NO MORE RAILROAD BUILDING

Oharacterizes Action of Congress Concerning Them and Fixing of Rates as Hinderance, to Progress.

New York-No more railroads will he built in the undeveloped parts of the United States except at the risk of and with the capital of existing l'aes if the government's plan to fix rates based upon a revaluation is carpied out, in the opinion of Stuyvesant Fish, former president of the Illinois Central railroad.

Mr. Fish expressed his opinion in the course of an address before the graduation class in applied science at Columbia university Monday. He characterized the action of congress in giving the interstate commerce commission the power of fixing rates as a distinct reversion to medieval practice which will hinder and delay, if it does not in some places absolutely prevent the development of the west and south through the establishment of new jobbing centers. "No man would venture his capital in the construction of a railroad in a new country for, anything like that 5 or 6 per cent per aanum which might be allowed by the government as a fair return thereon," said Mr. Fish. "As one experienced in the business and interested pecuniarily in railroad shares I can and do look upon what is going on under the law of 1996 with equanimity, much as I deprecate the unwisdom of that law as a citizen having regard to the welfare of the whole of our common country. In saying this let me not be understood as opposed to the regulation of the railroads by the state or federal authorities, or by both, for in common with nearly all railroad men I ap preciate the justice, the necessity and the wisdom of such control.
