BY CHARLES MORRIS BUTLER Author of "The Revenge of Pierre," A Tenement Tragedy, "Anila" Ele. Copyright, 1905, by Charles Morris Butler.

CHAPTER XXVIII.—Continued. retreat to civilization should be begun and most spirited horses were then at once, while the confusion reigned on the inside, and before the main entrance to the tunnel should be dis-

When the party reached the main quarters in the cave, the plunder was divided up as to weight and value. It was estimated by the leaders that considerably more than a million had been captured, besides a large quantity of rare "Gems" and the counterfeiting plate which fell to Lang alone.

When darkness fell, the cavalcade set out. The party was rather handicapped for lack of horses, on extras being procured. Some of the hardy rangers started out on foot, leading their mounts, trying to keep their stock fresh for the race they expected would follow detection when their flight was discovered.

An advance and rear guard were placed over the train to guard against surprise. The party had not proceded very far before word was sent in from the front and rear both that suspicion pointed towards an ambush and trap. The lines were drawn up closer and preparations made to engage in a running fight; the idea being to put as much space between the rangers and the city during the night as possible, to get into the open country before any real fighting would be-the night long.

by desiring to retain possession of capturing and mounting their horses the treasure as well as to escape. To gave the coach a good start. The outdo this, all the horses were massed in laws not knowing but that the gold the center of the party, while two out | was being sent out this way, had to of every three of their riders were give chase, and a running fight was sent in advance and around to draw kept up for perhaps a half hour, be-

I fill the coach, so only 14 others were It was thought by Denver that the chosen by lottery; eight of the best hitched to the coach and the regulators took their places, armed to the teeth

> It fell to the lot of Philip Farnum to drive the quintette. But Louis Lang was no coward, and knowing the chances the driver had of ever living to get the coach outside the enclosure, mounted the box with him, ready to grab the lines in case Farnum was wounded. Lang protected himself as much as possible by placing a box and a few rail supports on the top of the coach in a manner that would give the outlews but one direction to shoot > at him. The intention of the coach party was to cut an opening through the mob when they least expected it; to cause confusion by stampeding the horses and to draw off a large part of the outlaws after the coach to enable the regulators to withdraw from the farm carrying the treasure with them.

Each moment was precious, for the convicts were being constantly re-in forced by strangers, fully armed, and who imbued spirit into the attacking squad by force of numbers.

At last the moment came for action The regulators prepared to open the gate preparatory to sending the coach out into the crowd. The gate swung in, the teams whipped into a maddening gallop, but guided by a master-To chronicle in detail the adven- hand, carried the coach loaded with tures of each of the important char- human freight into the very center of acters in this history would take up the convict camp. Then real fighting to get good things for nothing. Send too much space-and their mode of began from the coach. The crack of that table to my address.' I said to escape or death would be so similiar guns were heard from all sides, but as the salesman. 'I'll pay for it on dethat it could hardly be of interest. Suf- luck would have it, the onslaughter livery.' Then I walked out. I waited fice to say, then, that there was a was very much a surprise and the outside until Mrs. Shoddy went away, running fight kept up between the coach got fairly through the crowd be then ran back to the store, counterregulars and a band of convicts all fore the truth-dawned upon the outlaws.

The regulators were handicapped | The time necessarily taken up in off the fire. The Denver party went | fore the convicts succeeded in cripto work systematically, forming a pling the horses to such an extent

"String me up at once and be done with it."

square with sentinels about twenty | that the coach was brought to a standfeet apart each way. Knowing just still. The darkness aided the reguwhere each man was stationed, the lators more than the convicts and rangers fired repeatedly at their ene | many of the pursuers bit the dust bemies with certain results, while the fore the coach was surrounded. Then convicts were unable to distinguish for about five minutes ensued a handfriend from foe and often shot at one to-hand struggle, but finally the regu-their treasure were within sight of Sub-station No. 1, and there they were who had managed to escape in the reinforced by Johnson, four rebellious German girls, who could wield a gun num. as well as some of the men, and about twenty head of horses. This placed the regulators in very much better condition, as there were not over twice as many convicts pursuing them, and their stock in condition.

during the day by the inhabitants of party, and his rage was something the surrounding stations and new terrible. He recognized Denver at sturdy blue gums grow here twenty stock which, when evening came, made it look quite blue for the treas still in fighting shape. Both of these ure party. It was evident to Denver that if the convicts should make a de- the treasury vault upon promise of termined rush that his little band would be overpowered, not, however | the treasure stolen, and were on their without loss of life to the citizens. If the citizens had been as brave and fearless a band of fighters as were Hanchett's troops, the fight would not have lasted an hour. But different motions actuated the two rival factions. One was fighting for life, the other simply to regain a fortune.

