GIRLS TORTURED WITH FIERY IRONS BY INHUMAN PARENTS

Shocking Case of Cruelty Discovered in Chicago-Child Branded Until Flesh Blazes Into Flame.

Mrs. Mary Janoszek, the mother.

Reluctant to interfere, neighbors be heard for hours. have silently sympathized with the On another occasion when Mrs. unfortunate little ones, until, sickened Strauss was at the house the children beyond endurance at the continual tor- were sent to the woodshed and reture, they notified the officers of the mained there two days, subsisting on Illinois Humane society.

at the Children's Memorial hospital, where it is feared Mary, the elder, may die of her injuries.

All during the hearing the other day before Justice Mayer the woman maintained a stolid indifference, and even when her neighbors detailed instances in which the helpless little ones were branded with irons fired to white heat, and made to endure other sufferings for trivial causes, she only yawned as if to show her weariness of the entire proceedings.

"When parents are like you they should be horsewhipped," said Justice Mayer indignantly from the bench, and at the time of the outburst he had not heard half of the horrible story.

That the tortures they have undergone have bred in the children a loathsome fear of their mother was shown in Inspector Lavin's office, where the mother interrupted the examination by the inspector and spoke sharply to BURNED THE CHILDREN WITH A them in Polish. Instinctively they shrank and cowered, not realizing that victims and twist until the screams they were safe even with the protection of the officers. The testimony of acquaintances of the family indicate that the mother delighted in fiendish acts of cruelty.

In winter the two girls were denied feet were sent on errands, particularly to the near by saloons. Nicholas Naumes, who lives across from the Janoster, during a bitter cold spell, Annie change, also that she suffered a broken tance. Where the motherly hand of

That the cruelty has been recent seared with the iron. was indicated when Ethel Butzbach, She heard Annie scream, and, stand- able workers to be cared for.

GOAT'S APPETITE DISPELS

SALOONKEEPER'S DREAM

Animal Rudely Ejects Owner and

Friend, Then Calmly Disposes

of Free Lunch.

Chicago.-No bock beer flowed in (ke Epstein's saloon on South Halsted street, the other night and all because

The evening was young when a

"Haf you pock peer?" queried the

"Sure," answered Ike, and a glass

"Good evening," answered Ike.

said the crony.

Chicago.-Parental love has been | ing on a chair, peered into the room. woefully lacking in the lives of Mary lacre she saw the little girl bared to and Annie Janoszek, aged six and the waist. With one hand the mother four years respectively, and in their held her daughter, while she used the wretched home on Concord place they other in applying a heated iron to the have known more of burns from red exposed flesh till it blazed into a hot pokers than of caresses and kind- smoky flame. The horror of it surness, according to testimony of the lit- prised a scream from the watcher, at tle girls, corroborated by the evidence which the woman dropped her instruof neighbors, who have witnessed the ment of torture and Annie fled to aninjuries inflicted upon the children by other room shricking with agony. The witness said the victim's cries could small doles of bread and coffee. Other Investigation resulted in the arrest neighbors told how Mrs. Janoszek of the woman and her husband, John, found a mop handle handy in her who are now in the county jail, while scheme of inflicting suffering. She Mary and Annie are being cared for would entwine it in the hair of the HOT POKER.

because of the excruciating pain could be heard across the street. "I have never heard of a case approaching this in cruelty," said Miss

Minnie Jacobs, a juvenile court officer. The testimony and the pitiable conshoes and stockings, and in their bare dition of the children evoked the sympathy of the court attaches and spectators, and found expression in a subzeks, testified that one day last win- them. Particularly patnetic is the stantial collection being taken for case of Annie, the little one who may was seen coming from the groggery die. While Inspector Lavin was quesin tears. Naumes saw the door opened tioning her an elderly woman, whose by the mother, who, when the child tear-flooded eyes were mute evidence spoke a few words to her, picked her of the shock of the revelation and of up bodily and threw her to the side- the outpouring of love and sympathy walk, where she lay senseless and she felt for the abused child, gently bleeding from wounds in the face. touched her on the shoulder. With a Naumes subsequently learned that the sharp exclamation of pain the little child's offense was losing 15 cents' girl jumped back out of reaching disarm and a fractured nose. Naumes the stranger had touched her was a rereported the case to the Humane so- membrance of her legal mother-a raw spot of quivering flesh that had been

