

The Hollow Seorge Barr McCutcheon COPYRIGHT, 1912 BY GEORGE BARR MSCUTCHEON: COPYRIGHT, 1912 BY DODD, MEAD & COMPANY

CHAPTER I.

March Comes in Like the Lion.

door to descend to the snow-swept platblackness at the end of the station neither acquiescence nor approval. building enveloped the porter in an He was ill at ease, distressed. "I your sake, I hope he is mistaken." fatuously at the top of their icy posts if you-" one shone brightly where the operator | turn to New York tonight."

vious career of flying 33 had it even so | sidesmuch as slowed down for the insig- She interrupted him. "May we not trouble for every dispatcher along the them.

The woman who got down at Bential porter, and who passed by the the lee of the building. conductors without lifting her face. clogged window, peering through veil got his presence in the car. and frost into the night that whizzed | Into the thick of the storm the mothat they were whistling for B-. You would know the month was outer door and lifted the trap. A sponse to them. single word escaped her lips and he | They crossed the valley and crept station, the name of which he did not the direction of the station windows later. and stopped, as if bewildered, Aiready the engine was pounding the air with quick, vicious sports in the effort to crashed against the thin veil, blinding

The door of the waiting room across the platform opened and a man rushed toward her

"Mrs. Wrandall?" he called above the roar of the wind She advanced quickly.

"Yes." "What a night!" he said, as much to himself as to her. "I'm sorry you would insist on coming tonight. Tomorrow morning would have satisfied

"Is this Mr. Drake?" They were being blown through the door into the waiting room as she put the question. Her voice was muffled.

The man in the great fur coat put his her eyes. weight against the door to close it. Yes, Mrs. Wrandall. I have done all that could be done under the circumstances. I am sorry to tell you

A Man Rushed Toward Her.

that we still have two miles to go by or before we reach the inn. My car is open-I don't possess a limousine-but if you will lie down in the tonneau you will find some protection

She broke in sharply, impatiently, Pray do not consider me, Mr. Drake. I am not afraid of the blizzard."

Then we'd better be off," said he, note of anxiety in his voice-a certein touch of pervousness. "I drive his fault. Keep quiet, Burton. No one my own car. The road is good, but I is accusing you of anything wrong. drive cautiously. Ten minutes, Don't whine about it."

"I am not sorry for myself, Mr. now. Not that I blame you, madam, Drake, but for you. You have been but you can see how—" most kind. I did not expect you to He quailed before the steady look now, I fear." He hesitated for a mo- the proprietor's wife to look out for at staring at her as if trying to you if you should require anything

The train, which had roared through but once, in town somewhere, and I morning, I shall not insist on thewithering gale of sleet all the way may be wrong. Still, the coroner-and er-ordeal tonight." up from New York, came to a stand- the sheriff-seemed to think you "I prefer going up there tonight," still, with many an ear-splitting sigh, should be notified-I might say ques- said she steadily.

form: a solitary passenger had intensity of her emotion. It was as band. It's an ugly affair, Mrs. Wranreached the journey's end. The swirl if she lacked the power to utter more dall. We had no means of identifying of snow and sleet screaming out of the than a single word, which signified him until Drake came in this evening, instant, and cut his ears and neck with have engaged a room for you at the stinging force as he turned his back inn, Mrs. Wrandall. You did not bring thing about it before I go upstairs? I against the gale. A pair of lonely, a maid, I see. My wife will come am quite calm. I am prepared for anyhalf-obscured platform lights gleamed over from our place to stay with you thing. You need not hesitate."

at each end of the station; two or | She shook her head. "Thank you, three frost-incrusted windows glowed Mr. Drake. It will not be necessary. dully in the side of the building, while I came alone by choice. I shall re-sat waiting for the passing of No. 33. "But you-why, you can't do that," An order had been issued for the he cried, holding back as they started not keep the room for me." stopping of the fast express at B---, toward the door. "No trains stop here a noteworthy concession in these days after ten o'clock. The locals begin of premeditated haste. Not in the pre- running at seven in the morning. Be-nificant little station, through which start now, Mr. Drake? I am-well, it swooped at midnight the whole year vou must see that I am suffering. I round. Just before pulling out of New | must see, I must know. The sus- and haggard in the bright light that York on this eventful night the con- pense-" She did not complete the ductor received a command to stop sentence, but hurried past him to the 23 at B—and let down a single past door, throwing it open and bending a circumstance which meant her body to the gust that burst in upon here until eleven, but went home to