Just as evening fell again the Denver party arrived in sight of a range farm house, a huge wooden structure shedlike, surrounded by a fence of rock and turf, making quite a place of defense. By consent of the owner, who came down from his house to meet the party and find out what the matter was, the Denver party were allowed to drive into the enclosure and | taunts and jeers and tortures like a there for a time secure from attack | martyr. Though he felt that his doom rest their steeds and get a bite to eat. The man dared not harbor our friends for any great length of time, for fear he made was: "String me up at once of the consequences-neither did the rangers dare to remain very long for year that too big a crowd could be amassed who could simply overwhelm laying his death. "You will swing them by force of numbers.

In the yard was a coach belonging to the Overland Mail Line, which had been abandoned by the owners during a raid made by prairie outlaws. A desperate scheme was concocted by Denver. The outlaws had so surrounded the enclosure that it was next to impossible to get out into the opening dropped down his hardened face at the without great loss of life; but it would be necessary to get out, and the quicker the better, while the convicts little thought the rangers would do so. not cry for mercy-neither did he at-Denver's scheme was to form an attacking party, by fitting the coach could possibly have done. At last, with men, and attempt to ride into the after, as it seemed, an age to Jim, he very midst of the gang dealing as stood beneath a tree with a halter much destruction as possible.

Lots were drawn by the rangers to his side were the blackened bodies of see who would form the party; each his comrades. man knowing full well that he was While Schiller was fastening the risking his very life on slim chances.

lars were either overpowered and cap-When dawn broke the rangers with tured, killed, or had been enabled to escape in the darkness. Among those > darkness were Louis Lang and Far-And among the captured and alive was Jim Denver! The loss of a number killed, the chagrin of not recapturing the treasure, so enraged the outlaws that they were little better than wild Indians. The Paradisians were reinforced Schiller was among the victorious worthies had only been released from doing something desperate to regain mettle to save their own necks.

> The helpless Jim was kicked and and cut most unmercifully by the enraged convicts, who recognized in him the head and front of the expedition which had cost them the loss of fortune and homes and the loss of many of their kind. They would have torn Jim limb from limb if they had not been restrained by a few led by Schil> ler, who desired to see a hanging! Near by was a clump of trees-an oasis in the desert of prairie-and toward this Jim was carried for the last act in his drama of life. Through it all Jim acted heroically, and stood the was sealed. Denver uttered no cry, nor begged for mercy. The only request and be done with it."

> Then Schiller thought to make Denver beg and cringe for mercy by desoon enough," retorted Schiller, "but before you do we shall allow you to look upon the cringing, tossing forms of a couple of your confederates! Death, instantaneous, would be too easy a let-off for you!" Jim shuddered, and tears, the only ones that ever came to his eyes, sight of two of his half-dead comrades slowly strung up to the trees with ropes around their necks. But he did tempt to buy his freedom, which he around his neck, while swinging by rope around Denver's neck, a great Denver and Lang volunteered to be shout went up: "To the train! To the at no time, least of all no newspaper of the party of sixteen who were to money! We can save it yet!" and folk."

prevailed, far in the distance could be heard the rapid discharge of firearms-and now and then the gleam of a light could be seen like the waving of a torch! In a moment the desire to obtain money overpowered the convicts' sense of gratification which the mob would have experienced in seeing Jim Denver strung up, and a few on the outskirts mounted their steeds preparatory to following after the regulators' train.

"String him up and leave him tied to the tree," was Hawks' orders, and quick as a wink was Denver swung off into air, and the end of the rope tied around the tree

Scarce was this ghastly deed performed before the whole gang set off hunting for the rapidly disappearing treasure train, as guided by the noise of firing and the flaring of torches. And Jim Denver's body was left swaying in the breeze!

