

Tailored Hat Designed for the Modish Black Velour

A velour hat has been deemed most serviceable for fashion for outings. The hat in the picture has the wide cravat bow of stiff gros-grain ribbon as a side decoration. The hats will be worn very much this summer.

SMART COSTUME

Silk and wool fancy mixture is used here, the color of a soft shade of green.
The skirt is trimmed at foot with wide band of black satin, standing up in deep tabs each side; two rows of fine silk braid edge the satin.
The smart little coat is cut Magyar, it joins in front to waist and is trimmed each side with satin which is carried round the basque. A satin band about 1 1/2 inches wide finishes the waist.
Hat of Taped to match dress, trimmed with ribbon bows and a wreath of small flowers.
Materials required for the dress: 4 1/2 yards 46 inches wide, 1 3/4 yards satin 22 inches wide.

New Leather Belts.

Inch-wide patent leather belts in black, pink coral or light blue are cut over their white linings and piped with the white. The buckles are brass or leather covered.

Lingerie Gowns Popular.

As the season advances and outdoor functions become more general, some delightful lingerie dresses will be seen; for in the warmer weather there is always a great vogue in favor of white. It will not be unrelieved purity, however, for the note of color will occur in sash, shoe and waist belt, while in the silk or nylon frock the lingerie collar and the flounce will give it the simple touch and charm which is so characteristic of the artistic creations of the moment.
Hats of real pagama with contrasting underlinings are the most appropriate and delightful for wear with dainty muslin frocks, and they are quite smart enough for most functions.

Silk Covert Coating.

A novelty in fabrics is silk covert coating, a very smart choice among the exclusive, and one that ranks high as a material that can be associated with the essentially simple tailored suit and yet be depended upon to produce a novel effect.
Knife killed frills are seen on taffeta gowns and coats.

ELABORATE BAGS FOR BRIDGE

All Kinds of Ornamentation Are Suggested for These Up-to-Date Accessories.

The wrist bag which the bridge expert carries is becoming a very splendid affair of silk or satin, embroidered with floss or closely encrusted with tiny beads of crystal, pearl or metal. Not infrequently it is of heavy lace, lined with a silken material or with a metallic gauze. One model is a very long and slender affair of lilac appliqué with genuine Irish lace motifs. About its mouth is a narrow edging of the lace and below that is a pocket through which runs a cording of mauve silk and silver threads, which, when drawn taut, firmly closes the bag. At its base, where the receptacle is gathered over, a small ring, is a long tassel of the same materials as the hanger. The other model, of rose velvet elaborately embroidered with seed pearls, is in saddle bag shape and has mouths opening under huge rings of mother of pearl. Edging both ends and running up the sides as far as the rings is a fringe of pearl beads and at the corners are balls of seed pearls.

COAT SETS OF ULTRA DESIGN

Very Smart Are Those of Crash Which Have Suddenly Become So Popular.

Ultra smart are the coat sets in heavy crash. While a few of them are entirely of a creamy hue, the most effective are in old rose, delft blue, pastel green or khaki, embroidered with white or black linen floss. This needlework, which is in a bold design and done in a close, solid stitch, runs from the inner to the outer edge of both collar and cuffs, where the hem-stitched border is very coarse and effective. The collars are five pointed and so extremely broad that one Van Dyke terminates at the center of the back, two Van Dykes fall over the top of the arm, and the remaining pair extend almost half way to the waist line. The cuffs have three sharp Van Dykes, a deep one running backward to the elbow, and two shorter ones pointing toward the inner side of the arm. These coat sets are now worn with plainly tailored serges of dark hue, but they will be equally smart looking with the tailored frocks in white, gray or tan.

Summer Luncheon Sets.

For summer luncheon tables especially, there are cream crash centerpieces, napkins and doily sets embroidered in black and blue, black and red, or black and green. The pieces are all scalloped.

For the Sick Room.