The Janoszeks were held in $10,000 who lives in the rear of the Janoszek bail and the two younger children, one ment in Finland, there has never been that seeds planted the first of May nome, told what she saw a week ago. a babe in arms, were taken by charit-

FINLAND AND THE JEWS. HAVE MELONS IN WINTER. Position of the Semitic Race Worse,

high and low for an ideal model. He said he found in the United States only 12 who could be called truly beautiful, and of these the Benny boy, whom he found in the home of his parents at Pasadena. Cal. was the only one in a Legal Sense, Than in Russia.

military term may not return.

than a criminal in Siberia.

Jews among them.

who answered completely to the exacting standards which Russell's artistic

MOST BEAUTIFUL BOY IN AMERICA.

Through Modern Horticultural Progress. An anti-Semitic movement which so Finland. 'the Jewish World, in com-

far cannot be traced to the Russian the vegetable world has given us many government appears to be absorbing good things. Perhaps the most recent of these is the winter melon, which is menting on this circumstance, declares what is still better, an attainable luxthat the manner in which the civilized ury. The seeds of the winter melon world gave unstinted sympathy to the Finns out of the area is expelled the came from Russia. . ney were placed country. They are restricted for a in the hands of a man who had a country. They are restricted for a great reputation as a horticulturist. livelihood to selling old clothes, There were two varieties of muskwatches, cigarettes, etc. Jews who marry have to leave the country, and Russian seeds produced an exceptionmelon and one of watermelon. The those who go out of it to serve their ally fine muskmelon. In flavor they are more acceptable than the summer No wonder a deputy once declared kind, far more attractive from an exthat a Jew in Finland is worse off terior view, and grow in weight to 40 pounds. One of the features of the Their struggle with the overwhelmmelons is that their luscious flavor ing forces of Russian despotism might does not deteriorate as they increase have led one to believe that this inter- in size, as is often the case with the esting little people would show a cer- summer fruit. The beauty of the wintain fairness to the oppressed Russian ter melons is that they are in their prime in the dead of winter, when the There are about 1,000 Jews all told in snow covers the northern states and Finland, and it is enough to say that nature hibernates with the thermomtheir position is legally worse than in eter in close proximity to zero.

Russia itself. Although there was al- The melons need only about one ways a large measure of self-govern- hundred days in which to mature, so

The increase of our knowledge of Theodore Horstman, formerly corporation counsel of Cincinnati, has become a candidate for the congressional nomination in the First district, in opposition to Nicholas Longworth. Mr. Horstman is an independent Republican, and for years has fought the boss element. He ran for mayor in 1894, and, though defeated, polled a remarkably large vote. As an attorney his standing in the community is high.

hot stove. The child died later. The Thorman girl added: "I did it be-Russia in chains.

Elkton, Md.-Thinking he might soon have use for it, Joseph Venables, after to enjoy better health, and continued to do so until a few days ago,

Dances as Living Torch; Dies. Rome.—Paola Nizza, a resident of Palermo, soaked her clothing with pe-It was then the cyclone struck. And | troleum then set it afire. She danced 't came with terrific force. Ike saw a around madly until she fell, burned to gray streak and the next moment he death. It is stated her mother killed was sitting in the middle of the street. herself in the same way in Chicago The lone customer saw it coming and four years ago, and that her sister met attempted to duck. But he was a mo- a similar death last year.

treatment to which Jews are subjected | will by the first of August produce there. They are at best allowed to live some melons which ripen on the vines, in the towns of Helsingfors, Abo and The major portion of the crop, how-Wiborg; newcomers can settle by spe- ever, has to ripen after being picked. cial permission of the governor gen- The date of their ripening, depends have not a servant that I can trust the neighbors. eral, which has to be renewed every entirely upon the temperature in six months. Any Jew caught without which they are stored. If deposited in time presses-I cannot seek far for my such permission is transported back to a cool place they will not ripen much before the first of the year. If the melons are desired for an earlier mar-Wireless Rubberneck. ket it is only necessary to place them A New York inventor is said to have in a room of a living heat.

The Continental Idea.

