning to look at Margot over his shoulder.

She came to his side. "See," he explained; "you do so, and so," showing her how to manipulate the secret spring. Then, after closing the panel, he added, "See now if you can open it." She did so, and the panel opened again. "Ah, that is well. Now you know where the boy's fortune is hidden, and I trust you to guard it for him. The bags contain gold coin, and the box holds a few jewels, that are his, as they were his mother's; also some papers, for which the future may show need, should any one seek to deprive him of his rights as my son. I shall leave it to your discretion as to when and where you will take them from their present hiding-place. Remember, Margot, I charge you solemnly, that when I am not here, ifif I am taken away, I trust you, above all others, to protect my boy's future, and provide for his welfare." "That will I do with my life!" Margot declared fervently. It was toward sunset that same day when Jean came running in to announce that he had seen soldiers riding up the winding roadway that led through the park.

until the cause of such a visit could out through some unobserved way, we be ascertained, Monsieur le Baron de- will make a detour, and treat our scended to the reception-room, where | friends to an attack in the flank." the officer in command of the soldiers soon presented himself, and de lit the hall for a moment; but they the flesh as I had putting it on I grandfather, the late Joseph Rogers, livered a letter from Couthon, in were quickly extinguished by the which the baron's hospitality was re- baron.

But he now roused himself as Mar- | in his element, and entirely at ease.

his father from any extra effort in en-

It was nearing ten o'clock. The ofwith Jean, very proud and correspond-Margot looked at him in silent won- | ingly sleepy, because of sitting up so greatest alarm, rushed into the room "These are troublous times," he re- and exclaimed, "Mon Dieu, Monsieur crowd of them are coming up the ave-

> The chessmen and board fell to the floor as both players sprang from banished from his eyes, stood beside again for at least two years. Just a box.

Bonaparte, speaking to Tatro. "Mon- formation that the wedding would sieur le Baron," he added, turning to take place in three months. him, "we will do all in our power for your protection."

The dozen soldiers appeared, and were ordered to post themselves in ly barred door, listening to the wild

The lieutenant waited until there was a lull in the noice; then, raising his voice, he called out, "Have a care what you do, for the baron is not without protectors. I am an officer of the Assembly; and in its name I bid you of over 250,000, and it is estimated

There was silence, as if those out- people in the two countries are keenly side were surprised at signs of an interested in Spiritualism.

unexpected resistance. side; with them were some women; called in Spiritualistic circles-and cess Alice of Hesse. and Tomas Fauchel was their leader. over 10,000 persons are in the habit of "Monsieur le Baron, will you per- engaging their services.-New York mit me to arrange the defence as I | Press. see fit?" inquired the young officer, turning to his host.

"Most assuredly, sir; for I have full confidence in your ability," was the reply. "Then extinguish every light in this hall, and close all the doors leading from it, so that all here will be in darkness," said the lieutenant, now speaking authoritatively. "And do you, Greloire,"-looking toward his soldiers-"with Murier and Leboeuf. stand here beside Monsieur le Baron. Watch that broken window, and put a ball into every head that appears there." Greloire saluted silently, and the officer continued: "If Tatro will act as Bidding the boy keep out of sight guide, to pilot myself and the others

Some of the hurled-in torches had

A moment later the discharge of musketry outside told that the lieutenant and his men had come upon the scene. Then the air was rent by more yells and imprecations, but with a sound in them bespeaking dismay on the part of the surprised maraud-

A second volley rang out, and the officer's voice was heard. "Steady, my men. Load and fire at will, or club your muskets. Teach these people a lesson—one in the name of the Assembly."

world on fire;
When de caterpillar's crawlin' An' de lazy crow's a-callin' An' de lightnin' bug hangs out his lantern so's we kin admire. sembly."

Those in the hall now saw a flaming torch thrust through the window. It was held by Tomas Fauchel, who waved it wildly as he shouted, "Show thyself, thou craven baron, for neither man nor devil shall force me from this place until I have kept my oath, and killed thee!"