To sweeten the air of a sick room for a patient who is tired of the usual perfumes, burn a few drops of oil of sandalwood on a shovel. Eau de Cologne dropped on a hot shovel also gives a most agreeable odor. If perfumes are not at hand an admirable substitute may be found in camphor, a piece of which may be burned by the application of a hot poker. The strong smell of the camphor quickly disappears, taking with it all the close and disagreeable odors of the sick room.

Bonnets for Country.

Little poke and country bonnets have had a great success when made in fine, silky straws which have a droil incongruity with their simplicity. They are trimmed with tiny flowers and broderie Anglaise. Some pretty hats of this variety are, however, made up in Valenciennes lace, while others, again, are covered with cretonne and flowered muslin. In short, there is in children's millinery the same range of choice as there is in our own.

IN THE PHILIPPINES

New Orleans Girl Spends Several Months on Islands.

Writes of Her Trip on a Coastwise Boat and Men Served to the Party in Picturesque Native Town.

Manila, P. I.—"We were invited to spend several weeks in this province, and as it was likely to prove a novel experience, we came," says Mrs. Marcia Dorothy Ryar, a New Orleans girl who spent several months in the Philippines.
"We took the coastwise boat, which below stairs was crammed with natives, ponies, carabaos, vegetables, the inevitable fighting cocks (a native neglects his family, but never his gamecock), fish, smell and babies.
"On the upper deck, however, beneath an awning, we were comfortable enough in steamer chairs.
"That evening we reached a native town, very odd with its native straw huts on stilts, and its crazy streets with cats, strings of fish and children. Also cocks and cockpits—and the jungle behind it all.
"There a banca, a clumsy, canoe-shaped native boat, decidedly top-heavy and uncomfortable, met us. It was paddled expertly by natives, picturesque in their scanty attire, and wearing at their belts knives quite large enough to make me shudder. We arrived at the station to see a magnificent sunset and eat a unique dinner. On the menu were of course many familiar dishes, but besides there were fried bananas sliced crosswise, thin and crisp, tasting like eggplant, a cousin to the cucumber, roasted, a salad made from coconut buds with mayonnaise. I did not like it at all—rice like popcorn, bamboo shoots, chicken with curry and a jelly made from flowers, which tasted like currants, also a drink of cocoonut milk, which is awful.
"The house is a darling. It is large, native in style, of straw and bamboo floors, large rooms, sliding partitions and shower bath in each room. Behind is the jungle, before a fine stretch of lawn, a beach and the water.

"That evening we sat on the wide gallery, in the usual steamer chairs, and listened to the plaintive native music from the barrio, where a dance was in full swing.
"Our host has a charming, if lonely existence. There are fifty native men in the barrio, whom he oversees at their work. His household arrangements are perfect, but it takes four boys and a cook to keep them so. It seems so funny to see a boy in pink knee pants, no shirt, but a dagger in his belt, serving chocolate, and excellent chocolate at that.
"The place is beautifully laid out; the irrigation ditches are crossed by pretty bamboo bridges, all things lending themselves to the general effect. I saw coffee, bananas and pineapples growing for the first time, the latter a beautiful red while growing. You should see the wonderful orchids and ferns, some with fronds twelve feet long."

SHE WEARS SNAKE NECKLACE

Girl Wins Wager Consisting of 30 Pounds of Candy by Promenading With Reptiles.

Greeley, Colo.—Two four-foot bull snakes may be slightly more cumbersome and hideous to the multitude as a necklace than chameleons or lizards, but Miss Bessie Potter, leader in the younger society set, won 30 pounds of candy by wearing the unusual neck adornment on the street.
Miss Potter captured the reptiles on Wild Cat mountain, and in the presence of friends twined her new "pets" about her neck. Her exhibition suggested the wager. Six of the party willingly offered five pounds of choice candy to see Miss Potter promenade Ninth avenue carrying live snakes about her neck.
"A soft bet," declared the girl, who without a second's hesitation, carried More than 500 stound aghast, and their willingness to keep at a "safe" distance saved Miss Potter trouble in making her way. She returned home and put the reptiles in a box.
Wind Carries Girl Ten Miles.
O'Neil, Neb.—Torn from her father's arms as he was carrying her to a storm cellar, the ten-year-old daughter of L. G. Carley, was carried ten miles by the wind and then dropped unhurt in a grove.

