When Does Brown Move?

Tell me ye winged winds
That round our pathway rove,
Whisper lowly in our ear,
When does Brown move?

Our rent ran out last month,
Today to prevent a shove
Our heart will grateful be,
If Brown will move.

We hope he don't read this,
Prevent, ye powers above,
Or else, as sure as fate,
Ed Brown won't move.

Swanson & Smith having moved their shoe store to the first door east of Conhiser's store, wish to thank the public for their patronage in the past and invite all to visit them in their new location.

An exciting runaway occurred near the stockyards last Monday afternoon. Charley Barnes' team became scared at the cars and ran away, throwing out Barnes and his wife and baby and afterward collided with a team belonging to Joe McMullen, which joined them in getting up a first-class excitement. No one was seriously hurt and beyond damage to the vehicles all ended well.

The school board met last Saturday evening and elected Prof. J. A. Briggs of Bridgeport, Cheyenne county, Nebr., as principal of our public schools for the coming year. They also re-elected Misses Henry Young and Nettie Conger to the departments they have taught for the past two years, and re-elected Prof. Nicolson to the grammar department. Miss Rae Harris of Ashton was elected to succeed Miss Hickman in the intermediate department, and we understand Miss Hickman can have the position of assistant principal, if she so desires, in place of Miss King who failed to make application for the place. The following telegram is self-explanatory:

J. S. Pedler, Loup City, Neb., May 15.—J. A. Briggs is all right and good man for school; broad and successful experience.

The following are the latest additions to the Loup City Telephone exchange south of town: Mrs. Zink, Mrs. Ogle, Jas. Bentfrow, Thomas Bags'ey, Jos. Leui, J. B. Komer, John Needham, John Heil, John Vandergriff, Geo. S. Keeler and Wm. Couden.

Smith and Hover last Saturday sold a fine bunch of 73 fat steers to Rogers and Sutton of Ord, receiving the neat sum of nearly $5000 therefor. Two of the best brought $140. It was one of the finest lot of fat steers ever marketed from this point.

Mrs. A. H. Potter drove over from Litchfield, Monday, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Laura E. Edwards and her son's wife, Mrs. C. A. Potter, the latter ladies returning to Litchfield the same day, while Mrs. Potter remained over night the guest of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Pratt, and Tuesday went to Comstock, where she was to deliver the Memorial address that day.

The Carnival committee is fast getting things in tangible shape for the great event. Great bodies move slowly, but when they get under good headway they are an irresistible force. The committee is hard at work, and with medium avoirdupois Mathew holding the scales between our skeletonized friend Mullick and heavyweight Starr, so that we may be sure of evenly balanced results. Anyway, by next week we expect to give some tangible news of the Carnival.

Married, at the office of the County Judge, May 31st, 1905, at 12 o'clock, Mr. G. E. Leatherman and Miss Tillie Christensen, both of Sherman county. The parents of both bride and groom are old residents of Sherman county and are well known throughout the county. The young people start out in life with the best wishes of all their friends. We do not know where they will make their future home, but hope that they will continue to live in Sherman county.

Married at the court house in Loup City, May 29th, 1905, Mr. Oscar B. Bryant and Miss Lizzie Belle Oyster, both of Buffalo county. While Miss Oyster is now a resident of Buffalo county, she was born in Loup City and for a number of years lived in this county, being a granddaughter of Geo. Gilbert. Mr. Bryant is a mason by trade and is now working at his trade in Ravenna. Our best wishes go with them. The ceremony was performed by County Judge Angier.

John O'Bryan came home from Grand Island last Saturday for a short vacation.

The Loup City boys go to St. Paul next Monday to do them up in the National game.

The Litchfield Telephone company placed a phone in the county clerk's office last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henning Claussen of Washington township were Loup City visitors last Thursday.

McKinnie Bros have just completed a mammoth hog pen 16x65 feet, with a capacity of twenty pens.

Work is progressing rapidly on Wm. Criss' new residence, under direction of contracting carpenter Walter Smith.

E. F. Jones' aged mother from Rock Island, Ill., arrived last week on a visit. She is past 80 years of age and traveled entirely alone.

Reports were received here Monday of a destructive hail storm along the south line of Sherman county, Sunday, devastating crops to quite an extent.

Mrs. Gasteier took a business trip to Grand Island, returning as far as St. Paul that evening and visiting Miss Kittie Erskine till Saturday noon.

Mrs. Blanche Christy left yesterday for her home at Central City, taking with her Miss Blanche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Draper, for a protracted visit.

The First National Bank have their steel money box moved out and also the vault is being moved. Geo. Broadwell of Grand Island is here moving the old buildings and their new one will be started at once.

The school picnic which was to have been held at Jenner's Park last Friday was postponed till next Friday, on account of the bad weather. Better luck next time, we hope.

Ohlsen Bros. have been awarded the contract for the erection of a brick building for Herman Jung, just west of his bakery, the same to be 23x40 feet and two stories in height.

Willis Waite was down from Yale township in Valley county, yesterday, on business. Willis says owing to the lateness of the season nearly all of the farmers are obliged to replant their corn. He will commence his re-planting Monday.

While Capt. E. H. Jenkins of Columbus was visiting the McKinnie boys a short time since, he established a government rain gauge at their ranch. Since that time, although it never rains in Nebraska, the gauge has been doing a daily stunt all the same.

Edgar Draper, the photographer, was down from Arcadia, Monday. He goes from there this week to Comstock with his gallery. Mrs. Draper will go up and stay with him while at Comstock. Mr. Draper expects to return here this fall and build a photograph gallery.

