We had such a call for extra copies of the Northwestern last week that we are short a number wished for. Will any of our readers who, after reading their copy can spare the same and will hand them into this office? It will be a great accommodation to us and the parties wishing them.

See the fine display of shell goods at the Ten Cent Store.

We inadvertently omitted mention last week of the passing through this city of a pullman containing some seventeen Arcadians, bound for the Texas country, with prospects of securing soil in that sunny southland. The delegation was in charge of that prince of Texas land excursionists managers, R. F. Wichman of Scotia, which assures for the Arcadians the very best care and good time Fred can spare up.

You can save lots of trouble and delay by phoning your meat orders to Lee Brothers. They deliver same to you.

We received too late for last week announcement of Thanksgiving entertainment to be given at the Fairview school, District 49, which did not reach this office till after publication day. We are sorry, but insist that those having favors for the paper must send same in by Wednesday morning to insure publication that week, as we go to press that afternoon, in order to reach all county subscribers by Saturday of same week. Please bear this in mind.

If you want a dray, phone A. L. Enderlee, Black 63, or leave your order with either lumber yard or E. G. Taylor. Best of service guaranteed.

The football game last Friday afternoon between Arcadia and Loup City high schools resulted in a score of 7 to 0 in favor of Arcadia. It was said to be very exciting from start to finish. One accident resulted from the game, a son of Rev. Slocumb being knocked unconscious in a compact with other players, but with no serious results.

100 copies of sheet music just arrived at the Ten Cent Store.

The Northwestern this week publishes a 9-page paper, 5 pages all-home print, because of a rush of advertising. The merchants of Loup City, the enterprising ones, may be found exploiting their wares through our columns, as the best advertising medium to be had. And they are worthy of your patronage. Watch the advertisements in the Northwestern for best bargains from week to week.

During the storm Thursday night Frank Wagner's chicken coop was blown over and the rack blown from the wagon.

Ernest Daddow on his way from town Saturday in his automobile killed a calf of Oltjenbrun. He settled with Mr. Oltjenbrun.

The Ladies Aid will have a chicken pie social at the Wiggle creek church on Friday evening Nov. 28th. The supper will start at 6 o'clock. Every body are cordially invited.

Henry Kuhl bought a thoroughbred Short Horn bull at Silver City, Iowa and had it delivered to him last Wednesday.

At the home of Will Draper; last Saturday evening, the good lady of the house being absent, Miss McFadden and several of her girl friends had a slumber party. The old saying "When the old cat's away the mice want to play," was carried out to the very letter.

One of the most exciting runaways ever occurring in this part of the country, and the most fortunate as well, was the experience accorded Elsie Oltjenbrun and Lilly Brown last Friday morning between the south bridge and the mill race. The two girls were driving to town in the Oltjenbrun's buggy, and when near the home of Frank Mickow, his little dog ran out barking and biting at the heels of the horse. The animal showing much fright, Miss Elsie got out of the vehicle and attempted to drive the feet away. However, she did not succeed and the horse began a mad race toward town, with Miss Lilly in the buggy and holding the lines. In spite of all her efforts, the animal continued towards the mill race and when very near became frightened still more and turned toward the ice house. Again a tumble took rolling beneath the horse's feet, gave the animal a fresh impetus and it again toward the left and made towards Mickow's, where Frank managed to get Miss Lilly out of the buggy, while the horse swerved again and made toward town. Going but a short distance, it was loose from the cart, smashing it into kindling wood. Outside of this, no damage was done save the scare experienced by the girls and those who witnessed the exciting time.

The fall worked roads are surely in bad shape this fall and most any fall they are not in the best of shape for winter. If the roads were all worked in the spring, say the last of May and during June. The rains that fall during these months would pack the new ground hard. And if the roads were worked in the spring the ground is wet and the men and teams could do one third more work. This fall the roads the driest they have been in years. All road bosses have been roasting for their work on the roads this fall, but you go out and try to plow or grade and you will soon find out that it is not their fault. There ought to be a law that all road work should be done in the spring. It is true that some of it will be badly washed, but they are always badly washed all summer, when they are worked in the fall as the most of the fall road work does not settle until the spring rains come. If the roads were worked in the spring they would only have to be slightly touched up in the fall. And if the roads were worked in the spring there wouldn't be any weeds to bother with as they cause lots of trouble with the grader. The roads if worked in the spring could be kept in good shape all summer with a road drag. But the dragging should be done by the road boss, for just at the time it should be done the farmers are too busy. If the roads are dragged at the right time it will kill most of the weeds along the roadside. One man and three horse team could get over a good many miles in a day filling up small ruts made during the rainy weather. Why not state and a certain amount of the road funds for dragging only.