A clergyman who was holding a children's service at a continental winter resort had occasion to catechise his hearers on the parable of the unjust steward. "What is a steward?" ne asked. A little boy, who had just arvelopment creates a puzzling legal rived from England a few days before held up his hand. "He is a man, sir, he replied, with a reminiscent look on affirmed that a man's title to his property reaches from the center of the

A monument is being designed in Richmond, Va., to be dedicated to the a young gent get off there that night in a light overcoat. He concluded that he remembered such a party, because ie'd hired a carriage that run from the station and gone away on the

"Where's the swamp road?" says I. He pointed straight before us into the darkness.

"Does a woman named Bebe stop round there?" says I.

I wasn't going to blab secrets, so I stuck my tongue into my cheek and first saw her, on a grand night, when made off as fast as my legs could carry the carriages were full of swell folks, me. The weather had turned killing cold. My teeth clicked faster than a telegraph. The sky was cloudy, but there was a moon somewhere overbordered with feathers, and where it head, and I could discern the track of fell back her gown showed shiny, too. Mr. Dacre's carriage in the snow. I Two other folks were with her-a followed it.

the air, a tall, tair dude, who wore violets in his button-bole. The girl bet I was glad. Sure enough, the carried a bunch of violets, too. She carriage track stopped at a gate. went through it and up to a small, When I had sold out my papers and low house, set in an open place in the got a sandwich from the woman in woods. I rapped on the door. the alley I sneaked back to the opera

"Now, if Bebe herself comes, what'll house door to see the show come out. I say to her?" thinks I. But the per-Presently that girl appeared again, son that opened to me was a gray, but with another man-a fat, dark elderly man in working clothes.

party, who wore a blazing stone in his "Is Mr. Dacre in this house?" says I. shirt front and mustaches twisted up "Yes," says the man.

"I want to see him, bad," says I. "Come in," says he; "you look about frozen, my boy."

I didn't see her again till the day she came to our court. She and I got to be first-rate friends. Many a Mr. Dacre, sitting before a big fire hamper her coachman tugged up our His light overcoat lay across a chair never lacked for food nor fire from pleasant business, too, for she got "Prince Benny," asserted to be the most beautiful child to be found in all America, has just posed for his photograph. He is Bickford Benjamin Benny, now of Norfolk, Neb. Waiter Russell, a famous painter of children, searched paler and sadder all the time. The weather turned cold and there was snow, and the rich folks were sleighing in the park. So I thought if I went that way I might catch a glimpse of Miss Angel, and I did.

at the corners. The girl looked tired and something seemed to have gone that time out. She was everywhere among the poor of the district. I began to think it must be mighty un-

Miss Angel's

Messenger

By ETTA W. PIERCE

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

It was at the opera house that I and the show at the door was as good

She was dressed in a shiny cloak as 'tother inside.

looked like an angel.

amiss with her.

"For whom are you looking, Bobby?" says she. "For you, Miss Angel," says I, and

I came near letting out a yell of pure joy. 'Twas ner own self, in a walking dress with fur on it, and her hands thrust into a bit of a muff. She wore violets again in her preast, and I smelled 'em, and they were sweet.

But we didn't have a talk. She hadn't fairly settled herself on the bench with me when along came the now becoming such a luxury, and, fat dark man, with the big stone in his shirt front.

"I saw you from afar, Edith," says he; "pray, allow me." And he just shoved me aside and squeezed himself down beside Miss Angel. "I'm glad to see you abroad again, Edith," says he; "I called repeatedly during out. At his feet a big mastiff lay your illness, but your servants refused sleeping on a mat. Mr. Dacre looked to admit me."

"They obeyed my orders," says Miss Angel, very cold and stiff like. "I see that you bear me some grudge," says he. "Maybe it is about and his voice was amazing queer. Dacre. Ah, he is a sad dog - that Dacre!

"And who has helped Dacre in his and her voice was uncommon sharp. "Well, really, I don't pretend to know," says the fat man. "Some say that she has a mysterious forest bow- a growl to see what was going on. er at Hemlock Hollow, a few miles out of the city, to which Dacre makes and when I heard that I thought I'd frequent pilgrimages. I have reason tumble into the fire. to think the rumor true. Dacre is a great favorite with your sex. Then his fast male companions—" fee and a dish of loasted chicken, and Mr. Dacre, being a gentleman, waited you frankly I do not believe a word of it. Dacre is the victim of a crafty der. foe, who follows him in the guise of a friend."