St. Paul yesterday did the Loup City boys on the home diamond by a score of 10 to 5. The game was a pretty one throughout, and but for a few untimely errors on the part of some of our players the game would have broken nearly even. In the evening a dance was given in Society Hall which in point of numbers and a good time was one of the best of the season.

Last week we spoke of Judge Wall taking Diesterhauf back to the pen on account of his general incorrigibility. This week we record that by the time the judge got Diesterhauf in sight of the place of detention the fellow concluded he would be good after this and the judge's tender-heartedness led him to give another trial and Diesterhauf returned the next day.

W. R. Storrs, of Council Bluffs, the cashier of Culley's new bank at Sargent, informs us that they have let the contract for the bank building to Ohlsen Bros. and it will be one of the neatest and best apportioned in this section of the state. Mr. Storrs comes with the highest recommendations as a conservative, safe and efficient man, and A. P. Culley and the people of Sargent and vicinity may be congratulated on his selection for that important post of duty.

Dr. Sylvester Person of Stanton, this state, was here last week, in company with Geo. E. Pugh, of the firm of Vining, Appelby & Pugh, of that city, and purchased of Gunnarson & Zimmerman, $19,125 worth of Sherman county land. Dr. Person is one of the heaviest investors in land in the state, besides being a leading physician of his part of the state, and his investment in Sherman county land is an eye-opener on the value of our farming lands. Investors are getting their weather eye on Sherman county, one of the best in the state.

NEBRASKA GIRL IN OREGON

Continuation of Series of Interesting Letters.

NEHAMA, Ore. The trees extended nearly half way up the mountain and then ceased until we near the summit.

When we were half way up the Baby and the guide left us and went to explore Bear Cave which it is thought no other lady has ever visited.

We gained the summit and in about an hour were joined by the explorers.

The top of House Mt. Rock is broad and level and is an immense wild flower garden. There is such a variety of them too, including phlox and various other varieties that are usually found only in our gardens.

It is thought that this was once a favorite resort of the Indians, and that the circular paths around the central part of it were made by them in their sun dances, war dances, ghost dances, etc. At that time the Rock extended much further out, but there came an earthquake and great masses of rock fell down. The Indians thought the Great Spirit was angry with them and hurried away. To this day no Indian will go back there.

Just before coming down we had the most beautiful view of Mt. Jefferson.

Just imagine a beautiful painting of a snow-capped mountain glorified, and you may get a faint conception of how it looked for a few minutes as the sun shone on its pure white snow fields and frowning chasms.

We leaned out over the precipice till we could look straight down for five or six hundred feet, and when we rolled some stones down, it was nine seconds before we could hear them strike.

The guide climbed a tree and gathered some cones for us and we brought home many other souvenirs.

At last we returned to camp, our minds too full of the wonders we had seen to realize how tired we all were.

We sat down under the trees to rest when we were something over half way home and let the calm silence of the twilight hour steal into our hearts.

The Baby sang for us and echo repeated the pure notes of her voice, making the sounding aisles of the dim woods ring.

On reaching camp we were obliged to come down to the prosaic work of getting and eating supper, but even this could not take away from our minds the feeling of awe and adoration for the divine creator of all that sublime beauty and grandeur. The one hundred and twenty-first Psalm kept recurring to our minds. "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help." "My help cometh from the Lord," etc.

Before retiring we went down to the lake to look at the Rock by moonlight.

In the morning my first conscious thought was that we were going home and that I must say goodbye, perhaps forever, to the scenes we had enjoyed so much. As we packed up and started for home, I believe we all felt thankfulness for the unalloyed pleasure of the outing, mingled with regret, that it was all over. And yet is it all over? Will not those days be lived over in our memories so long as life shall last?

We made much better time returning than going to the Rock, and the hill that had seemed so long and hard when we were ascending it, was passed over without a thought of anything except the view it afforded us of the valley below. But I had nearly forgotten to tell you about the big maple which we saw. We left the trail and wandered through swamps and underbrush to see what our guide called the largest maple in Oregon. It was about seven feet thick and well worth going to see.

O! If it were possible to transplant just one of these noble trees to my Nebraska home, what a glorious sight it would be to see it growing there. Here they are so common that it seems as if most people only think of rooting them up or wonder how many feet of lumber can be made from each of them.

We reached home tired but happy. That evening a rich miner stopped with our host for supper and you should have seen the Baby smile at him. It is an open secret that she is looking for a multi-millionaire who has poor health and wants to sign over everything to the woman who will undertake to brighten his declining days, not years.

The next morning we bade goodbye to our kind friends and started home, but stopped on our way to explore Bear Den following a trail through the woods and up the mountain's side and were surprised to find a great field of rocks with masses here and there looking like minarets of solid irregular masonry.

In one of these is the Den, a cave extending back and down for seventy-five feet. There were innumerable bats which were frightened by our torches and flew out.

We hadn't time to explore the whole den and soon returned to our team and stopped at a spring to eat our lunch.

Two young men from Nehama passed us and hurried on to spread the news of our return among the village gossips.

We were too late to go to church so we walked over to the petrified stump and watched the water foaming and tossing up its silvery spray in the rapids just beyond the stump, for an hour or so.

Then as we neared home we sat down on the river's bank and watched the moon rise.

If nothing happens to prevent our going I will have many more scenes to describe to you.

Yours Truly,
THE NEBRASKA GIRL.