He sprang after her, grasping her arm to lead her across the icy platin the wake of the shivering but defer- form to the automobile that stood in front of the fire for her. She sank into Disdaining his command to enter was without hand luggage of any de- the tonneau, she stood beside the car scription. She was heavily veiled, and and waited until h cranked it and warmly clad in furs. At eleven o'clock took his place at the wheel. Then she that night she had entered the com- took her seat beside him and permitpartment in New York. Throughout ted him to tuck the great buffalo robe the thirty miles or more she had sat about her. No word was spoken. The alone and inert beside the snow- man was a stranger to her. She for-past the pane, seeing nothing yet ap tor chugged. Grim and silent, the parently intent on all that stretched man at the wheel, ungoggled and beyond. As still, as immobile as tense, sent the whirring thing swiftly death itself she had held herself from over the trackless village street and the moment of departure to the instant out upon the open country road. The that brought the porter with the word woman closed her eyes and waited.

Without a word she arose and fol- March. He said: "It comes in like lowed him to the vestibule, where she a lion," but apparently the storm swalwatched him as he unfastened the lowed the words far she made no reheld out his hand to receive the crum- up the tree-covered hill, where the pled bill she clutched in her gloved force of the gale was broken. If she fingers. He did not look at it. He heard him say: "Fierce, wasn't it?" knew that it would amply reward him she gave no sign, but sat hunched forfor the brief exposure he endured on ward, peering ahead through the snow far away and yet were close at hand.

"Is that the inn?" she asked as he She took several uncertain steps in swerved from the road a few moments

> "Yes. Mrs. Wrandall. We're here. "Is-is he in there?"

"Where you see that lighted window get under way; the vestibule trap and upstairs." He tooted the horn vigfoor closed with a bang; the wheels orously as he drew up to the long, low were creaking. A bitter wind smote porch. Two men dashed out from the her in the face; the wet, hurtling sleet doorway and clumsily assisted her from the car

"Go right in, Mrs. Wrandall," said Drake. "I will join you in a jiffy." She walked between the two men into the feebly lighted office of the inn. The keeper of the place, a dreary looking person with dread in his eyes, hurried forward. She stopped, stock still. Some one was brushing the stubborn, thickly caked snow from her long chinchilla coat. "You must let me get you some thing hot to drink, madam," the landlord was saying dolorously.

She struggled with her veil, finally tearing it away from her face. Then she took in the rather bare, cheerless room with a slow, puzzled sweep of to bed. She must have snpped out "No, thank you," she replied.

"It won't be any trouble, madam," urged the other. "It's right here. The sheriff eays it's all right to serve it, one if it was in violation-

"Never mind, Burton," interposed big man, approaching. "Let the lady and that was very soon after Burton's choose for herself. If she wants it, discovery. Burton, on finding the door she'll say so. I am the sheriff, madam. open, naturally suspected that his This gentleman is the coroner, Dr. Sheef. We waited up for you after night to avoid paying the bill, and lost Mr. Drake said you'd got the fast train to stop for you. Tomorrow morning would have done quite as well. I'm sorry you came tonight in all this blizzard."

He was staring as if fascinated at who with nervous fingers unfastened tense pallor that overspread her face. Her dark, questioning, dreading eyes looked up into his with an expression he was never to forget. It combined dread, horror, doubt and a smoldering other emotions that lay revealed to

"This is a-what is commonly called a 'road house'?" she asked dully, her eyes narrowing suddenly as if in pain. "It is an inn during the winter, Mrs. Wrandall, and a road house in the summer, if that makes it plain to you. I will say, however, that Burton has always kept well within the law. This is the first - er - real bit of trouble he's had, and I won't say it's "But my place is ruined," groaned

the doleful one. "It's got a black eye in her eyes, and turned away mum It was well that I did it early "There is a fire in the reception in the evening. The wires are down room, madam," said the coroner; "and have brought you on a fool's errand. yourself before going upstairs? Or, were signs of a struggle-but it isn't dall in such a self-contained way that which she gazed. Behind her were the You see, I-I have seen Mr. Wrandall if you would prefer waiting until alongside the little station, and a re-luctant porter opened his vestibule I trust, madam, that I am mistaken." The men looked at each other, and I trust, madam, that I am mistaken." "Yes," she said shrilly, betraying the | confident the-the man is your husout of curiosity you might say. For "Would you mind telling me some

> "As you wish, madam. You will go into the reception room, if you please.

