Attempt on Life of Deputy Warden Made by Convict Lincoln, Dec. 31.—(Special telegram to Bee) Last Sunday afternoon at the close of church services at the penitentiary, while Deputy Warden H. R. Anthes was taking a crowd of visitors to the prison, Jack E. Martin, a convict, sent up from Ord, drew a knife and attempted the life of the deputy. Anthes got out of his way and Martin then started after guard Stephens. He was disarmed, however, before he could do any damage and now is spending his time in the "hole." Warden Melock said the matter was not at any time serious as Martin was overpowered by the guards standing near, before he could hardly make a move. Martin was sent up for burglary and had nearly completed a nine-year sentence. He had frequently shown a vicious nature and for that reason had been closely watched.

Cheering Words From Nevada In remitting for another year's subscription to the Northwestern, under date of Dec. 20, our old friend M. H. at Fallon, Nevada, writes: "I am enclosing M.O. for $1.50 in renewal of my subscription to the Northwestern, which is our chief source of information concerning things and persons Loup Cityian. We are glad to note the steady growth of the old town, but so many new names are dropping into your locals, and so many old ones dropping out, that we feel we should be more than half a stranger, or strange to more than half the people, which ever way you please. Things are progressing here, too. Regards to yourself and all old friends." We are sure the host of friends of our genial ex-superintendent of schools and his estimable family, will be glad to hear a word from them and that prosperity also attaches to their new home.

Edgar Draper Quits Photography Our popular photographer, Edgar Draper, last week bid good-bye to the photograph business which he has followed for nearly a decade, locked his doors and so far as that branch of business is concerned has kissed it a lasting farewell. Asking him if he had sold out, he said, "No; there is no chance to sell; but there was a good chance to quit, and I did. I have wasted over seventeen years of my best life in it and will now go into something else." He left Monday morning on the B. & M. to take up a territory selling hog remedies. Mr. Draper is one of the best photographers ever in this country, and we wish him best of luck and much money in his new line of business.

Obituary Mae Belle Whitaker was born near Albion, Nebraska, May 20, 1893. She resided there until the spring of 1904, when she removed with her parents to a farm near this place, and where she lived until her marriage to William Allen Cash, of this city, on Feb. 14th of this year. She died about 10 p. m. on Dec. 25th, at her home about nine miles northeast of Loup City, as the result of a sad accident caused by a runaway, she and her husband having just returned from spending the Christmas holiday with their parents. Mrs. Cash was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal church, having given her heart to her Savior in 1905. She leaves to mourn her untimely death, her sorrowing and heart broken husband; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Whitaker of this place; a brother, Rev. Clark M. Whitaker, who is the pastor of the M. E. church of Comstock, this state, and two younger brothers, Eugene O. and George Lloyd, besides a host of other loving relatives and friends. The funeral was held from the Methodist church in Loup City, at 1 p. m. Dec. 28th, and was in charge of Rev. D. A. Leeper, the pastor of the deceased, and Rev. D. J. Poynter of Albion, pastor of the Christian church of that place. Those present from a distance were Roy C. Whitaker of Kansas City, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Clark W. Gibson of Beaver Creek, Minn.; Mrs. N. J. Callender, of Kimball, Neb.; Mrs. James Callendar of Boone, Neb.; N. C. Johnson and family of Spaulding, Neb.; Wm. Seidenburg and L. Woodworth of Albion, Neb.

Gard of Thanks We desire to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness in the death and burial of our beloved one. Allen Cash, George Whitaker and family C. S. Cash and family If you have a horse or a mule to sell, call phone 5 or 68. MYRL A. WARREN.

Allen's Foot's Ease Substitute for Soda It's a mighty mean thing to do, but the editor just can't help telling it. A propos of the visit to our city last week of some thirteen angelic creations from our sister town of Shelton, who captured the home of Glen A. Steven, and formed a cooking Bee, thereby hangs this awful story. The crinoline creations concluded to make a huge cake for their delectation, and no sooner suggested than seconded by twelve other apostles of the culinary art, the delicacy then mixed, placed in a pan and baked to a nicety. The dainty was then cut and the disappearance act begun, with side murmurs of content from thirteen sweetly modulated voices with accompanying expressions of "Fine," "Delicious," "How sweet," etc., when suddenly there arose on the midnight air, it was only afternoon—a piercing scream. "Suffering bread-pans; what's up?" said Glen, from outside the door, where he stood nibbling—or attempting to swallow—the last morsel of a small bit grudgingly passed out to him. Again a heart-rending screech and call for a doctor. "Doctor," said a voice trembling with suppressed emotion, "these girls have baked a cake and instead of using baking powder they have used Allen's Foot's Ease; what shall we do?" By this time, thirteen eager faces were pressed close to the phone, thirteen pairs of eyes were dewey with anxious expectation and twelve shell-like ears acutely alive to sounds, while they all wondered what the Anty-dote might be. However, as the hostess hung up the receiver there was a suspicion of a smile on her face as she said: "Girls, the doctor says the only action of foot's ease is to ease the feet and as it seems to help externally, it should help internally as well." And it did, for right then and there was a commotion and Glenn had to fly for his life.

In a Valley, Centuries ago. Grew a little fern leaf, green and slender, Veining delicate and fibers tender, Waving when the wind crept down so low; Rushes tall, and moss, and grass grew round it, Playful sunbeams darted in and found it, Drops of dew stole down by night and crowned it, But no foot of man e'er came that way— Earth was young and keeping holiday. We have some of that sunshine of that age for sale. We wish you a very HAPPY and prosperous New Year, an to make the whole year happy and prosperous don't forget to trade with Keystone Lumber Company Yards at Loup City, Ashton, Arcadia, Rockville and Schaupps.
