REPUBLICAN PLATFORM

Synopsis of the Good Things It Advocates.

Congratulates the country on the good work of Congress in the passage of the following bills:

1. The railroad rate bill.

2. The Panama canal bill.

3. The lock levee canal system.

4. The pure food bill.

5. The irrigation bill.

6. The employers' liability bill.

7. The meat inspection bill.

8. The denaturized alcohol bill.

9. The Oklahoma statehood bill.

10. The naturalization bill.

Calls attention to the unexampled prosperity under republican policies.

Declares for the protective tariff, with revision of schedules by the republican party where changed conditions necessitate such action.

Approves work of national and state and state officers in their efforts to curb the trusts.

Commends the present state administration for the economical handling of the state's business and the care of the state institutions.

Declares that the railroads should have paid the taxes assessed against them, and approves the efforts of the state officials to collect the money.

Demands the enactment of a direct primary law by the next legislature, providing for the nomination of all candidates by direct vote.

Declares for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

Pledges legislative nominees to support state convention nominee for United States senator.

Opposes the interference of corporations in political affairs, and demands the passage of an anti-trust law, applying to all persons except bona fide employees, members of their immediate families, and caretakers of livestock.

Declares for the railway commission and for the adoption of the constitutional amendment providing for the same.

Demands equitable freight and passenger rates and forbids all discriminations.

Demands the enactment of an employers' liability law.

Demands the impartial enforcement of the revenue law, and strict economy in the disbursement of public money.

Declares for a revision of the revenue law so that terminal railroad properties may be assessed for city and village purposes.

Recommends passage of a law for inspection of dairy products.

Appeals for a continued approval of republican policies as bringing the greatest benefits to the people.

To secure best results in the county attorney's office, vote for R. P. Starr.

Stand up for Roosevelt by voting for the candidates representing the principles advocated by Roosevelt.

Carle T. McKinnie for representative was the honest choice of an honest party in an honest convention. He stands squarely on every plank in the platform of the republican party as enunciated in the synopsis given at the head of this column. He is worthy of your vote.

Owing to the fact that our coming governor, Geo. L. Sheldon, got lost in the snow storm that has been raging in western Nebraska, the past few days, he was unable to keep his appointment here last evening, and our people thereby failed to hear the next governor of Nebraska.

NORRIS BROWN ALL RIGHT

Disreputable Democratic Duplicitly Disclosed.

Apreros of the attack upon Norris Brown, our candidate for U. S. senator, which appeared in the Times-Independent of last week, and which is but a rehash of something that has been successfully refuted since, we append the letter below from Chairman Rose of the Republican State Committee. We feel sure Bro. Brown was led into error in publishing same or he would not have given it space:

To the Editor of the Northwestern:

I ask space to give the facts concerning the false report that Norris Brown, republican candidate for United States Senator, was indebted to the insolvent Kearney National bank, at the time its affairs were settled, on notes due for money deposited therein by former State Treasurer Bartley, and that the state lost its money through Brown's repudiation of his notes. Robert Payne of Nebraska City was receiver and settled the affairs of this bank. He is a lifelong democrat, and his integrity is known throughout the state. To learn the exact truth I wrote him as follows: Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 17, 1906.—Dear Sir: It has been reported that Norris Brown had certain unpaid notes in your hands as receiver of the Kearney National Bank at the time of the bank's failure and your settlement of its affairs; that he borrowed the money from state funds deposited by former State Treasurer Bartley; that the state deposit was $6,000, which the state lost because Norris Brown did not pay his notes, one amounting to $35 and the other to $255. Will you please give me the facts in regard to this matter? Very respectfully,

W. B. ROSE,

Chm. Rep. State Cen. Com.

To this Mr. Payne replied:

Nebraska City, Neb., Oct. 17, 1906.—

Mr. W. B. Rose, Chairman Republican State Central Committee.—Dear Sir,

Among the assets of the Kearney National Bank, placed in my hands as receiver, were notes amounting to about $300, signed by Norris Brown. These notes had no connection whatever with the deposit of state funds.

State Treasurer Bartley. As I recollect the facts, they are about as follows: Norris Brown owed the bank as above stated. He claimed the bank owed him an account as attorney's fees, and wished to offset his indebtedness to the bank by the bank's indebtedness to him.

Equitably, it looked to me as though such a compromise would be just.

These notes, with other assets of the bank, were duly advertised for sale in the Kearney Hub, and sold with other assets of the bank in March, 1898.

I do not recollect who bought the notes or the amount paid for them. A commonsense interpretation of the transaction would be that Brown received from the Kearney National Bank for services, as claimed by him, an amount equal to the difference between the face value of his notes and the amount paid for the notes at public auction. Yours very truly,

ROBERT PAYNE.