(To be continued.)

ALMOST A PARDONABLE DECEIT. Woman's Triumph Over Envious

Friend, Mrs. Shoddy. The portly woman in the cross seat of a Subway car was confiding in her thin friend in a voice which was heard above the rattle of the train. "I had just picked out the table ! wanted-a trim little thing to fit in a corner of my parlor-when who should come in but that horrid Mrs. Shoddy. 1 wouldn't have her know, for the world, that I was paying only $3.50 for the table, so I turned to one marked $18 before she saw me.

that deceitful smile of hers. "'Yes,' I said coolly. 'I have almost decided upon this one,' I said, pointing out the expensive affair.

"'Buying a table?' she asked, with "You should have seen her face. 'Isn't it rather expensive?' she said. "'Oh, no,' I said. 'You can't expect manded the order for the $18 table and took the one for $3.50. I was sorry afterward that I hadn't selected a table worth about $100 just to spite that woman."-New York Press.

Mr. Tyte-Phist had scraped an acquaintance with another passenger on the train. "From Cincinnati, are you?" asked.

"Yes, sir." "In business there?" "Yes."

"Long?" "Seventeen vears."

"Do you know a man named Hurdlestone? "I don't recall any such man just now.

"Rasselas Hurdlestone-he has hare lip and he's crosseyed. You'd know him in a minute if you saw him. Walks with a kind of stoop. He went to Cincinnati twenty-seven years ago, and I reckon he is there yet. Had a short, stubby mustache the last time I saw him. Can't you seem to remember him now?"

"No." said the other passenger. "I have no recollection of him. Is he a relative?"

"Gosh, no," said Mr. Tyte-Phist, "I the day before he went away from our town, and I'd kind o' like to get on track of him that's all."-Chicago Tri-

England's Semi-Tropical Vegetation. Few people have any idea that within five hours' railway journey from London there is a semi-tropical belt equal to many in South Africa. Ten minutes only by steamer across the sound from Plymouth will convince the most skeptical of this fact. In the private gardens belonging to the Earl of Mount Edgecumbe there is one more sheltered than the rest, though only separated by a short but stiff climb from the sea below. Here in the open flourish all the year round fine tree camelias of the true Cape varieties-rich and pink and creamy white, one tree exhibiting the peculiarity of both colors blossoming at once; once-as did Bill Hawks, wounded but | feet high; fine clumps of giant and dwarf bamboo, splendid fruit and tree palms, the aromatic nutmeg and other spices, enormous geraniums. ferns from all parts of the world, and last, but not least, healthy oranges, lemons and citrons, all growing vigorously on their respective trees-a won cuffed and spit upon. He was hacked derful testimony to the mildness of the South Devon and Cornish coasts. -Pall Mall Gazette.

> Misjudged the Chinese Cook. A professional man has a Chinese cook and he recently instructed John to make a large handsome cake for a hirthday occasion. When the cake appeared on the table it was a triumph of art, frosted and decorated with great skill, but to the surprise of everyone present it bore the initials "J. C.," which were not those of any member of the family.

Reluctantly, but certainly, the host was forced to the conclusion that John's religious enthusiasm had become perverted. The more conserva tive of the guests were shocked, and after the feast was over the host went to explain to John why those initials must not be used for such purposes in future. As the explanation proceeded John became much excited. "Oh hellee, dam no!" he exclaimed.

Couldn't See Rogers.

'Him Jelly Cake!"-New York Sun.

H. J. Allen, editor of the Ottawa (Kan.) Herald, tells of his efforts to interview H. H. Rogers when the Standard Oil magnate's special train stopped at his town.

"Get off that, you," yelled a voice from the inside Upon the next car Allen reached the econd step. "Was you aiming to see any pusson aroun' here?" inquired a dark complexioned party. He swung himself carefully on one foot and moved the other through the air as though to try

"You all clear outen dis, and do hi lively," said the porter. "Mistah Rogers doan allow to be seen by nobody

Life's Seasons From his fingers to his toes, Back again to Baby's nose,
Pinker than the pinkest rose,
Gurgling softly as he goes,
Free from e'en the trifling woes,
Is the Spring of Life.