The light of his torch fell upon the uplifted face-white and stern-of the baron, who said, laying his hand upon tne musket with which Leboeuf was taking aim at the half-crazed fanatic,

"Do him no harm, let him live." Fauchel, who had heard the words, answered them with a mocking laugh, and quickly extending his other hand, pulled the trigger of a pistol, as he

The baron reeled, for he was struck play with the boys. fairly in the forehead. But he was had assassinated.

An hour later the silence that wrapped the chateau would have repelled the thought of such an uproar having raged within it so recently. in the drawing-room with the lieuten- lia, some annoyance. Dressed in ant, who was now walking up and white and of human form, it suddenly clasp that was infinitely soothing.

(To be continued.)

Explanation That Hurt Vanity of Opera Singer. A certain well-known opera singer who has spent the summer in New York practicing, has heretofore been highly flattered by the utter absorpwhich seizes upon her landlady's little daughter whenever the piano is opened for the day's exercises. Whatever may be occupying the child, as that sound strikes the air she drops everything and hurries up to the one entranced. As she is a quiet little thing and the attention most flattering, no objection has been raised to her presence on such occasions. The disillusionment for the prima donna, however, occurred a few days since, when the child, having as usual been a rapt and attentive audience to the practicing, the performer turned at the close, and, smiling down at the little face peering in at the doorway, said in a pleased manner: "Well, little one, what do you think of it

Drawing a deep, long breath, the child looked her unblinkingly in the eyes as she gasped out: "Can't you just holler!"-New York Times.

Time of Penance Shortened.

with divorcees is probably as large as that of any other two men in this an who had just been freed from year later her engagement to another "Call my soldiers at once," ordered | man was announced, with the in-

"How's this?" asked one of her friends. "How about that two-year business?"

"Oh," she replied, "I have concluded in jail, you know."-New York Times.

The Great Army of Spiritualists. The number of Spiritualists in the United States and Canada is surprising, when the figures of the National Spiritualists' association are studied. The various societies tributary to that central body have a membership that more than a million and a half

The First Requisite. "Not long ago," said Nat Goodwin,

"I was lunching with a friend and two grass widows, neither of whom had been divorced. "One of the widows held up the wishbone of the chicken.

first," she said to the other grass widow. "'It seems to me,' remarked my friend grimly, 'that you'd better see

"'Let's see which will be married York Times. Why John L. Doesn't Train. John L. Sullivan, in one of the vaudeville houses, was telling the in eight feet of the surface. story of his career. Someone in the audience asked him why he did not train down and take some of the flesh off his stomach. He replied: "Boys, if I could have as much fun taking off old "King's Arm," owned by his

An Object of Aversion. When de sun starts in a-shinin' like he ord with this gun of 149 foxes. never gwine to tire An' his onies ambition was to set de

Den you hears a soun' as 'stressin' as a soun' kin ever be, Dat locus' bug is tunin' up his fiddle in

Dar's a law to stop de rooster when he crows too loud at night
An' one to stop de boys dat don' control deir voices right.
Dar is laws pertectin' silence
F'um mos' every kin' o' vi-lence.
Exceptin' f'um dat no-'count bug dat

Dar ain' no use o' kickin' at his way so very free When dat locus' bug is tunin' up his riddle in de tree. -Washington Star.

Badger Firemen's Pet. The Phoenix firemen have acquired a new pet, the gift of A. J. Hansen of Kyrene. It is a badger raised from infancy on Mr. Hansen's ranch at Kytossed his torch into the half and more playful than either a cat or a yelled, "Die, thou damnable Papist, dog. It has dug itself a home several and take to hell with thee no thanks feet under ground near the engine house, but comes out frequently to

Mr. Hansen says the badger was pensive piece of property. His chil-His fallowers, terrified by the lieu- dren thought as much of it as any tenant's unexpected attack, were now | child ever did of a dog, but after 150 thought it was time for the badger to be deported.-Arizona Republic.

On Still Hunt for Ghost.

