J. W. BURLEIGH, Ed. and Pub

Miss Jess Culley Married,

The following item will be read with interest by all friends of the young lady here, whose name is legion:

Rev. L. C. McEwen received a telegram last Wednesday afternoon requesting him to come to San Diego and perform the marriage ceremony for Miss Jessie Culley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Culley, formerly residents of Loup City, who was wedded to a young man of the California city. Rev. McEwen left for San Diego Thursday and expects to remain in California during his vacation period. The bride was a member of Rev. McEwen's church at Loup City when he was pastor there before coming to Kearney, and the young lady promised that she would have him perform her marriage ceremony if she ever wedded, and her promise was made good.—Kearney Democrat.

Letter From Ina F. Taylor

In enclosing remittance for another year's visits of the Northwestern, Miss Ina F. Taylor writes from Oceana, California:

"As I missed a month's issue (May) by absence, I remain uncertain of the outcome of Mr. A. P. Culley's condition, who was an old and dear friend of the family, will you kindly forward to me those back numbers, which gives it? (Mr. Culley's condition is about the same, at last reports his life still hanging in the balance, Ed.) I am back once more to my beautiful ocean climate home by the sea, and forward the Northwestern here, as I wish to keep in touch with the conduct of the 'dear old-time friends' and the precious memories associated with them, and I convey to them through this means my dearest remembrances and undying esteem, with the word for yourself of my sincerest respects. Thursday's Booster Trip

The second booster trip, last Thursday, taking in Ashton, Rockville, Ravenna, Sweetwater, Hazard and Litchfield, was one of the most enjoyable and successfully conducted affairs imaginable. Some criticism was given over reported fast running, racing and wanting to be at the head of the procession, on the first run, which the committee in charge completely eliminated on the second run, the orders for each car to keep its own place as numbered, being faithfully complied with, and all went off as sweetly as love's young dream. At each town visited the boosters were warmly welcomed and the cordial receptions were only what might and was expected of the big hearted people of the cosy villages and towns on the route. The day was fine for the drive, the boosters happy and nothing occurred to mar the enjoyment of the hour, save the sudden illness of J. W. Conger at Ravenna, just as the autos were lined up for departure.

The Junior Chautauqua

The boys' and girls' part in this Chautauqua, you haven't heard much about. It is the Junior Chautauqua. It is to be in charge of Helen Bradford Paulsen, of West Virginia, the world's greatest exponent of the Chautauqua playground.

Mrs. Paulsen has seventeen young women assistants of special training. One of these will be here the entire Chautauqua week to look after the boys' and girls' interests.

The work will be organized the opening day—the play, that is.

The boys and girls who hold Chautauqua season tickets will be admitted to this Junior Chautauqua. There is no age limit. The little folks under six whose parents (both, or either one of them) hold season tickets will be taken into the kindernook company. Something special is planned for them.

"Why take them into a big tent that is filled with grown folks to hear a grown-ups' Chautauqua program? As absurd as to dress them in grown-ups' clothes," Mrs. Paulsen says.

She puts them in a shady place and lets them have their own amusement—their own music and their own Chautauqua.

She would have the boys and girls attend only such numbers of the big program as she knows would interest and profit them.

She puts them, instead, out on a wide-open playground where they can romp and play. She gives them games; tells them stories; teaches them a play that will amuse and benefit them.

That is SYSTEM and it is SENSE in boys' and girls' directed play.

And that is the whole Chautauqua idea—the right kind of living—the right kind of association—the instilling of the right kind of ideals.