Burton, is Mrs. Wrandall's room quite ready for her?" "I shall not stay here tonight," interposed Mrs. Wrandall. "You need

"But, my dear Mrs. Wrandall-" "I shall wait in the railway station until morning if necessary. But not here.' The coroner led the way to the cosy little room off the office. She followed with the sheriff. The men looked worn met them, as if they had not known sleep or rest for many hours.

get a little rest. It's been a hard case for all of us-a nasty one," explained the sheriff, as he placed a chair in it limply.

"Go on, please," she murmured, and shook her head at the nervous little woman who bustled up and inquired if she could do anything to make her swer. more comfortable

The sheriff cleared his throat, "Well, it happened last night. All day long we've been trying to find out who he is, and ever since eight o'clock this morning we've been searching for the woman who came here with him. She has disappeared as completely as if swallowed by the earth. Not a sign of a clew-not a shred. There's nothing to show when she left the inn or by what means. All we know is that the door to that room up there was standing half open when Burton passed by it at seven o'clock this morning-that is to say, yesterday morning, for this is now Wednesday. It is quite clear, from this, that she neglected to close the door tightly when she came out, probably through haste or fear, and the draft in the hall blew it wider open during the night. Burton says the inn was closed for the night at half-past ten. He went after everyone was sound asleep. There were no other guests on that floor. Burton and his wife sleep on this floor, and the servants are at the top of the house and in a wing. No although it is after hours. I run a one heard a sound. We have not the respectable, law-abiding house. I remotest idea when the thing hapwouldn't think of offering it to any- pened, or when she left the place. Dr. Sheef says the man had been dead six or eight hours when he first saw him. guests had skipped out during the no time in entering the room.

She Sank Into It Limply.

"He found the man lying on the bed. sprawled out, face upward and as dead as a mack-I should say, quite dead. He was partly dressed. His coat and vest hung over the back of the white, colorless face of the woman a chair. A small service carving knife, belonging to the inn, had been the heavy coat that enveloped her driven squarely into his heart and was slender figure. She was young and found sticking there. Burton says strikingly beautiful, despite the in that the man, on their arrival at the inn, about nine o'clock at night, ordered supper sent up to the room. The tray of dishes, with most of the. food untouched, and an empty champagne bottle, was found on the service anger that seemed to overcast all table near the bed. One of the chairs was overturned. The servant who took the meal to the room says that the woman was sitting at the window with her wraps on, motor veil and all, just as she was when she came into the place. The man gave all the directions, the woman apparently paying no attention to what was going on. The waitress left the room without seeing her face. She had instructions not to come for the tray until morn-

"That was the last time the man was seen alive. No one has seen the roman since the door closed after hearing the key turn in the lock as she went down the hall. It seems pretty clear that the man ate and drank but not the woman. Her food emained untouched on the plate and ner glass was full. 'Gad, it must have been a merry feast! I beg your par-don, Mrs. Wrandall!"

"Go on, please," said she levelly.

penetrate the thick, wet veil. "I may, Will you go in there and compose the actual crime is concerned. There that very particular," said Mrs. Wran- looking, as motionless as the object on They had no hand baggage and appar- pared for the shock that-" ently had run out from New York. "I shall not faint, Dr. Sheef. If it tenseness, went slowly to her temples. Burton says he was on the point of is my husband I shall ask you to leave Her head dropped slightly forward, refusing them accommodations when me alone in the room with him for a and a great shudder ran through her the man handed him a hundred-dollar little while." The final word trailed body. The coroner started forward, bill. It was more than Burton's cu- out into a long, tremulous wail, show- expecting her to collapse. pidity could withstand. They did not ing how near she was to the breaking "Please go away," she was saying bile, which was of foreign make. Of ily. They heard her draw two or while." until we could have found out who could almost feel the tension that she looked at each other with a single the car belonged to. It is perfectly was exercising over herself. obvious why he removed the numbers." At this juncture Drake entered the recognize him

"It has stopped snowing," announced the newcomer

"Oh, it is Mr. Drake," she murmured. We have a little French car, painted you-" red," she announced to the sheriff! without giving Drake another thought. "And this one is red, madam," said the sheriff, with a glance at the coroner. Drake nodded his head. Mrs. Wrandall's body stiffened perceptibly. as if deflecting a blow. "It is still standing in the garage, where he left it on his arrival.

