We received a pleasant call Tuesday from our good friend, W. H. Margritz of Ravenna, accompanied by one of his many big, husky sons. W. H. is a big, warm-hearted prosperous farmer and land-holder, and enjoys life to its fullest. We are always glad to have him visit us. Of course, he is a substantial reader of the Northwestern.
Last Thursday a darling baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. John O. Douglas of Webster township, but the fragile little flower was allowed to bloom for only a few short days in the home, death claiming baby the following Monday evening. The funeral was held from the home yesterday afternoon, Rev. McEwen conducting the services, and the little form was laid to rest in the cemetery nearby. The many friends of the bereaved parents and a community at large will deeply sympathize with the afflicted ones in their hour of sorrow.
The editor was made happy last Friday by the arrival of his daughter, Mrs. Bess E. Phipps, from Cody, Wyoming, accompanied by her two children, who will visit here and with her husband's family at Franklin, this state, during the winter. Mrs. Phipps' health is not of the very best, the climate of the high altitude of Wyoming and the mountains not agreeing with her, and will shortly be joined by Mr. Phipps, when they intend locating somewhere in good old Nebraska. Later—Mrs. Phipps and children left this morning for Wilcox, this state, to visit Grandma Phipps and many relatives and friends in that section, and will return later to make us a more extended visit.

Owing to the increased price of print paper and the strenuous times caused by the recent bank flurry, and because we think it for the best interest of the editor, we have reduced the size of the paper. We expect to give the same amount of news in a boiled-down form, as it were, and it all depends upon the way business picks up whether we will ever return to the blanket form.
The 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Daddow of Clay township died last Saturday evening after a brief illness. The bereaved family have the heartfelt sympathy of their many friends in their sorrow. Henry Nicholas Daddow was born Dec. 22, 1904, and died Dec. 28, 1907.