Ghosts are not confined to old cas rooms, and Margot had gone to her tangible one was recently causing the own part of the house, leaving Jean inhabitants of Pinery, South Austradown, and now sitting on the divan, confronted a resident, who, with his beside the passionately grieving boy, wife, was driving in a buggy. The to whom he spoke words of tenderest apparition so startled the horses that sympathy, stroking the dark hair, or they bolted. This added to the terholding the burning hands in a cool | ror of the wife, who wanted to jump headlong out of the vehicle. The man Some of the soldiers took turns at succeeded, however, in restraining the acounting guard in the lower hall, for horses and allaying the fears of his fear of a possible renewal of the at- better half, and then proceeded to tack. But the peasants' outburst was look for the ghost, but did not succeed evidently spent, for the present, at in catching it. The residents of Pinleast, as nothing happened to disturb ery are now out nightly with shotguns the silence of the succeeding hours. | looking for the mysterious form, as they believe the midnight prowlings of the ghost are not altogether uncon-WHAT ATTRACTED THE CHILD. nected with the disappearance of their best poultry.

Remarkable English Will.

Quite a curiosity in the register of deeds' office at Augusta, Me., is a copy of the will of Florentius Vassell, formerly of London. It is what tion with her powers of vocalization is termed an exemplified copy, and is probably a facsimile of the original, written artistically in the old English characters on eleven large sheets of parchment and is authenticated under the big seal of the lord archbishop of Canterbury, the head prima donna's door, where she sits as of the prerogative court, the supreme court of probate in England.

Remarkable Dietary. Paterson, N. J., has brought to view at various times no small number of eccentric persons. The latest freak in that community makes his breakfast of a cucumber, his luncheon of a carrot, a turnip or a raw potato, and eats a few nuts for supper. This devotee of a peculiar dietary never touches flesh or fish, wears very little clothing and sleeps out of doors except when rain is falling. He looks strong and well, and asserts that he never feels an ache or a pain.

Old Music Box Still Good. George H. Bennett of Norway, Me., Abe Hummel, whose experience that is nearly a century old. It plays as clear and sweet as when new and the seventy reeds are in perfect condition. It was formerly the property of Kendrick Cushman of Bethel, who bonds that were very galling. In her left it when he went to the gold mines joy at her release she declared to her in '49. He never was heard from af-

Will of Immense Length. The will of John Thompson, late of Galloway, Ohio, besides being the longest document of the kind ever presented to the probate court of Franklin county, is peculiar in various other ways. The will and its codicil that I'm entitled to eight months off of even date cover twelve feet of arms, behind their commander and for good behavior. Same as they get closely typewritten matter on pages a the same magnitude drawn for Mr. on account of failing health. Thompson by the same attorney.

Youth of an Empress. The youth of the Czarina of Russia was passed in a very different atmosphere from that of the magnificent has to continually be sprayed over Russian court. Her father's means the miners working a lode. The tem were very limited, and she was trained to have as few wants as possible. says the Lady's Realm. She had no maid to dress her and take care of There are over 1,500 professional her clothes, which were often made There were more than fifty men out- mediums-or "psychics," as they are by the hands of her mother, the Prin-

> New Fuel a Success. It was for $10. from peat. The peat used contains 90 per cent of water, of which 20 to 25 per cent is removed by means of an electric current. The peat is then further dried and passed through a pieces. Osmon is free from sulphur and burns without slag or smoke. Much Labor Wasted. George E. Churchill of Fort Fairfield. Maine, recently drilled a well which will be unmarried first."-New to the depth of 250 feet without obtaining a satisfactory supply of water. Within seven rods of the same place he started another well and struck a seemingly inexhaustable supply with-Gun Has Killed Many Foxes. J. Riley Rogers of Byfield, Mass. has in his possession a gun of the ably been killed than any gun in these of every language spoken in the world. of it.

parts. Mr. Rogers himself has a rec-

Interesting Mexican Stamps. have an interesting history. They are not really stamps, but merely labels applied to the envelope in interior towns to indicate the amount of postage required to carry the pieces of mail from a Mexican seaport to the point of destination. They are some times found canceled, but this is accidental, having been done when the Mexican stamps upon the piece of mail were canceled.

Conscience May Trouble Her. Busy Body, a big maltese cat who makes her home at the railway shops at Indianapolis, Ind., and is the pet of everyone from the president down to the humblest employe of the road, after establishing a record of killing rene and is as tame as a kitten and more than 10,000 rats and mice, has, with charming feline inconsistency, adopted four tiny mice.