That Norris Brown did not owe the Kearney National Bank, nor the state of Nebraska, any sum whatever at the time the affairs of the bank were settled, was shown in a recently published interview with N. P. McDonald, present county attorney of Buffalo county, who was familiar with the facts. The truth was also published by Robert Payne, receiver, in an interview given to the Nebraska City Daily Tribune, October 6, 1906.

Without making inquiry of Mr. Payne to ascertain the facts, and disregarding the truth which had been published, T. S. Allen, chairman of the democratic state central committee, has been diligently publishing and circulating throughout the state anonymous handbills containing this false report. I appeal to every fair-minded man, regardless of party affiliation, to resent the disreputable methods employed by the democratic state central committee in their efforts to defeat Norris Brown and prevent regulation of freight rates by the election of a democratic legislature.

W. B. ROSE,

Chm. Rep. State Cen. Com.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 20.

Tuesday afternoon of this week occurred the much advertised but very slimly attended fusion rally at the opera house, in which W. H. Thompson, "Little Giant" of the fusion candidate for U. S. senator, was to be the principal attraction, with Frank Beaman of Kearney, former republican, and J. E. Johnson, fusion nominee for state senator to lend dignity(?) to the occasion. At about an hour past the designated time for the grand entrance, and with 23 persons, all told, including the speakers, present, the meeting was called to order by John Minshull who introduced F. E. Beaman as the first speaker. Frank began by saying he felt a little out of place in such company and then launched out in a tirade of abuse and vilification of the republican party for state senator and of other Buffalo county republicans that was about as refreshing to his intelligent hearers as are the breezes from the South Omaha stockyards to the olfactory senses of passengers on through trains. Frank took occasion to refer to the republican nomination for state senator from Sherman and Buffalo counties, but having been a standing and unsuccessful candidate for some office for years he is so covered with old political sores he has flown to Dame Democracy in hopes of some healing or at least soothing lotion. He was followed by Mr. Thompson in a dignified, scholarly address, in the midst of which the announcement of the arrival of his train cut the meeting short, and the crowd, now augmented to 47 persons, fully two-thirds of which were republicans fled out. It was by far the chilliest reception ever given political speakers within our memory, even the names Washington, Lincoln, Jackson, McKinley, Roosevelt, LaFollet or the saints be merciful, the great Bryan, failing to create the least applause. Oh, it was icy!

coke or wood; whatever fuel you use costs money. You have to pay so much for it, whether you get all the heat out of it or not. If a stove wastes the fuel and only a part of the heat is extracted, your fuel bills are higher than they should be. It is therefore profitable for you to get a stove that will get all the heat out of the fuel and not waste it. The Genuine is the stove that will do it, even the smoke which it sends out of the chimney is clear, showing that the gasses and soot have been burned and all the heat extracted. The comfort of a stove that is everything it ought to be, that gives heat, holds the fire, that lasts, always good and efficient is worth almost any cost. The Round Oak is a source of comfort in thousands of homes, it will prove the same in yours. Give us the opportunity to explain to you the reasons why it exceeds all other stoves. BUNCHING!

A BUNCH TO START--A BUNCH TO FINISH!

The other kind—not the Ditchfield Spreader—does this class of work. Every manure spreader should have a good substantial end-gate between the load and the beater wheel. This end-gate is necessary to keep the load away from the wheel until this wheel is put in motion. If this end-gate or "tail-gate" does its work properly, the distribution will be the same on the start as at any other time.

The packing of the manure against the beater wheel while hauling the loaded spreader to the field is what causes the big bunch when the machine first starts. To avoid this bunching, the Litchfield Spreader uses a solid end-gate that will hold the load, not simply a comb or springs, because a heavy load cannot be kept away from the wheel with spring teeth. A movable wheel or spring teeth designed to take the place of a solid end-gate will not work on fine manure or manufactured fertilizer. All spreaders should have a solid end-gate like the "Litchfield" uses, to keep the load in the box, whether it is fine or coarse and hold it there until the spreader is ready to distribute in the field.

We do not want to discredit other machines, that do good work after the first bunch is dumped on the ground, but we want to tell our trade that the Litchfield Spreader does universally good work, right from the start and that this is one of the many reasons why this spreader is entitled to the careful investigation of our customers.

If a spreader is used to haul a load any considerable distance or if used over rough roads, or on up-hill grades, the tendency of the load is to crowd back and pack against the rear. An end-gate (not an excuse for one) is just as necessary as it is in a farm wagon. Like the other necessary features for a modern spreader, this takes a prominent place on the Litchfield machine.

We have explained why a rear end-gate or tail-gate is a necessity to prevent bunching and next week we are going to tell you about another end-gate proposition that also has much to do with bunching. We are pretty busy taking care of business on our other lines, as well as spreaders, but we are going to try and find time to post our patrons on this machine.

T. M. REED.