"My dear Ecoth," said the fat man, "are you not a little unreasonable? 1 did not suspect you could so sharply resent my honest statements. To be sure, Dacre was once your lover, and you broke the engagement because your father insisted upon it."

"You poisoned my father's mind against Dacre," says she, "and, being ill, he believed all that you said." "You refuse to believe in his little errors? Well, here is a message which he gave me to wire not an hour ago." He thrust a paper under her eyes.

I didn't have on my company manners, and I looked, too. This is what I read: "I sail to-morrow for Australia, to Bebe with me; I cannot bear to leave her. Will come to-night." "You have said enough!" says Miss "Leave me now, Col. Hay." His face grew black as thunder, but he got up from the bench and went away. She sat awhile, looking down at the ground; then says she:

"Bobby, if you had a friend whom you had loved and trusted a long time, and you should see him lying very low-perhaps in the dust at your feet, and all the world turned against him-tell me, what would you do?"

"Why, lend him a hand, of course," She bent and kissed me-heaven and earth! Yes she kissed me!

"Bobby," says she, "I don't know had I asked Col. Hay he would not of course, a prime favorite. have told me. Yet I must send Dacre a token, and it must reach him tonight." I pricked up my ears. "I birthday party, inviting a number of with such a matter," says she, "and

"If you've anything to send Mr. Dacre, I'll take it," says I. a gold ring, engraved with some motto Hance.

messenger.'

that I couldn't read. She wrapped the bit of gold in

"If Mr. Dacre is going to visit that Bebe to-night," says I, "what's the matter with Hemlock Hollow?" I remembered that the fat man had mentioned Hemlock Hollow as the place light upon the back-yard fence of the where the actress lived.

Hemlock Hollow was black as pitch when the train stopped there. I happened to be the only passenger that got off. A stationmaster came out on the platform, swinging a lantern and stretching his jaws as if he'd just waked up. I asked if he'd seen swamp road.

"I never heerd tell of her," says he.

stout lady, with her head well up in Well, after I'd chased over a hundred miles, or so, I saw a light. You

He showed me into a room that opened off the entry. There I found rickety stairs, and mother and I near him, and he held a cigar between his fingers, but it had gone as if he had been to a funeral. I went up to him and touch d his arm.

I put Miss Ange.'s ring in his hand. "Where did you get it?" says he.

"Miss Edith sent it to you," says I. I thought he was going crazy. He dragged me to the fire, chafed my downward way?" says Miss Angel; hands, pulled the shoes off my frozen feet, and the man that had let me in brought snow and rubbed on my ears that were stiff as stakes and the hig it is that French actress, Bebe, and dog woke on the mat, and rose with

"Keep still, Bebe!" says Mr. Dacre,

Well, the two men brought hot cof-"Stop! It is contemptible, sir, to till I had warmed and fed before he slander the absent! Dacre's closest asked a question. But after that I companion has been yourself, Col. had to tell him everything. My eyes! Hay. To you he owes his financial wasn't he mad! The big mastiff ruin. As for the other charge," and had laid her head on his knee; he she grew as white as chalk, "I'll tell patted it with one hand, and the other arm he slipped across my shoul-

"Bobby," says he, "you are of the right stuff! The whole of this matter you cannot understand, but I will tell you that the man who lives here was a servant of my dead father, and this dog is also a family relic. For years Simpson has kept her for me-I am particularly fond of Bebe, for she saved my life when I was a boy, and of late I have thought of her as about the only friend left to me in the world. She is old now and infirm As I was to sail for Australia tomorrow, never, perhaps, to return, I came down here to spend my last evening with Simpson, and to take Bebe away with me. These facts were well known to my friend, Col. Hay, when he told that cursed story in the park. Now, Bobby, you and I must go back to town by the last train. I begin life over again. I must take shall see Miss Edith before I sleep. I shall also see our precious Col. Hay, our prince of liars,"

Well, Mr. Dacre didn't go to Australia-he stayed at home and married Miss Angel. Col. Hay wasn't at the wedding-I know, for I was there, and looked for the fat man everywhere.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR CAT.