"Did no one see the face of-of the woman?" asked Mrs. Wrandall, rather querulously. "It seems odd that no one should have seen her face," she went on without waiting for an an-

"It's not strange, madam, when you consider all the circumstances. She was very careful not to remove her veil or her coat until the door was locked. That proves that she was not the sort of woman we usually find gallavanting around with men regardless of-ahem, I beg your pardon. This must be very distressing to you."

"I am not sure, Mr. Sheriff, that it is my husband who lies up there. Please remember that," she said steadily. "It is easier to hear the details now, be fore I know, than it will be afterward if it should turn out to be as Mr. Drake declares."

"I see," said the sheriff, marveling "Besides, Mr. Drake is not positive," put in the coroner hopefully.

"I am reasonably certain," said Drake.

"Then all the more reason why I should have the story first," said she, the h with a shiver that no one failed to observe.

The sheriff resumed his conclusions Women of the kind I referred to a moment ago don't care whether they're seen or not. In fact, they're rather brazen about it. But this one was different. She was as far from that as it was possible for her to be. We haven't been able to find anyone who saw her face or who can give the least idea as to what she looks like, excenting a general description of her figure, her carriage and the outdoor garments she wore. We have reason to believe she was young. She was modestly dressed. Her coat was one of those heavy ulster affairs, such as a woman uses in motoring or on a sea voyage. There was a small sable stole about her neck. The skirt was short, and she wore high black shoes of the thick walking type. Judging from Burton's description she must have been about your size and figure, Mrs. Wrandall. Isn't that so, Mrs. Burton?"

The innkeeper's wife spoke. "Yes Mr. Harben, I'd say so myself. About five feet six, I'd judge; rather slim and graceful like, in spite of the big woman's face. "I am five feet six," she said, as if answering a question. The sheriff cleared his throat some what needlessly.

"Burton says she acted as if she were a lady," he went on. "Not the kind that usually comes out here on such expeditions, he admits. She did not speak to anyone, except once in very low tones to the man she was with, and then she was standing by the fireplace out in the main office, quite a distance from the desk. She went upstairs alone, and he gave some orders to Burton before following her That was the last time Burton saw her. The waitress went up with a specially prepared supper about half an hour later.'

"It seems quite clear, Mrs. Wrandall, that she robbed the man after stabbing him," said the coroner.

Mrs. Wrandall started. "Then she was not a lady, after all," she said quickly. There was a note of relief in her voice. It was as if she had put aside a half-formed conclusion.

"His pockets were empty. Not a penny had been left. Watch, cuff links, scarf pin, cigarette case, purse and bill folder-all gone. Burton had seen most of these articles in the "Isn't it-but no! Why should !

be the one to offer a suggestion that might be construed as a defense for this woman? "You were about to suggest, madan that some one else might have taken the valuables-is that it?" cried the "Had you thought of it. Mr. Sheriff?" "I had not. It isn't reasonable. No one about this place is suspected. We have thought of this, however: the murderess may have taken all of these things away with her in order to prevent immediate identification of her victim. She may have been clever

"Not an unreasonable co when you stop to consider, Mr. Sher iff, that the man took the initiative in enough for that. It would give her a necessary to go into that. Now, as to the three men looked at her in won- tense, keen-eyed men, not one of their arrival at the inn. The blizzard der. Then she came abruptly to her whom seemed to breathe during the had not set in. Last night was dark, feet. "It is very late, gentlemen. I grim minutes that passed. The wind of course, as there is no moon, but it am ready to go upstairs, Mr. Sheriff." howled about the corners of the inn, was clear and rather warm for the "I must warn you, madam, that Mr. but no one heard it. They heard the time of year. The couple came here Drake is reasonably certain that it is beating of their hearts, even the tickabout nine o'clock in a high power run- your husband," said the coroner un- ing of their watches, but not the wail about machine, which the man drove. comfortably. "You may not be pre- of the wind.

register. The state license numbers point in her wonderful effort at self- in an absolutely emotionless voice. had been removed from the automo- control. The men looked away hast- "Let me stay here alone for a little course it was only a question of time three deep, quavering breaths; they That was all. The men relaxed. They

The doctor turned after a moment and spoke very gently, but with professional firmness. "You must not room. Mrs. Wrandall did not at first think of venturing out in this wretched night, madam. It would be the worst kind of folly. Surely you will be guided by me-by your own common sense. Mrs. Burton will be with