SATISFACTORY PASTURE FOR PREPARING HOGS FOR MARKET

Rape is Excellent, as it Grows Quickly and Can be Sown Rather Late in Season—Cowpeas Also Furnish Good Feed—Pumpkins Cost but Little and are Valuable in Fall.

This 80 and 90-cent corn that we have been feeding so far this summer to our fattening hogs makes some kind of a summer hog pasture absolutely necessary if we are to raise pork at all profit.
The ordinary stock pasture is only a very little better than no pasture at all for the hog that you are trying to put fat upon. I notice that while it undoubtedly keeps my hogs healthy and vigorous, yet the amount of exercise they get on such pasture takes some fat off them.
Rape is the most satisfactory hog pasture that I have been able to find, says a writer in Farm Progress. It grows quickly, and can be sown rather late in the season. The hogs like it better than any sops or special feeds you can prepare for them. It should be sown by itself, and the hog raiser who has a patch now growing considers himself fortunate.

Last year I sowed an old orchard with rape late in April, and was surprised to see it renew itself two or three times during the summer in spite of the dry season. I kept the hogs out of it till it was high enough to hide a rabbit, and they were unable to keep it down. If the hogs are full grown, it is good policy to keep them out of the rape patch till it is a foot in height. In case they eat it down the hogs should be taken out of the field till the rape gets another growth.
Cowpeas Sown at this time in the year should furnish very good late pasture for the hogs. Peas are not so very much value to the hog till the pods are formed, and are beginning to ripen just a little. Then they are equal to any ration that has ever been devised. Rape sown at this time in the year will come in plenty of time to make a splendid fall pasture for the hogs. It will serve to get them in the best possible condition for the heavy corn feeding that comes a little later in the year.

It is not too late yet for the northern farmer to plant pumpkins to be used as hog feed in the fall. This is a feed that can be raised at very little cost, and yet will prove very valuable in the autumn, especially when pastures are short. I always plant a large number of pumpkins in the corn fields at the time when the corn is "laid by."
Follow up this last cultivation by planting a few hundred pumpkins in hills, and you will have a good many granary shelter, out of immediate danger of frost, the pumpkins will usually escape freezing till they are fed away.
Fly Repeller for Cows.
The Kansas Experiment station uses this preparation to keep flies off cows: Take 2 bars of common laundry soap and dissolve in warm water. To this add 1 1/2 pounds of resin, crushed fine, or pulverized, 1/2 pint of fish oil and water enough to make 3 gallons. When ready to use add 1/2 pint of kerosene oil. Apply with brush or spray pump about three times a week until the hair becomes coated with resin when a few number of applications will be sufficient. The use of this will be better than fighting the cows while they fight the flies and it has the additional merit of being cheap.

The Discarded Vegetables.
A variety of feed will stimulate the hen to her greatest egg production. The small potatoes and other vegetables that are not suitable for human food can be fed to the chicken to splendid advantage. If you feel like making their ration unusually appetizing just boil these up and mix enough bran or shorts to make a comparatively dry mash.
In the Molting Season.
Hens cannot lay and grow feathers at the same time. It has been said by some writers that their hens laid right through the molting season. This is not so. A hen can lay while she is shedding her coat, but the work of growing the new feathers fully starts it requires all the food and strength to properly perform that function.

WATER SUPPLY IS CONVENIENT

For the dairy farm there is great need for convenient water supply for cooling milk, as well as for drinking. With a windmill the water can be pumped into the galvanized iron tank, as shown above. The overflow is carried to a second tank, which is large enough to contain all the cans required. From this the water flows to the large watering tank, which may be situated some distance away. The illustration shows a modern system.