"Jerry's" Nineteenth Natal Day Celebrated with Pomp by Master -Begins to Age.

Freehold, N. J.-Henry Brower, of Soobeyville, near here, owns a cat which is 19 years old. Brower is a cat fancier, owning no less than ten fewhere Mr. Dacre can be found, and lines, and the patriarch of the lot is, To celebrate the gray-whiskered

Tom's birthday, Brower gave him a Among those present at the function

a la cat were Mr. and Mrs. John Riordan, Paul Frank Hiltbrunner, Miss Ida Flock, Herbert Wolcott, H. S. Parke, Hudson Van Brunt, Mr. and Mrs. Har-She opened her purse and took out ry Coleman and Mr. and Mrs. Frank

The debutante goes by the name of Jerry. The guests enjoyed music and banknote. Her eyes were full of games, while Jerry blinked at them from a cushioned chair. All the other cats were also in the room.

Jerry is feeling his age. He is a failure now as a ratter and no longer utters discordant notes in the moon-Brower domicile.

Ever Notice It? Diggs-Lazy men remind me

Biggs-What's the answer? "They are always hunting a job." -Chicago Daily News.

ON IRONING A SHIRT.

What to Press First, Do Not Use Too Hot an Iron and the Finishing Touch of Polishing.

To iron the shirt, after being starched, proceed in the following order: First the collar, second the cuffs and sleeves, third the yoke, fourth the back, fifth the calico part of the front, sixth the linen front. The collar must be wiped with a dry rag to remove any surface starch, then, with a fairly hot iron, iron it lightly on the wrong side, turn it over and press on the right side, then iron heavily on the wrong side, and finish ironing it on the right.

To iron the sleeves and cuffs, fold the shirt in half to protect the fronts. start the sleeve by ironing the cuff in exactly the same way as the collar. When quite dry and stiff fold the sleeve in half by the seam, and iron it first on one side, then turn over and do the other, working the point of the iron well into the gathers at the wrist.

Do the second sleeve in the same way. To iron the saddle place it quite flat on the back of the shirt, so that the two side seams are together, the back being folded in half lengthways; iron first one side, then the

The seams and the strippings round the sleeves must be ironed dry. The calico front is ironed over the back.

Lay the shirt on the table, and the center fullness of the back should be drawn into plaits, which are pressed in to make the back and front the same breadth, then iron all the calico part, but do not touch the linen fronts.

To iron linen fronts a shirt board is required. This is a board some two feet long and one and a half feet broad, covered with ironing felt.

Slip this under the linen front and iron the upper front first. Rub the front with a dry cloth, and work any creases or fullness to the side.

Do not use too hot an iron. Iron until it is dry, lifting the front from the board now and again to let the steam escape.

Do the second half in the same way and be very careful to iron the edges and round the neckband quite To polish the front, remove the shirt board, and replace it with one the same size, but with no covering to it. Damp the surface of the ironed front very evenly with a wet rag.

Get a hot polishing iron, and be sure that it is very clean. Iron up and down the front in straight, even lines, pressing heavily until a smooth gloss is obtained. The under half of the front is the first to be polished. The cuffs are polished in the same

To fold a shirt, place a stud in the neckband to fasten it, and make a box plait down the front where the fullness is.

Turn the shirt over, having the back uppermost.

Fold the sleeve over so as to form a straight line with the seam of the shirt. Take a plait down the sleeve of about an inch, and press it in, then turn up the sleeve, having the buttonhole of the cuff level with the neckband.

spond. Fold over the sides of the shirt, having it the width of the linen front. Pin it to keep it in place. Turn up the bottom about three inches, fold the shirt in two, making it the exact length of the linen front, so that on turning it over only the starched front is seen.

MARION HARRIS NEIL

THE WOMAN GARDENER.

A Backyard Industry of Growing Flowers Recommended Both for Healthfulness and Profit.

