The editor of the Northwestern has reason to feel proud of the way its readers have and are responding to the subscription notice and state-ments of the past few days. In only one instance has a reader expressed displeasure, out of the great number who have remembered us in the most pleasurable way. It makes one think he has the best lot of patrons of any paper extant. Many thanks to you each and all.

The nineteen societies of Organized Agriculture meet at Lincoln during the week of January 20th. Discussions will be had on every subject of importance to the farmer. The even-ing sessions will be occupied with addresses from very prominent men and on Friday night Governor and Mrs. Sheldon will hold a reception at the Governor's mansion to which every one in attendance is invited. winter meetings will be attended by more than three thousand of our progressive farmers, and we are glad that such an opportunity is given for our farmers to meet with the med who have the most advanced ideas for the advancement of agri-

The Northwestern appreciates (?) to the fullest extent the interest manifested by the various press bureaus in the editorial columns of the paper by furnishing us with a super-abundance of editorial matter favoring the candidacy of this and that man for the presidency, but really the stuff sent in is proving somewhat burdensome for our waste basket and causes us to take valuable time in making bonfires for the same. Too bad there is not a market here for refuse paper, or we might gain coin of the realm in the disposal of the same. Bah! it makes one sick over the immense press bureau stuff flooding the U. S. mails.
