While John Warneke was hauling baled hay last Saturday evening, and coming down the second hill north of town, the wagon tongue came down, plunging into the ground with such a jolt that Mr. Warneke, who was on top of the load, lost his balance, falling backward to the frozen earth, fracturing two ribs. The wagon pushed the team down the hill, where it ran into a wagon being driven by A. C. Best, and was stopped without further damage. Mr. Warneke is doing nicely and is able to be out.