GETTING FOWLS READY FOR FALL

Pullets Should be Put by Themselves as They Will Do Better and Grow Much Faster.

As soon as the sex can be determined, it is well to put the pullets by themselves. They will grow faster and do better. In fact, they should be fed differently from the cockerels, for you will want to get them in shape for early egg production.
Now, it is not well to force them prematurely into egg production, but it is best to get them in condition so that they will begin to lay during the fall. This is the harvest time, for it is then that you will get the highest prices paid for eggs. If you have a nice lot of pullets that are laying during the fall and early winter, you will get splendid returns from them.
These pullets, as soon as separated, should be given a clean house and kept free from lice. If you find when making the division that some of them have lice, it should be well to powder them and put them all in a small house, where you can attend to them before putting them in their regular quarters. Feed plenty of bran and beef scrap, and keep oyster shells before them.
They will come along nicely when away from the annoyance of the cockerels, and after they have become used to their new home and see one another, they will grow like weeds, and soon look like mature birds.
Pasture Was Lacking.
Sometimes it isn't the seller's fault when a cow doesn't come up to advance notices. An old Quaker sold a cow and some time afterward the buyer complained she was not yielding the promised amount of milk. "Thee should have bought my pasture, too," was the Quaker's significant reply.
Keep the Young Stock.
Some farmers stand in their own light by selling off the thrifty young stock that is worth just as much to them as to the buyer.

MADE BIG PROFIT FOR STATE

Purely Business Argument for the Establishment of Sanatoriums for the Tuberculous.
According to figures contained in the annual report of Dr. H. L. Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode island state sanatorium, the earnings of the patients of that institution during the year 1911 would amount to over $266,000. This is a sum three times as large as that spent each year for maintenance of the institution, including four per cent. interest and depreciation charges.
The actual earnings in 1911 of 170 ex-patients were obtained by Dr. Barnes. These ranged from $2 to $31 per week, the total earnings for the year amounting to $102,752. On this basis, Dr. Barnes computes the figures above given. He says, however: "While institutions for the cure of tuberculosis are good investments, there is good reason for thinking that institutions for the isolation of far-advanced cases would be still better investments.
Out of a total of 46,450 hospital days' treatment given, 39,147, or 84 per cent., were free, the treatment costing the state on an average $200 per patient. Out of 188 free cases investigated, 56 had no families and no income on admission to the sanatorium. Out of 132 patients having homes, the number in the family averaged 5.2, and the average family earnings were $5.46. In 59 cases the families had no income, and in only five cases were there any savings, none of which amounted to as much as $100.

The Middle-Aged Woman.

Of the many ways in which the middle-aged woman may vary the effect of her afternoon gowns none is simpler than the use of a collar and cuffs of white voile edged with scalloping and embroidery in a floral design. Another change may be the frock set of white chiffon with border of black malines, and still another is the one of black net hemstitched with silver thread. Some of these collars are so long in front that they terminate only at the waist line, where they cross in surplus effect and are tucked away under the girdle. An excellent model of this sort is of light blue lawn embroidered with black dots, and a second is of white agaric trimmed with tiny folds of broadcloth, alternating with eponge.

The Giveaway.
"Jane," said her father, "how does it happen that I find four gold cigars on the mantelpiece this morning? Did Henry leave them for me?"
"No; he took them out of his vest pocket to avoid breaking them last night, and I guess he forgot all about them afterwards."
The laugh that followed made her wish that she had been as careful with her speech as Henry had been with his cigars.—Detroit Free Press.

A Lottery.
"Is that picture one of the old masters you were telling me about?" asked Mr. Cumrox.
"Yes," replied the art dealer. "It is a genuine treasure; absolutely authentic."
"I'll buy it. I already have three just like it, and somewhere in the bunch I'm liable to hit the original."

Her Affections Dampened.