For a delicate, nervous woman there is no medicine like exercise in the open air. But waiking aimlessly about in the open air is not the proper way to exercse to derive the most good. The mind must be interested in the accomplishment of some purpose. Now the desire or need of earning a little money is an incentive to regulate me-

Suppose you take up the growing of flowers both as a means of relaxation and a source of profit. Lilies of the valley, sweet peas, daisies, violets, are all very popular and easy to culti-

Another branch of the flower business in which a profit can be made is the filling of window-boxes, designing new effects in jardinieres and hanging baskets. The latter can be handled nicely in the shady space of your yard until well started, when some of the most attractive boxes and baskets should be displayed in your front windows as a means of advertising your backyard industry.-Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Tasty Dish from Left-Overs. Cold corn beef is best, but any kind of cold meat will do. Put through a meat grinder or chop fine; if onion is liked add a little raw, chopped fine. Season well and if any cold gravy is left, moisten meat with that: if not, water will do, just enough to cook well. Boil potatoes and mash with milk, butter, salt and pepper. After placing the chopped meat, well moistened, in a deep earthen dish or pan, shake the mashed potatoes on top of meat lightly, place in oven about 20 minutes until brown and well heated. The flavor and steam from the meat goes through the potatoes and it is a most delicious dish.

of odds and ends which otherwise would be of no use. Take a piece of burlap the size and shape desired, and have the pieces of cloth cut one-fourth inch wide and one inch long. Draw these through the burlap with a crochet hook, just as ir you were taking a stitch in sewing. When the surface is thickly covered, trim off the uneven places, and line the under side. These rugs can be made of yarn, silk, woolen or cotton, and the result will be pretty at almost no cost.

-Orange Judd Farmer. Burlap Rugs. Pretty and useful rugs can be made of the foaming book was placed on the "Excuse me," said Ike, and disappeared in the neighborhood of the kitchen. He was gone a few minutes when he appeared with a dish filled with lettuce that was green.

gess?" ventured the customer.

"You seem to be doing fine busi-

"I shust got next to the finest advertisement vat ever vas," commented "Yes-" queried the other. "A goat," answered .ke. "He was a pully afertisement. Pelnys to my son George I paints a sign. I puts it on his neck. It tells of de fine peer vot I of Chestertown, 25 years ago had his haf and all de peoples read. Und piz- coffin made. He began soon there-1ess? My you yust vait."

"I vill," answered Ike's customer. "Excuse me," said Ike and disap- when his death occurred, and he was peared. This time he was bearing a buried in the coffin he made. lish filled with onions when he re-"Haf von?" queried Ike.

'Shure," and the customer reached.

dle of the pavement. "Vot vas it?" queried Ike. "I don't know," answered the cus-"Let's go in," suggested Ike.

ment too late and the next instant he was standing on his head in the mid-

"No, let's look through the window." advised the customer. And they did. They saw the goat reaching for the onions. They stood on the lunch counter and were just beyond the reach of the animal. But he was not to be outdone. He stepped erony of Ike's entered. "Good evening," back a pace or two. Then he went forward with lowered head. "Ach du lieber," broke from Ike.

"It vas a fine counter," agreed the customer. The goat stood in the midst of the ruins. He ate the onions and he ate the lettuce. He ate the radishes and he ate the carrots.

"He's yours if you take him avay," agreed Ike. "I don't vant him. I got no use fer a goat."

Then Ike performed an act that will ever live in the memory of those kho worship him. He entered the saloon. He dodged the infuriated animal and caught him by the horns. He sat on his head until the lone customer could enter. Then they dragged the animal to his stall in the rear of the saloon, locked the door and nailed it and "It must hav peen de onions. Dey smell you know."

Child Roasted by Young Girl. York, Penn.-Lillian Thorman, a 13-year-old girl, pleaded guilty to killing Helena Dorsey, a three yearold daughter of Mr. and Mrs .Robert Dorsey. On Washington's birthday the Thorman girl, having become angered at something the little Dorsey child had done, placed her on a red-manslaughter.

Had Coffin for 25 Years.

erty what are his legal rights?

placed heavy pieces of timber against

"Vat you suppose caused it?" queried cause I have the devil in me." The young prisoner will be sentenced on a charge of involuntary > erected on top of his house a tall pole with 32 antennac that are kept in a state of activity gathering wireless messages of all descriptions. Good-by messages from ocean steamships, reports from government stations and a lot of other information not addressed to him come to his net. The new deproblem. Highest judicial authority has globe to the zenith. If people allow Kansas City Independent. their wireless messages to go wandering or floating through the etherial regions on to a man's atmospheric prop-memory of Edgar Allan Poe.