Now his hair is tinged with gray, Straight the path before him lay. World wealth gathered in the way, Strewn with roses, thorns astray. Many toned the passing day, The Autumn of his Life.

To this life, his heart he gave.
Tears and blessings, his to save,
Now in twilights, softly wave,
Bending grasses o'er his grave.
Chained he lies, Death's silent slave.
The Winter of his Life.
—Marion B. Owens in Sunset Magazine for October.

Fighting Spirit in Family. "Do you know," said the Doctor, "that Lieut. Stephen G. Grubb, who saved Sherman ammunition at Resaca, had four brothers in the Union army? Stephen G. Grubb was with the Illinois contingent of the family, and enlisted at Ottawa early in 1861, in Capt. Charles Houghtaling's battery (C, First Illinois artillery), and saw hard service in the Western armies, serving until June 12, 1865. About the same time Edmund Grubb enlisted in company I, Second Pennsylvania calvary, and the three other brothers in different Eastern regiments.

"Stephen G. Grubb was promoted in due time to First Lieutenant, and in May, 1864, was serving as ordinance officer in charge of the immense quantity of ammunition stored at Resaca for use in Sherman's campaign against Atlanta. One day the great pilet of ammunition was set on fire by the lightning, and Lieut. Grubb and Dan R. Anderson of the First Kentucky infantry went among the exploding shells and put the fire out.

"That was a gallant act to remain unrecognized by the government. | selves." However, that story has been told, although I never heard it until a few weeks ago. Then it reminded me of an adventure of another Grubb, which, while less heroic, showed the same quality of courage and daring. In the later months of 1863 Edmund Grubb, first sergeant, company I, Second Pennsylvania calvary, and his chum, "My" Southwick, were at their homes in Crawford county, Pennsylvania, on veteran furlough.

"They had been ordered to take the train at Meadville for return to the front on a certain day. The day before that fixed for their departure there was a riot at Meadville in which two soldiers were killed and others wounded. As the mob controlled the city the United States marshal of the district notified Grubb and other soldiers of the county that it would be advisable for them to take the train two miles from Meadvillle, so as to not come in conflict with the mob.

"Grubb rebelled against this order and declared he would take the train at Meadville or he wouldn't take it at all. Southwick joined him at the Grubb home. They had their cavalry them, but no ammunition. They made or secured ammunition, and on the appointted day went to Meadville. Their friends accompanied them in a wagon until they met the mob ready for action. Then, under orders of Serg. Grubb, the friends retired and the Sergeant and Southwick went forward to meet the mob.

"The leader of the mob explained that no soldier would be permitted to board any train at Meadville. Grubb explained that he and his comrade had been ordered to take the train at Meadville; that they were veteran soldiers and must obey orders; that they were both good shots and handy with the saber, and that if necessary they would shoot or cut their way through by force that obstructed their march. Thereupon he and Southwick drew their sabers, cocked their revolvers, and side by side marched down the street. The mob made way for them, but followed threateningly. But the two soldiers marched down the main street and boarded their train

"Grubb served through the war, but of the Rapidan. One morning he came to Grubb then in command of the company, and said his time had come. He had a severe pain in the chest and had a presentiment that he was to be shot just where the pain was severest. Grubb tried to laugh him out of the despondency, showing him that there was no sign of a fight anywhere. In the afternoon the regiment was ordered forward. went unexpectedly into a fight, and Southwick was struck where he said he would be and was killed."-Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Postponed Christmas.

December, 1863, the night before Christmas (the time above all others when our thoughts were of home) found the Seventh Ohio Cavalry on outpost duty closely observing the veteran army of Gen. Longstreet, then in upper Tennessee.

The Christmas feast was by no means ready for either the Confederate or Union troops in East Tennessee, as both armies were then living off the country, which had long before been almost denuded of every edible thing suitable for man or beast. The veteran cavalrymen of our regiment were sharing their exceedingly light rations with their horses, five nubbins of corn per day for each man and his horse being the generous allowance from our limited supplies.