"Thank you, Dr. Sheef," she interposed calmly. "If what we all fear should turn out to be the truth, I could not stay here. I could not breathe. I could not live. If, on the other hand, Mr. Drake is mistaken, I shall stay. But if it is my husband, I cannot remain under the same roof with him, even though he be dead. I do not expect you to understand my feelings. It would be asking too much of men-too much." "I think I understand," murmured

Drake. "Come," said the sheriff, arousing himself with an effort. She moved swiftly after him. Drake and the coroner, following close behind with Mrs. Burton, could not take their eyes from the slender, graceful question in their eyes. Was it quite figure. She was a revelation to them. safe to leave her alone with her dead? Feeling as they did that she was about They hesitated. to be confronted by the most appalling crisis imaginable, they could not but spreading her arms in a wide gesture marvel at her composure. Drake's of self-absolution. Her somber eyes mind dwelt on the stories of the guillo- swept the group. tine and the heroines who went up to it in those bloody days without so mine. I want to look at him for the much as a quiver of dread. Somehow, fast time-alone. Will you go?" to him, this woman was a heroine.

They passed into the hall and tend to-" began the coroner in alarm. mounted the stairs. At the far end of the corridor a man was seated in that I shall take my last look at him front of a closed door. He arose as now-and here. Then you may do of the room were flapping and whipping in the wind. Mrs. Wrandall on the point of faltering. She dropped rid ears. Who knows? He may hear The Living Church. farther behind the sheriff, her limbs me!" suddenly stiff, her hand going out to the wall as if for support. The next moment she was moving forward res- they closed the door. olutely into the icy, dimly lighted room

A single electric light gleamed in the corner beside the bureau. Near the window stood the bed. She went swiftly toward it, her eyes fastened upon the ridge that ran through the the hall conversed in whispers. center of it: a still, white ridge that seemed without beginning or end.

fear.

A CONTRACTOR OF THE CONTRACTOR

AS SEEN BY NATURE LOVER! hardened to it, got the rudest shock

Frost and drought are not unlike in called "How to Learn Spanish," anoth-their results, or at least their effects. er "How to Learn Italian," and so on.

the same meadow during a dry spell pression suddenly changed to one of is short, stones show like land turtles, on still another of the little red books the soil is impenetrable, the wheel of he read on its cover:

With nervous fingers the attendant lifted the sheet at the head of the breath, "she won't have to worry any bed and turned it back. As he let it fall across the chest of the dead man nights. I say, this business will create he drew back and turned his face a fearful sensation, sheriff. The Four away. She bent forward and then straightened her figure to its full height, without for an instant removing her gaze that we know who he is, it shouldn't from the face of the man who lay before her: a dark-haired man gray in been trailing with lately. Then we death, who must have been beautiful can sift 'em down until the right one to look upon in the flush of life. For a long time she stood there

Frost and Drought Very Much Alike

in Their Effects Upon Good

Old Mother Earth.

A winter meadow, bare of snow but frozen hard, is not very dissimilar to after haying. Color is gone, growth nature is on a dead point. Only the hedgerows, in either case, retain some

You look at the foothole pits in the last fall or spring, as the case may be, and wonder that the ground would

to the obliteration of its natural tan;

and, again like the cowboy, this only departs when he draws rein at home.

ter, how the tints hasten back, and their natural hues; for even in win-

Farmer's Notebook," by E. D. Phelps.

Americans traveling abroad soon and out that the language they speak

is not looked upon always as genuine of mild moisture comes.-From life and color.

At last her hands, claw-like in their Body.

HIRES MEN OF MATURE YEARS

Chicagoan Decidedly of Opinion That borhood of Forty-five.

Wondering, the others backed from the room. She watched them until A man had borrowed some money from a friend and refused to give it up. There had been no witnesses to Listening, they heard her lower the the transaction. When the lender window. It squealed like a thing in sued the borrower took advantage of his constitutional rights of not testifying against himself, with the result Ten minutes passed. The group in that the lender could not recover. When they met on the street some "Poor thing," said the innkeeper's time later the lender ran up to the borrower and shouted: "I've got four "Well," said Drake, taking a deep witnesses anyhow who know that I loaned you the money. God and I more about his not coming home know it and the devil and you know

Just Once.

he hard to pick out the women he's Teacher-"Willie, what is your greatest ambition?" Willie-"To wash mother's ears."-Stanford Chaparral.

good grocers. Adv.

