BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

Life of Grandma Beck.

It is not possible, in the brief space allotted, to give anything like a detailed resume of the past life and endeavor of the aged mothers, whom we would honor in these short sketches. Often the sense of hearing or memory may be impaired and it is not easy for the subject to recall the facts and scenes of their past life.
As we gaze into their dear old faces the eye seems to speak:
"Grow old alone with me.
The best is yet to be:
The last of life, for which the first was made."
So you must read between the lines when we sketch the bare record events of a life, for there is no romance in a plain recital of facts. Your imagination must touch with color a life-time of ninety summers and winters, and perhaps only those nearest and dearest can appreciate the history of such a length of days.
The subject of this short biography, Harriet Bover, was born on a farm near Reading, Pa. She no doubt inherited her rugged physique from her German ancestors. Being the oldest of seven children, her energies were necessarily absorbed in domestic duties. At the age of twenty-six, she married Josiah Beck and they continued to live near Reading for some thirteen years. Her husband was a potter by trade, making the crockery out of clay found on his own farm, drying it, and selling it at Philadelphia. Later they moved to Illinois and, finally settled on a farm in Carroll county, Missouri, the town of Bosworth, Mo., being built on this land. The old Missouri farms always speak of homely comfort. There the spring or milk house, the dry house as the building is called where they dry the fruit, the smoke house, where the hams are hung to the rafters, and there is a settled look to the surroundings that is wanting in most of the farm homes of the newer west. Here their family of seven children grew to manhood and womanhood and went out to take their places in the world. Five are still living, worthy representatives of a self-denying, self-sacrificing mother, who felt her mission in the world was to train her sons and daughters to be a credit to any community in which they lived. Of a nature warm to its own, kindly to all, calm, equable, self contained and faithful in the domestic round of everyday duties, the tender joys of her existence was bound up in her home and children. This the simplest record of a life.
The psalmist would tell Mother Beck that she had the hand of a fighter. Her German ancestors fought for the fatherland, her grandfather served in our Revolutionary revolt, her husband in the war of 1812 and her son in the Civil war. Heredity tells, and patriotism is a prominent virtue in her character.
Her church home is with the Baptist persuasion, but the infirmities of age make it impossible for her to attend service, and her German bible is near at hand and she quietly waits for the summons, "well done."

She has made her home for the last fourteen years, since the death of her husband, with her children, at present with her daughter, Mrs. Clemma Conger. It is a benediction to have an aged mother in the home, and from our acquaintance with Grandma Beck, we can realize what the loneliness will mean to this faithful daughter when "Mother is called home."

Supervisors Do Business.

County board met as board of equalization as per adjournment of July 3, present Fred Schroll, Henning Clausen, W O Brown, W H Chapman, G W Brammer and R M Hiddleston, supervisors and G H Gibson, clerk, and the following business was had and done, to-wit:
D C Grow being absent R M Hiddleston was made chairman pro tem.
R J Nightingale appeared before the board as attorney for W R Mellor in support of the motion of the latter requesting that board reconsider their action of June 15th, and place the valuation of petitioners from Oak Creek, Ashton and Scott township, as they were for 1904. After hearing both sides, Mr T S Nightingale appearing on behalf of the people, the board unanimously voted to leave their action stand and give these people the relief the law permitted.
Supplemental petitions filed by parties from above named townships who had not signed former petitions were allowed and clerk ordered to make proper deductions on their real estate values.
Request of Aug. Beushausen for a reconsideration of his request for a lower valuation on Sec. 19, 15-13, was denied.
By motion the following levies for consolidated county taxes for 1905 were ordered: General fund 6 mills; bridge fund 4 mills; road fund half mill; refunding bond interest 4 mills; bridge bond interest half mill; sinking fund 5 mills; total 20 mills.
Levies as filed with clerk and ordered by township, village and school boards throughout the county were approved and by motion ordered placed on the tax list.
County averages on personal property were found as follows:
Horses $6.40; cattle $3.27; mules $7.45; sheep 29 cents.
Valuation as found for county was as follows:
Personal.....$308,610
Real Estate.....663,663
Village Lots.....52,168
Rail Roads, etc.....351,201
Total.....$1,375,642
To which is added the 10 per cent as ordered by state board in 1904, $100,012, which brings the total up to $1,475,654.
Opinion on allowing supplemental petitions, filed by county attorney, Board adjourned sine die.