Under these circumstances it was necessary to postpone our Christmas dinner until the February following. By this time Longstreet had retired from East Tennessee to rejoin Gen. Lee's army preparatory to the campaign in Virginia against Gen. Grant. In February we found ourselves re-eved from duty in close proximity to the enemy, and in order to recuperate our men and horses, took station in Tuckaleechee Cove, at the base of the Great Smoky Mountains, south of Knoxville, near the North Carolina their families.

line. Here there was fairly good grazing for our horses, and moderately generous foraging opportunities for the men. It was here and in the month of February that we had our Christmas dinner. Somewhere and somehow (it was not for me to knowfor to ask) our mess had secured a turkey-maybe a wild one, which had been killed in trying to bite some of our boys-and under the skilful hands of Private Sam Woods of Co. I., the most expert cook in the regiment, the turkey was roasted over a fire of live coals, which Sam, with the utmost care, had prepared and arranged. The turkey was suspended from a rigging of poles at the proper distance from the coals, and by the dexterous hand of Sam was kept gently turning around and around that the roasting process might properly proceed. Out of the sky had dropped a mess of sweet potatoes along with some pickled cabbage, much like sauerkraut, which went to complete our Christmas dinner. Our mess, composed of the colonel, the surgeon and the adjutant, sat close by to watch proceedings, to "shoo away" self-invited guests, who had been attracted to our camp fire by the aroma of the roasting turkey, and incidentally to wipe our watering mouths and to frequently ask Sam if he could not hurry matters along a little faster, as we had our appetites with us. It seemed to us hungry souls that never before did it take so long to roast a

As we were nearing the completion of the repast a little rainstorm passed over, but soon the sun shone brightly, showing the tops of the mountains tippel with snow. We were all in a frame of mind to enjoy this beautiful but fleeting scene, when Sam, the cook, pointing to the snow-capped mountains, said: "Gentlemen, there is ice cream for desert, help your-

As I look back now through the vista of forty years, never before or since did a Christmas dinner taste so good as that one of turkey, sweet potatoes and sauerkraut, all topped off with ice cream on the mountains -Los Angeles Times.

Colonel Walker Dead. The death of Col. Ivan N. Walker, past commander-in-chief, G. A. R., and assistant adjutant general of the department of Indiana, G. A. R., is reported from Indianapolis. Col. Walker attended the last national encampment at Denver and marched in the parade, but his ill-health was apparent in his shrunken face and figure. He had been ill ever since his return from Denver and died Sept. 22 of uremic Comrade Walker had a long and conspicuous career in the war of the rebellion, in Indiana politics and in the Grand Army of the Republic. He went out in the beginning of the war in an Indiana regiment and later became lieutenant-colonel of the Seventy-third Indiana. He was captured in the Streight raid and suffered a long period of imprisonment. On his discharge from the army he returned home and resumed the practice of law. but was from time to time appointed to important state offices, the duties of which he discharged to the great credit of himself and the state. He was always an active member in the G. A. R., and in 1891 was elected Commander of the Department of Indiana, G. A. R. He was elected Senior Vice Commander-in-Chief at Indianapolis in 1893. In 1895 he was elected Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic and gave the order a very successful administration. Of late years he has been one of the Indiana Commissioners of Railroad Taxation. He was a brave, devoted soldier of the Republic, and since the war had been a loyal comrade and an excellent public spirited citizen. He had many friends in every part of the country, who will sincerely mourn his death.-New York Press.

Had to Have His Tobacco. Dr. R. B. Woodward, mayor of Somerset, Ohio, a position of honor he has held for the past seventeen years. having before that been in the village Southwick was killed at the crossing | council for a matter of six years, is also a veteran soldier. He fought under Sheridan and was his intimate friend at home. Dr. Woodward is one of the younger set, being only 66 years of age, and, according to the local way of figuring, is good for thirty or forty years more of useful life. Dr. Woodward recently regaled some friends with this story, which, he relates, Gen. Sheridan told to him the last time he and the General talked of their war experiences: "'It was during the fiercest fighting of the battle of Cedar Creek,' said the General, 'that an Irish gunner came up in apparent great haste, saying: "Have yez anny t'baccy, Gineral?"

