

HE HAD FORGOTTEN PLACE

hurried across the border. He made what purported to be a confession to Mr. Taft and Mr. Yglesias and agreed to go to the spot where he had buried the plunder and turn the money over to the express company's representatives. The night following their arrival in San Antonio with the prisoner they took him secretly from jail and drove to the ranch. Beeler searched around for the gold, but no trace of it could be found. The disgusted officers took him back to jail, where he remained until his trial and sentence to prison for five years.

Unable to Locate Money.

Wells Fargo & Co. sued him and obtained judgment for the amount of the stolen money. During the time that he was in the penitentiary detectives kept a constant watch on Beeler's wife, thinking he might have turned the stolen money over to her. When he stepped out of prison two detectives met him and accompanied him to San Antonio. Beeler worked at odd jobs for a time, and then obtained a place as fireman on a locomotive on the Trinity & Brazos railroad. A detective rode on every train that his engine pulled. Beeler was watched day and night. He went to the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexico railroad from the Trinity & Brazos Valley, but they followed him. It is now six years since he left the penitentiary, and until a few weeks ago there never was a moment in all that period that he was not being spied upon by detectives. It is said the express company is at last convinced that Beeler's story of some one finding the buried money and getting away with it is true. As a locomotive engineer this former express robber is performing good and faithful service.

WANT ORLEANS TO BE KING

Camelots Du Roi Are a Riotous Crowd of Royalists and Frequently Create Excitement in Paris.

The outbreak of the Orleanist party, calling themselves the "Camelots du Roi," which every now and then get a little excitement in Paris by assaulting ministers, would seem to be the French equivalent of our suffragettes, says an English paper.

They are supposed to be agitating for the overthrow of the French republic and the return of the Duc d'Orleans as king, but it is very doubtful indeed whether this sort of thing is likely to help the duke up the steps of a throne.

The society is composed of all sorts and conditions of men and their nobility down to waiters and errands. The Marquis de Vasselot de at one is a prominent member, and of it is Count Boutin de Casellane.

The Marquis is one of the "royal martyrs" of the cause. A few months ago she was awarded five years imprisonment for the use of "poisoning terms" and for riotous behavior at a royalist demonstration.

Nobody was more pleased in the marquis herself at the sentence. She was sentenced during her absence from Paris, but she promptly returned and was presented with sheaves of flowers by admiring royalists as she entered the prison.

The "lawyers" generally confine themselves to "riotous behavior," occasionally indulging in special little excitement, like the attempt of Matte, a waiter, to pull M. Fallieres' beard, "because he would make him look so ridiculous."

Another of their little attempts to reinstate the Duc d'Orleans on the throne of France was perpetrated one dark night, when the conspirators sallied forth with pots of paint, and Paris woke up next morning, to find that a number of statues, erected to the memory of senators and other harmless folk, had been daubed with brilliant coats of red paint.

Such performances have, in fact, made the duke appear not a little ridiculous at times, and a few months ago he was moved to declare in an interview that "these tactics do more harm than good."

Accuracy of Unaimed Bullets.

Unless you have considerable experience with firearms you may discharge a small caliber rifle a hundred times at a target and never put a mark on it. You may fire one of the trifling little 22s direct into a fleeing rabbit's carcass and he'll run away with the bullet and waggle his ears at you derisively. But let a living man come anywhere near you when you're playing with the other wise harmless gun, and you'll not only hit him every time but you'll inevitably find a vital spot and lay him low the very first shot.

If some wise student of trajectories and ballistics and other mysteries of gunnery could puzzle out the principle that underlies this phenomena he would add something to the world's knowledge that would preserve his name for the admiration of generations to come.

The Unhappy Drama.

"How did Billings save that high class comedy of his?"

"By changing the scene of the third act to a chiroprapist's studio."

"What is the matter?" inquired Janet calmly.

"It is terrible! Terrible!" she exclaimed. "I see a man standing in the corner of the room, and his face is like a pig's!"

"How absurd!" said Janet.

"After this he left her to her own devices, no longer hypnotizing her. For a few days she saw the man with the face of a pig. Gradually the hallucinatory image faded, and at length entirely disappeared, leaving her restored to perfect health. As Dr. Janet afterward explained, the grotesque hallucination which he had succeeded in impressing upon her had brought about a profound revulsion of feeling. Manifestly, she could not love a man with a pig's head. She no longer wanted to see her sweetheart, or to think of him, and in proportion as she ceased to think of him the hallucination disappeared."