Isn't it queer how a giggling girl manages to hook up with an otherwise sensible man?

tired.

goods than others. Adv.

Truly, Cordelia, age is no infallible sign of wisdom.

It's hard enough to keep house if in perfect health, but a woman who is weak, tired and suffering from an aching oack has a heavy burden

Any woman in this condition has good cause to suspect kidney trouble, especially if the kidney action seems disordered Doan's Kidney Pills have cured thou sands of suffering women. It's the best recommended special kidney remedy.

A NORTH DAKOTA CASE

Mrs. C. J. Tyler, Cando, N. D., says:
"For years I had kidney trouble. My feet and limbs swelled and I couldn't sleep more than two hours at a time. In the morning."

DOAN'S RIDNES

"How to Learn American!" Dissensions in families often rise Hundred will have a conniption fit."

is left. It ought to be easy."

of all last summer.

"We've got to land that girl, whoever she is," grated the official. "Now

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

In a Paris book store window he

"How to Learn German." was th

title of one of them. Another was

The American was looking at them with an uninterested air when his ex-utter amazement. Casting his eye saw several little red books.

ground, made when you rode that way from a lack of humility and too much presumption on the part of the differ ent members of the family. "The soft ever have been soft enough to receive answer that turneth away wrath" is such impressions, while that pools of forgotten for the hasty reply, the unwater could ever have stood upon it kind retorts that kindle the fire of illseems impossible. The earth, like the feeling and are the outcome of disface of a frightened cowboy, is pale orderly minds which are prone to resentment on account of lacking in the gentle grace of humility. Love does not linger in the house where petty Then it is good to see, even in win- pride shows its unlovely qualities. It chooses to dwell in the home where brown skin and stubby beard assume the spirit of unselfishness, of selfcontrol, of thoughtfulness and of ter there is color, whenever a spell charitableness makes the atmosphere "A sweet.-Exchange.

Sees Class Morality. The following assertion of A. M. Glovannitti opens up an interesting discussion: "All social morality today is is not looked upon always as genuine class morality. We have a capitalistic morality, a middle class morality and lishman or the natives of the con- a proletarian morality, to speak only tinent of Europe. One already aware of the three greatest subdivisions of this view, who thought he was modern society."

WOMAN COULD

Now Does Her Own Work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her. Ironton, Ohio. - " I am enjoying better health now than I have for twelve > years. When I began to take Lydia E.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could not sit up. I had female troubles

and was very nervous. I used the remedies a year and I can do my work and for the last eight months I have worked for other

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out and drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegeta-ble Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Worker Is at His Best in the Neigh-A Chicago man, a leader in the commercial life of that city, is quoted as saying: "Among the men I hire nine

A Great Shudder Ran Through Her out of ten are better workers at fortyfive years of age than are the men of twenty-five or thirty." This man firmly believes that the man of forty-five or thereabouts is at the prime of life, She turned on them suddenly, physically and mentally. He also holds that men of mature years are more reliable and less apt to become restless after a year or two in a posi-"I can do no harm. This man is tion and to seek new fields. The average young man, he says, is seeking a "soft snap," and is not the sort of "Do you mean, madam, that you inemploye who will stick by his employer through thick and thin until She clasped her hands. "I mean his services become highly valuable and, in many cases, indispensable. We the party approached. The sheriff what you like with him. He is your often hear young men complain of signed for him to open the door he dead-not mine. I do not want him. their inability to get settled. That is guarded. As he did so, a chilly blast | Can you understand? I do not want | largely because they do not settle, do of air blew upon the faces of those in this dead thing. But there is something I should say to him, something that I must say. Something that no nity. Opportunity seldom knocks at one must hear but the good God who our doors. We must knock at the door caught her breath. For the briefest knows how much he has hurt me. I of opportunity and be prepared to instant it seemed as though she was | want to say it close to those gray, hor- push the door a little if necessary .-

His Four Witnesses.

Constipation causes and seriously aggravates many diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. Tiny sugar-coated granules. Adv.

If you wish beautiful, clear, white clothes, use Red Cross Ball Blue. At all

Many a man becomes weary from trying to dodge people who make him

Putnam Fadeless Dyes color more

One can't get the best of a citizen who hasn't any.

Housework Is a Burden