> Trees Quickly Made Into Paper. Three trees were sawed down in Elsenthal, Austria, one morning recently. At 9:34 a. m. they had been converted into pulp and became pa-The entire time consumed was 145 Libby prison: minutes.

Immense Block of Granite. green granite ever quarried was to do the work while others rested, knew of the work in No. 5, but as his shipped from Windsor, Vt., last week. and all went on in the every day rou- informant had not told him correctly, The stone was taken from the Nor- tine as usual. On the 20th, after tak- then began to sound the entire floor cross quarry, and measured 15 feet in ing most careful measurements, the with crowbars, but so carefully had length and was between three and digging was begun. A shaft was to the work been carried on that it was four feet square. Its weight was be- be sunk in both prisons to a depth of a long time before the openings were tween 15 and 20 tons.

Hen Hatched Eggs of Eagles.

in hard luck, never having been al- extended down six feet to the plane lowed by her owner to hatch out a of the road outside. The work prog- prisoners were removed from the nest of chickens. This summer she gressed rapidly, but the difficulty was | yard which inclosed Nos. 5, 6, 7, into wandered away from the farm, and to dispose of the loose earth. It was the inclosure on the north side which later was found sitting on an eagle's done in this way: A little at a time | contained Nos. 1, 2, 3, but as there nest. The eagles had been killed and was emptied into the stream which was no suspicion of the attempt in this hen hatched the eggs.

Poor Mary. heard on an electric car in that city bring some lime into the prison under and then removed to No. 4, as No. 2 recounting to her companion the tri the prétense of whitewashing the was badly out of repair. The prisonals of a friend. "Why Mary tele | walls, whitewashing the openings. No. | ers did not give up all hope, but for phoned to a lot of her friends this 5 being unoccupied, and no guard be- the present kept very quiet. A court morning to find out how to make a ing posted there, digging was also of inquiry was held, and several war cake! You see she didn't know how begun in that prison. A large hollow tried, but as the penalty was death much soda to use." of a large number in an office gets on ber the tunnel had much increased, Angeles Herald. one's nerves. One man has made a rubber device to kill the noise and a second has made a glass case which incloses everything but the keyboard and the roller.

Seek Noiseless Typewriter.

Mouse Plays Banjo.

Mr. H. C. Nelson of South Caribou, Maine, has a wonderful mouse which has successfully learned to play a banjo. So expert has he become in picking the strings that the cat has become charmed, and the cat and the mouse lie at ease in their domestic relations.

Left Out Particulars. One town clerk in Washington counretary of state without naming the man elected for representative. He once it was no laughing matter to me, and feet. simply stated in the return that an I can tell you. election had been held on the day named and let it go at that.

Eels Clogged Mill Wheel. The water wheel at the snuff fac tory at Byfield refused to run freely has a unique and valuable music box, the other day, and on entering the wheel pit it was found that the whee' was entirely wound up and entangled with eels, which had been attracted by the lights in the mill.

> Cat Is Prolific. James Honod of Still River has cat which although but 18 months old has had four litters of kittens Why numbered 5, second 7, third 8 and the fourth 9, making a grand total of 29. Postoffice a Family Affair. For over fifty years the postoffice in Alton, Me., has been in the hands of one family, husband, wife and sons successively, until recently, the youngfoot wide, and is the second one of est son, Frank McKechnie, resigned

> Mine Down 3,000 Feet. There is a gold mine in Australia which is 3,000 feet deep, and the various tunnels are so hot that cold water like this:

perature is usually 108. Got Her Big Check. tol, R. I., wrote to her father from the scholar in one, and Admiral Togo the mind of a Samurai youth is the Williamsport, Pa., asking him to send is not false to the ideal; Le is a stu- importance of attaining coolness of her a big check. He sent her one dent as well as a fighter.

Watch More Than a Century Old. A man named Tiffany of Bristol, Conn., has just received from a Win sted friend a watch formerly owned by his grandfather. It is an open face machine which breaks it up and bullseye, over 125 years old and keeps forms it into briquettes or nut-shaped good time.

