And now he likens himself to George Washington. Phew! The World-Herald claims the election of its editor to congress is a democratic victory. Where do the populists come in?

One wouldn't suspect Dar Grow of being such a sprinter, as his vote evidences. But it only proves that appearances don't always appear.

And now it is said the edict has gone forth from "Me and the Little Fellow" that Charley Bueshausen comes next. Of course it's all up with Charley.

Outside of four or possibly five in Nebraska, (Sherman, of course, included) there seems to be little evidence of populism being a force to count much.

Just to think of it, Colorado's new governor a republican and a Methodist preacher at that. Colorado sees Nebraska of four years ago and goes one farther, along that line.

Reports from trade centers show that the chief drag on business is the difficulty of securing enough men for the work in hand. Do the people remember 1896 and how it was then?

It don't take much to make Bryan "see things." Since election he "sees" that the United States is preparing to go democratic in 1908. Do you remember his prophecies not so many years since?

Contractors of immense buildings seem these days to be league with the old man of the scythe. The crumbling of the walls of the great hotel being builded at Long Beach, in Southern California a few days ago is a point in instance.

It was a pretty Loup City girl with rich, pouting lips, who said to her escort the other evening, "My motto is to do unto all men as you would have them do to you," and the poor dazed fellow didn't catch on.

By the election returns from New York it will be seen that the state went democratic on all state offices, save that of governor, and possibly lieutenant-governor--the returns on the latter being undecided.

While here in attendance on the delicate services of the M. E. church last Sunday, Gov. Mickey expressed himself as deeply gratified over the election and splendid vote given Geo. H. Sheldon for governor and predicts from him one of the best administrations of Nebraska's chief executive office ever given the people of the state. The governor expressed himself as well pleased that his own term expires so soon, and will gladly turn over the executive office to the incoming governor. Of Governor Mickey, the Northwestern can gladly say he has been one of the best business executives this state has ever had, and if he has made some mistakes, and who does not, those mistakes were of the head and not the heart, and he steps down and out with the best of good will of the people of the state at large, and even his enemies will have to acknowledge that he has been honest and true to his convictions in everything he has done. All honor to such a man.

Good Season for Icebergs.

There is something wrong up around the north pole. Apparently it's warmer up there this season than for a long time, for never in the memory of sea captains has the North Atlantic been spiced with so many icebergs. They have been chipping off from the great polar ice fields like frosting from a cake and have become such a menace to navigation that a half dozen steamship lines have issued orders to the commanders of their ships to change their courses to a more southerly one. This means that most of the liners will hereafter abandon the short route followed during the summer months.

Found Historic Stone.

A laborer in New Jersey in excavating for a monument in a cemetery dug up a meteor fragment weighing 25 pounds. It seemed to be composed of fused minerals, glass, stone and steel. It also contained a mixture of various colored stones intermingled through the otherwise gray mass.

To Be Exact.

"Of course," said Mrs. Goodart, "when you share a cake with your little brother you always give him the largest half."

Encourage Fancy Skating.

The governor general of Canada, to show his interest in and encourage figure skating, has offered a handsome trophy to be competed for next season. The commission for the trophy has been given to a Canadian sculptor, Philippe Hebert, who has lately returned from Paris.

Who Wrote Mother Goose?

Many people are under the impression that "Mother Goose's" stories and nursery rhymes were written by some old housewife. This is a mistake. The real author was a scholar of learning and renown, Charles Perrault, one of the first members of the French academy. He died in 1703, and though it is over two hundred years ago, his tales still live. May the fairies over protect his name.

WHY DO YOU

HIDE YOUR LIGHT UNDER A BUSHEL!

The manufacturers of the Litchfield Spreader had this question put to them by a prominent machine man, he explaining at the time that if he was selling a Spreader with the many advantages found in this no-choke endless conveyor and which he could put out under a five year guarantee, as we are doing with the Litchfield Spreader, that he would not "hide his light under a bushel," but would let the people know what he had. This put the company and ourselves to thinking, and as our readers know, we have been trying to place the actual facts and figures before our customers, so they could use their own judgment. The reason why you do not hear more of the no-choke, endless conveyor is because no machine uses it except the Litchfield. No other spreader can utilize this broadly patented, mechanical device, and for this reason complimentary remarks from competition are not very freely given. This endless conveyor with the no-choking, swinging sections was developed because of a clearly apparent demand for the same, and the wonderful momentum given to the sales of the Litchfield Spreader, by reason of this one particular feature, is the best evidence the manufacturers can offer of its rapidly increasing popularity. It is a winner, because all complicated machinery for returning it to its original starting point is unnecessary. It is a simple, plain, every day affair, and does the business without the need of an expert mechanic to keep it in working order. There is no stopping except when you get through with it, and then it rests until another load is to be handled. The life is much longer than the other kind. It runs much more smoothly and gives much more smoothly and gives much better general results and satisfaction. It is just the simple, plain every day conveyor, which all Spreaders should have but which prior to the invention of the no-choke device was not practical in cold weather or under various other unfavorable conditions. The only favor we ask is an opportunity to show our customers what this modern Spreader will do,—the only Spreader made and sold under a guarantee for five years. To be continued next week. T. M. REED.
