A change of four votes would have made Loup City "dry" this year. But you know the old adage, "A miss is as good as a mile."

The Bee says the average American boy is smarter than his father and all the rest of the family to boot. This coming from Victor is not so slow.

Gov. Hughes is not quite so bulky as Taft, but is not allowing the big secretary to go to sleep in perfect security of winging the presidential nomination.

Lincoln went "wet" by 221 votes, as ascertained by the final count. But booze can only be sold between the hours of 7 o'clock in the morning and 7 o'clock in the evening—all day light.

Jacob Albers writes from Loup City to correct the impression that that municipality has voted out the saloon. Mr. Albers says the town was carried by the wets by six votes.—Lincoln State Journal.

A disastrous fire swept over Chelsea, a suburb of Boston, last Sunday, rendering 10,000 people homeless, destroying $8,000,000 worth of property and devastating some 350 acres in area.

While some of the farmers have been worrying because of the lack of rain others say that they have observed that the best seasons that we have ever had were dry in March and April.

The Omaha Bee got the telegram from this city in regard to the results of the late municipal election badly twisted. The telegram sent gave the result "wet" as it was, but the types made it read "dry" instead.

From Alliance where a dumber of prosecutions are pending against liquor dealers for violating the pure food law comes an appeal to Deputy Food Commissioner J. W. Johnson for a dismissal of the pending cases on the ground that the recent election puts the saloons of that city out of business.

It is urged that the result of the election is punishment enough for these liquor dealers. The deputy commissioner insists that the prosecutions instituted before the election should go on for the law commands prosecution of all violations.

Sought Death by Suicide

The city was very much surprised and shocked Wednesday evening as the report passed over town that Mrs. Charles Alexander had destroyed her life by taking some kind of poison, presumably carbolic acid.

Mrs. Alexander was on the streets yesterday afternoon and her friends say they noticed nothing unusual in her actions which would indicate that such tragic thoughts were on her mind.

At Mobile, Alabama, this week Monday, a judge of the criminal court held the Sunday law against amusements as unconstitutional.

Bryan is now having a case of "Too Much Johnson," as the Minnesota aspirant for the presidency is causing William J. to sit up and take notice.

According to a compilation in the Lincoln Evening News, there are 240 "dry" towns in Nebraska, of which 40 came in out of the "wet" at the last election.

At Worcester, Mass., on Monday, the New England Methodist Episcopal conference adopted a memorial to general conference recommending the repeal of the article forbidding dancing, card playing and attending theaters.

Hastings is having a time of it over the late municipal election. It appears the result was "wet" but the board stands a tie.

Only two petitions so far out for saloons in Loup City, those of Mr. Graefe and T. H. Elsner, H. C. Mullick preferring at present not to take out a petition.

Rev. Anton Kuhls, priest of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church at Kansas City, has condemned the "Merry Widow" hat and it must go.

The reverend father says "Hats with broad, spreading brims and tall waving plumes, little tents they may be called, are entirely out of place at the services of the church. They are out of place when worn with the crucifix.

BODY OF OLSON GIRL FOUND

Mystery of Little Child's Disappearance is Cleared Up.

Rosalie, Neb., April 13.—The body of Lillie Olson, the four-year-old girl who mysteriously disappeared from her home near here on December 1, was found in a ravine two miles northeast of this place this afternoon by two schoolboys.

Two sons of Mr. Neilson, a farmer living north of this place, discovered the body of little Lillie Olson as they were cutting across Bussemann's pasture two miles northeast of Rosalie and two miles and a half north of the Olson farm.

The disappearance of the Olson child created a great sensation in Thurston county last fall and attracted the attention of the entire state.

Lillie Olson, who was the four-year-old daughter of a farmer living near Rosalie, was last seen on the evening of Sunday, December 1, attempting to follow her older brother after the cows.

Lillie Olson, who was the four-year-old daughter of a farmer living near Rosalie, was last seen on the evening of Sunday, December 1, attempting to follow her older brother after the cows.

When she did not return to the house, a search was started and for days passes made a futile hunt for the little girl.

At first suspicion attached to the Indians who live on the Winnebago reservation, which is near the Olson farm.

Investigation, however, showed that the redskins had nothing to do with the disappearance of the girl.

Ugly rumors connecting other people with the mysterious disappearance were circulated for several weeks but nothing came of them and the search which had been carried on at different times for a month was finally dropped, and the case of Lillie Olson remained a deep mystery until yesterday.