> Late Hours and Longevity. A statistician affirms that the majority of people who attain old age have kept late hours. Eight out of ten who reach the age of 80 have never approach. I sat down on the grass at this. It hopped to and 2:0 busily, as gone to bed till after 12 at night.

Tortoise 300 Years Old. Zealand that weighs 970 pounds. It is known to be over 300 years old.

Knows All Languages.

THE WORLD'S CLEARING HOUSE

Chicago is the Central Figure of Time, and the Cynosure and Cesspool of the Universe-the apt characterization of George Warrington Steevens, the Celebrated English Man of Letters, Who Perished at Ladysmith, cut off in his prime. "His death eclipsed the gayety of nations"-We may say with Dr. Samuel Johnson.

Monday Sund March In the big old clumsy city sprawling 'round the inland sea, She smiles a sumptuous siren, lures you ever to her side, She's a captivating lassie, shy and piquant as a bride.

And no matter where you wander you may not escape her spell. You'll be homesick for old Halsted as the murmuring ocean shell, As the storm-tossed sailor's yearning is for his native shore You'll be longing for Chicago and State street's mighty roar.

Clearing House of every nation under-neath the sapphire sky. Ten thousand factory whistles fling their challenge fierce and high: Granary of hungry nations, famishing for meat and bread; hatelaine of western prairies o'er the living and the dead jest and song and boyish shout,

When you move away from State street, you are merely camping out. Leaving home and friends behind you, Porte de Mar stamps of Mexico Two million people cluster in Chicago Always roaming like Ulysses, with a ave an interesting history. They are Always trailing like a gypsy, questing for fair greensward goal.

Take me back to old Chicago, where they're always on a strike.

Where there's always something doing, like Jim Bludsoe on the Pike.

Oh the big old city calls me like a mother to her side.

I have toamed a graceless truant, swollen with rebellious pride.

Take me back to old Chicago far across the sundering sea. Let me get in touch with Halsted-Bubbly Creek's the place for me.
What's the good of always roving like a swallow on the wing.

Sveeping like a stealthy sea gull always yearning for the spring. I ways roaming like Ulysses with a fierce and hungry soul, Trailing like a swarthy gypsy, sashaying to the farthest Every man brags of his birthplace-Chicago is the town for me—

Oh the big old clumsy city, sprawling round the inland sea!

JAMES E. KINSELLA. Registry Division, Chicago Postoffice

Prisoners

both guard and prisoners, to see that Capt. Shortland entered the prison no undue communication went on be- with a large guard, and walking The largest block of Ascutney tween them, and enough were told off directly toward the hole, said he twenty feet, and then at this depth discovered. He then questioned many a tunnel 250 feet long was to be be- as to what they had done with the gun. This would carry the excava- earth, but all answered that they ate A hen in vermont has always played tion beyond the outer wall, which it. ran through the court at four miles an No. 4, that prison was left as it was. hour, each of the men emptying a The other tunnels were filled with small quantity when unobserved, large stones, and the captives were A Portland, Me., woman was over They also obtained permission to kept in No. 2, while this was done, spot was soon found, and large quanti- the evidence was not considered sufties of earth were removed to it. A ficient to convict. Afterward the dislamp was kept lighted to expel the covery of the plan was thought to Several inventors are now at work foul gas, and in a month the tunnel have been made through the turnkeys

In his article on the American pris- | and the openings were so cleverly conners of war of 1812 at Dartmoor, cealed that they were not discovered loire had planted a musket-ball in mice, gophers and other pests of that per, passed from the factory to the John G. McNeel tells of an attempt to by the guard. They were so small escape from the prison which rivals at the top that but one man could printed and folded paper was issued. the famous attempt to escape from squeeze in, although within the tunnel four could walk abreast. "A committee was formed to watch

"On the 5th, to the horror of all,

"To prevent further attempts the on a noiseless typewriter, as the sound had grown to forty feet. In Septem- hearing voices in the tunnel."-Los traveling on a train and quite fre- himself to my hat, as I discovered quently when he puts up for the night | later on.

in a strange place. The story of how he formed this habit came out one night several the pillows of his sleeping car berth. "I guess I'll never break the habit," laughed at, as you're doing now. But an amusing spectacle as regards head

One summer time when vacation was | would give the shopkeepers confidence close at hand my father promised me in me. There was only one thing to that I could spend it in the field with | do, and I did it. I tramped around him, and as soon as I was permitted | Washington looking up my father's to leave the academy on furlough I friends, and when I found one I took the train south to join him. from a fine night's slumber and start- of the articles of clothing I needed ed to put on my boots. To my horror | most. And you can rest assured that they were not where I had placed when I took my boots off that night high and low they could not be found. | so ever since."

