Don't forget that good roadsters are going for the top notch in prices, and realizing this year a handsome fine Hamletian stallion, Basco B. before breeding. The telephone central was changed Tuesday night from the residence of Dr. Kearns to the new headquarters, the cable taken from the former and placed in the latter, all between 10 p. m. and 6 a. m., thus not inter-fering in the least with the working of the various lines. Mr. J. C. Beaver, the genial telephone expert of St. Paul was the presiding genius, and Paul hustled the work through in good shape. He commenced about 10 o'clock Tuesday and got everything in order for the change at night, and Wednesday morning found everything completed and in good running order. He finished the work and returned home by the noon train yesterday. Dr. Kearns, in retiring from the management of the telephone central desires THE NORTHWESTERN to ex-press for him his heartfelt thanks to our people for the excellent treat-ment accorded him during the past four years of his management of that important station. Not only have they upheld him with their sympathy and moral support, but in a finan-cial way, though he has transacted thou-sands of dollars of business with the public, he has not lost one cent through their agency, but every farthing has been paid cheerfully and willingly, and he retires from the central with grateful remem-brance of the kindness and courtesy accorded him by each and every one. He will now devote himself to the practice of his profession, making for the present office practice a specialty, as will be noticed by his card else-where in our columns. It would be useless for us to try and add a good word for Dr. Kearns in his profession-al line, as our people are well ac-quainted with him as a physician, and one and all, without exception, give him the highest praise as one of the most successful practitioners ever in our city. We wish him success unmeasured in all ways.

Nearly Fatal Accident. On last Saturday, while Harry Taylor was working with the W. T. Gibson bridge gang on a new bridge some three miles south of Litchfield, the guy ropes holding the pile driver, upon which Harry was standing, became disarranged and loosened in some way, allowing the frame to fall, striking the structure and throwing the unfortunate young man into the creek fourteen feet below, striking the bridge in his fall breaking his right leg between knee and thigh, injuring one ankle, and cutting gashes in his head and face and landing him in about four feet of water, from which he was rescued by others. A physician was called, who found his injuries as stated and attended his sufferings. He is being cared for at the home of our good friend Henry Capellan, where he is receiving the best of attention and nursing. Harry's many friends will deeply sympathize with him in his terrible misfortune. 4 cans corn for 25c at Cooper's. Drs. Mrs. J. A. Gilbert last Thursday sold seven hogs that netted her the neat sum of $121.80. No good fortune is too good for Grandma Gilbert. Of this amount, grandma says she bought a goodly quantity of alfalfa seed, and will make another faithful try to get a good stand on a portion of her farm, the last effort proving a failure. She will also make home bright with paint on the outside, and generally improve the home place. The services at the Presbyterian church last Sunday were of un-usually interesting character. The special singing of Bert McKinnie, and Miss Lizzie Leininger in the evening, and of Miss Elva Zimmerman in the morning were especially pleasing, while the regular anthems by the choir, in addition to the reading of the word, you will find it at the Presbyterian church, while the min-istrations of Rev. McEwen are fully the equal of any other house of worship. Rev. Edward Thomson, D. D., of Columbus, Ohio, General Manager of the Sunday League of America, will address the people of Loup City at the opera house, Wednesday evening, May 30th, talking for his subject, "True Americanism." The Power

How It Is Applied TO THE LITCHFIELD SPREADER

Watch a Litchfield Manure Spreader working and you will wonder what method is used to get such even results, through mud, sand, slush or snow, with the ground frozen or otherwise, with fast horses and with slow ones; always working and never refusing to do business. The facts are, this machine has been reduced to a scientific basis in applying the power for distributing the load. The manufacturers have done away with the old-fashioned plan of driving one part of the machine from one wheel and another part from the other wheel. It has been demonstrated thoroughly that both traction wheels on a spreader should be so arranged that they will each do an equal proportion of the work. The Litchfield Spreader takes all the power from both traction wheels direct to one large gear and from this gear the work of moving the load and operating the beater wheel is distributed in proportion to the requirements. Listen, only half the traction or that coming from the left wheel is applied to the axle. The right traction wheel applies its work direct to the large gear independent of the axle. Note that the axle therefore has only half the twisting strain which other machines apply to it where both traction wheels drive through the axle. Just compare this with those machines that drive the beater wheel with one traction wheel and drive the conveyer with another. This listen from 70 to 90 per cent of the load on to the beater wheel side. Plainly this is a faulty construction and is what you do not find in the Litchfield machine. Come in and see this spreader and see not only the features above referred to, but also the traction grip this machine has both on the ground and on the people who know it best. Watch this page next week and we will show you how we handle big loads. T. M. REED.