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow sids; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the dependency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K-25 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power. It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

Young Age Pensions.

Young-age pensions! Why not? Titles, honors, riches, pensions and most other good things are, as a rule, postponed to a period of life when the capacity for enjoying them has been blunted. Australia was one of the first countries to adopt old-age pensions, and now a Labor member of the commonwealth parliament proposes a complementary scheme of young-age pensions. He would start by pensioning the fourth child at birth. The fact that three had previously been born showed that the parents were doing their duty and deserving well of the state. The young-age pension would "reward industry and encourage the birth rate."—London Chronicle.

Left Both Satisfied.

It had happened on one of those few surviving pay-after-you-enter cars.

"Oh, I insist on paying, Gladys," said the brunette. "You paid coming down."

"No, I shall pay," declared Gladys with equal firmness. "What if I did pay coming down—didn't you buy that last package of gum?"

"Let me settle the quarrel, ladies," suggested the diplomatic conductor. "Why not use the denatured form of Dutch treat?"

"What's that?"

"Well, you each pay the other's fare."

And that was the way they solved it.—Cleveland Leader.

A Young Philosopher.

Time is a relative quantity. Some minutes seem like hours, and some hours seem like minutes. How to control this fight is beyond most persons, but the little boy mentioned below seems to have progressed pretty well for a youngster.

The teacher was surprised to see that he remained perfectly idle all through recess, and accordingly asked him why he did not play.

"Cause," he said, slowly, "it makes recess too quick if I play, and I want it to last a bit!"—Youth's Companion.

On the Dog.

A small West Philadelphia boy may be an author some day. He has just finished his first essay. It is on a dog.

"A dog is an animal with four legs, a tale and pants but he never changes them. He wags his tale when he is glad and sits on it when he is sorry. A dog is a useful animal because he bites burglars but he is more trouble than he is worth when he tracks mud on the carpet. A bull dog is the king of beasts."

A Sounding Name.

"Who is that girl in furs who seems to be the big scream?"

"She? Oh, she's our sleigh belle."

Benedict (seriously)—Neither. We live under a provisional government by the cook.

We're All Her Friends.

A pretty story of Miss Ellen Terry and a gallant young playwright has gone the rounds of the Players' club.

Miss Terry attended in New York the first night of this playwright's latest work and at the end of the third act he was presented to her.

She congratulated him warmly.

"It is very good," she said. "Your play is very good, indeed, and I shall send all my American friends to see it."

"In that case," said the playwright, with a very low and courtly bow, "my little piece will sell 90,000,000 tickets."

They Both Knew.

The fool said one day in the king's presence, "I am the king!" And the king laughed, for he knew that his fool was wrong.

A week later the king was angry, because of an error he had committed, and exclaimed: "I am a fool!" And the fool laughed, for he knew that his king was right.—Smart Set.

The Primitive Man.

"Jones is so dreadfully primitive."

"What's his latest?"

"Why, we were at the opera house the other night and a stage hand removed a table and Jones yelled 'Supe! supe!' We were dreadfully mortified."

"I was at a dinner the other night and Jones sat next to me. When he saw the row of spoons and forks and knives beside his plate he beckoned to the waiter. 'Say, boy,' he hoarsely muttered, 'I guess you spilled the spoon holder!'"

"Well, it's lucky he's rich."

"Ain't it?"

REALLY OPENED THEIR EYES

Rev. Henry R. Rose in the Newark Star tells the story of a young minister who had recently taken charge of a small parish in Vermont. He aspired to greater things and a large field, and in the hope that his reputation would travel beyond the limits of the village to which he had been sent he threw into his sermons all the force and eloquence at his command. He was, however, totally unprepared for what was intended for a compliment, but which was put to him in such a way that it left him in doubt as to the real impression he had made. One Sunday morning, after an especially brilliant effort, he was greeted by an old lady, who was one of the most faithful attendants at all services. Approaching the young minister, she said: "Ah, sir, we do enjoy your sermons so much, they are so instructive. Do you believe it, we never knew what sin was until you came to the parish."