Gen. Fred Grant always sleeps with | Some rascal had walked off with them his boots under his head when he is in the night and he had also helped

"I was in a nice dilemma and matters were helped only slightly by the porter scurrying around and finally years ago when a fellow traveler be- raking up a pair of dilapidated rubheld the general occupied in carefully bers and an old hat that looked as tucking his foot covering underneath if it had been through a season's campaigning. But I had to make the best of the situation and when I said the general in his slow, easy- stepped forth into the cold world at ty, Vt., made his returns to the sec going way, "no matter how much I'm Washington I must have presented

> "I didn't have enough money with "While the civil war was being me to buy new boots and hat; neither fought I was a cadet in West Point. | was I armed with any letters which poured my troubles into his ears and "I was in high spirits until I awoke he graciously advanced me the price them, and though I searched for them | I slept upon them, and I've been doing

Togo Wins Success

The world knows Admiral Togo as , the teachings of the school of Yomei. a man of the sword pure and simple. It seems to me that a soldier can de-The world, as often, is mistaken. He rive a great deal of benefit from the is something greater than a fighter; study of Yomei." as a judge of men he ranks much ficult task of a commander, and at whom our people know under the the rarity of mistakes that he makes name of Yomei. The school of Yomei in the choice of his subordinates. emphasizes a perfect poise of the There is a saying among the men of soul. The students of Yomei value the Nippon navy that runs something man is Admiral Togo."

three feet long and 19 inches wide. "I am no scholar," he is reported to In the eyes of the Nippon fighting have said. "From my early youth, men these qualities are much more however, my masters have compelled | important than the clever handling me to examine and follow carefully of sword or gun.-The Century.

Toad Ate Piece of Plantain When Bitten by Enemy. Naturalists, keeping their eyes open, see more than other folks. A naturalist said in a club:

beside them. very quick and fierce. He was the biting it again and again. One of the oldest known living ani aggressor. He would dodge about, mals on earth is a tortoise in New circle, retreat, advance, and then, too busy looking for another plantain. presto! all of a sudden he would be As it searched its hops became weak on the toad's back, biting away for and erratic. The spider's poison dear life.

"The toad, with a movement of its | while it fell over on its side dead. The academy of Lincei, Italy, has forefoot, would brush the spider off, awarded a prize of $2,000 to Prof. and then it would hop to a plantain ist ended, "that toads find in the plan-

The admiral is certainly not the higher than a soldier. His men never first or the only soldier of Nippon cease to marvel at the ease with who has acknowledged his debt to the which he accomplishes the most dif- teachings of the Chinese philosopher more than anything else the quiet balance of nerve, the equilibrium which "There is only one commander cannot be disturbed by a little thing who uses his subordinates like his like a bursting shell within a few own fingers, and the name of that feet of a man or a sword gleam a few inches before the eyes. The first The old time ideal of the Samurai lesson that a master of sword or a Miss Annie W. Manchester of Bris | was the welding of the soldier and | master of jiu-jitsu tries to instil into nerve and perfect poise of the soul.

"A poisonous spider and a toad were fighting so fiercely in a field recently that they didn't notice my | The poor creature seemed distressed

"This fight lasted for an hour. The aggressive spider would bite the toad; the toad would eat the plantain; the combat would go on again. "I, to vary the monotony, tore the plantain up and put it in my pocket. Thus, the next time the toad came to eat it, there was no plantain there. though in search of another plantain. "The spider was a big, black fellow, and the spider, meanwhile, followed it. "But the toad paid no heed. It was > seemed to be working on it. In a little "I am now convinced," the natural-would gladly do it any day in the with which more foxes have prob. Trombetti, who is said to be master that grew by my hand and eat a piece tain leaf an antidote for the poison