"'I handed him my plug, from which he bit a mouthful, and, having placed it comfortably within his jaw, said: ""T'ank yez, Gineral. Now O'll git back to me wurrk an' sind thim Johnnies some complemints they'd be glad t' be missin'"

"You're all right new?" "'Oi am thot-intirely. But, Gineral, a mon can't fight wurrth a dom widdout t'baccy.'"

Daughters of Veterans. Miss Martin, the newly elected president, with thirteen other enthusiastic young women, founded the Daughters of Veterans twenty years ago, at Massilon, Ohio. She was national secretary of the organization for two consecutive terms, junior vice president for one term, and was elected senior vice president at the convention last year. She organized the Department of Ohio and has held every office in its bestowal.

The Daughters of Veterans is the most exclusive of all the woman auxiliaries of the Grand Army, as it admits to its membership only daughters and granddaughters of veterans. The motto of the association is "Lest we forget," and last year a large sum was expended by it in relief work among the destitute old soldiers and

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of This Paper May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kid-neys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly" begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

health. A trial will convince anyone.

I was out of health and run down generally; had no appetite, was dizzy and suffered with headache most of the time. I did not know that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, but somehow felt that they might be, and I began taking Swamp-Root. There is such a pleasant taste to Swamp-Root, and it goes right to the spot and drives disease out of the system. It has cured me, making me stronger and better in every way, and I cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers.

Gratefully yours,

MRS. A. L. WALKER 33 East finden St. Atlanta Go. MRS. A. L. WALKER, 331 East Linden St., Atlanta, Ga. Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue much suffering and fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; make your head ache and back ache, cause indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, you get a sallow, yellow complexion, make you feel as though you had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's

Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

How to Find Out

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float around in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney, liver and ber the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. EDITORIAL NOTE.—So successful is Swamp-Root in promptly curing even the most distressing cases of kidney, liver or bladder troubles, that to prove coupon

DR. KILMER'S

SWAMP-ROOT

Kidney, Liver & Bladde

CURE.

DIRECTIONS,
MAY TAN I one, two or three teaspoonfuls before or after mains and a fbedtime.
May commence with small doses and increase to full dose or more, as the case would seem to require.
This great remedy cures all kidney, liver, hisder and Uric Acid troubles and disorders due to weak kidneys, such as catarnh of the bladder, gravel, theumatism, lumbage and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney disease.
It is pleasant to take.

FREVARIO ONLY BY

DR. KILMER & CO.,

BINGHAMTON, N. Y. Sold by all Druggists.

(Swamp-Root is pleasant to take.)

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remem-

COUPON its wonderful merits you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of Please write or fill in this coupon with your name and address and Dr. Kilmer & Co., will send you a Free Sample Bottle of Swamp-Root the Great Kidney Remedy.

the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. The value and success of Swamp-Root is so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this gener-(Mention this paper.)

Twice as Good One Third the Cost Wave Circle. Come in and get acquainted. K C will help you cut down the living expenses and make doctor's bills a thing of the past. Do you realize that you can get the best and purest baking powder in the world C BAKING at one-third what you've been paying for anywhere near K C quality. A 25 ounce can costs 25c. Think of the saving! Can you make money any easier? Get

"It Has Cured More Cases Than All Others Put Together" -WOLFF & WILSON DRUG CO.

"We have never run onto an article that met with the success of Mull's Grape Tonic. It has cured more cases of constipation and stomach trouble to our certain knowledge, than all other remedies that we ever sold put together.
"Mull's Grape Tonic must possess some other constipapeculiar quality that no other constipa-tion and stomach remedy has. All who use it say that it adds to the strength and general health and makes them feel better in every way. We all know that ordinary physics and cathartics have exactly the opposite effect—they have a weakening tendency. They leave the digestive system in worse shape to overcome the trouble than it was before.

"Mull's Grape Tonic is a pleasant, nat-ural, harmless, effective remedy that does the work and does it well, and the people have tound it out." WOLFF & WILSON DRUG CO. Sixth and Washington Ave., St. Louis, M.

These are very strong words coming from a reliable drug concern. Can you not take their word and give this grand remedy a trial?

Why suffer or take needless chances with constipation or stomach troubles when there is a perfect, harmless, natural, positive cure within your man.

Constipation and Stomach Trouble