COMING HIS WAY.

"What luck, my boy?"

"Oh! pretty fair. I got six winders, two lamp posts and one silk hat already."

The Patient Townsmen.

"So you got to work in spite of the snow drifts?"

"Yes. But I don't see why the city folks should not follow the example of country people and put up a strong kick for good roads."

The whirlwind of passion scatters many of the seeds of sin.

Now About Clean Food

Another Splendid Opportunity to Bring Out Facts

When the "Weekly" which sued us for libel (because we publicly denounced them for an editorial attack on our claims) was searching for some "weak spot," they thought best to send a N. Y. Atty. to Battle Creek, summoned 25 of our workmen and took their sworn statements before a Commissioner.

Did we object? No. On the contrary, we helped all we could, for the opportunity was too good to be lost.

Geo. Haines testified he inspected the wheat and barley, also floors and every part of the factories to know things were kept clean. That every 30 minutes a sample of the products was taken and inspected to keep the food up to standard and keep out any impurities, also that it is the duty of every man in the factories to see that anything not right is immediately reported. Has been with the Co. 10 years.

Edward Young testified had been with Co. 15 years. Inspector, he and his men examined every sack and car of wheat and barley to see they were up to standard and rejected many cars.

H. E. Burt, Supt., testified has been with Co. over 13 years. Bought only the best grain obtainable. That the Co. kept a corps of men who do nothing but keep things clean, bright and polished.

Testified that no ingredient went into Grape-Nuts and Postum except those printed in the advertising. No possibility of any foreign things getting into the foods as most of the machinery is kept closed. Asked if the factory is open to the public, said "yes" and "it took from two to three guides constantly to show visitors through the works." Said none of the processes were carried on behind closed doors.

At this point atty. for the "Weekly" tried to show the water used was from some outside source. Testified the water came from Co.'s own artesian wells and was pure.

He testified the workmen were first-class, high-grade and inspected by the Co.'s physician to be sure they were all in proper physical condition; also testified that state reports showed that Co. pays better wages than the average and he thought higher than any in the state.

F. B. Martin, Asst. Supt., testified Grape-Nuts made of wheat, barley, yeast and water. Anything else? "No, sir." Postum made of Wheat, Wheat Bran and New Orleans Molasses. Statements made on his experience of about 10 years with Co.

Testified bakers are required to wear fresh white suits, changed every other day. Said had never known any of the products being sent out that were below the high standard of inspection. Asked if any one connected with the Postum Co. had instructed him how to testify. Said, "No, sir."

Horace Brown testified has been with Co. 9 years. Worked in Grape-Nuts bake shop. Testified the whole of the flour is composed of Wheat and Barley. Atty. tried to confuse him, but he insisted that any casual visitor could see that nothing else went into the flour. Said machinery and floors always kept clean.

So these men were examined by the "Weekly" lawyers hoping to find at least one who would say that some under-grade grain was put in or some unclean condition was found somewhere.

But it was no use.

Each and every man testified to the purity and cleanliness.

As a sample, take the testimony of Luther W. Mayo.

Testified been with Company about 10 years. Now working in the bakery department making Grape-Nuts. Testified that the ovens and floors are kept clean and the raw products as they go in are kept clean. Also that the wearing apparel of the employes has to be changed three times a week.

Q. Do you use Postum or Grape-Nuts yourself at all?

A. Yes, I use them at home.

Q. If from your knowledge of the factory which you have gained in your ten years at the factory you believed that they were dirty or impure in any way, would you use them?

A. I do not think I would. No.

Asked if any one on behalf of the Company had asked him to testify in any particular manner. Stated "No."

All these sworn depositions were carefully excluded from the testimony at the trial, for they wouldn't sound well for the "Weekly."

"Think of the fact that every man swore to the purity and cleanliness so that the Atty. for the "Weekly" was forced to say in open court that the food was pure and good.

What a disappointment for the "Weekly!"

But the testimony showed:

All of the grain used in Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties is the highest standard possible to obtain.

All parts of the factory are kept scrupulously clean.

None of the workmen had been told how to testify.

Most of them have been from 10 to 15 years with the Co. and use the products on their tables at home.

Why do their families use the products, Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties that they, themselves, make?
