Talk about your beautiful scenic effects, if you wish to see one of the most exquisite, be down town early any of these fine mornings before the janitor has had time to use his scrubbing brush eraser and see the cement walk and steps in front of the First National Bank. If you are a tobacco chewer it will make you heartily ashamed of the filth exhibited. Why not have an anti-spitting ordinance and really enforce it?

The weather the past few days has been extremely sultry, the government thermometer registering from 100 to 104 above. Tuesday evening after supper it was still 97 above, while as late as two o'clock Wednesday morning, with all the doors and windows at the Milburn open and circulation the best obtainable, the bulb registered as high as 87. Never in the memory of old residents of this section and indeed all over Nebraska has such temperature been shown during the months of June and July in any previous year as has been shown by the record of these two months past.
