Railroads of Nebraska Losing Thousands

people. The state is what its people make it. We are all dependent upon each other. The welfare of the towns and the surrounding farms depends upon a spirit of kindly co-operation between those who live in town and those who live upon the farm. Without splendid little inland towns we would have a rural atmosphere which would drive every bright country boy and girl to the cities—while without the farms the towns would wither and die. Even so it is with our great commonwealth as a whole—a commonwealth which for its own sake and for the sake of the great nation of which it is a part should contribute its full share to the "New Day" to which the President referred so beautifully in a recent address—a day fraught with better understanding and justice for every man or interest, whether great or small. At this moment there are a half million men out of work in New York City, nearly 300,000 in Chicago, almost 100,000 in St. Louis, while the Kansas City Commercial Club for the first time in the history of that splendid city is grappling with the problem of thousands of idle men. Truly it is a time to think!

The Course of Empire.

Slowly but surely the course of empire is moving westward. Her lands impoverished in fertility, New England, as well as the great nations of the Old World, today look to the Corn Belt for foodstuffs—and sooner or later the center of this mighty nation's wealth will be found here amid the rich valleys of the Missouri and the Mississippi, which, in point of productivity, are without an equal in any similar area upon the habitable globe. Here our people are assured that Nature will always sooner or later amply reward honest thrift and industry. Here our families are farthest removed from those influences which corrode and corrupt civilization. Here American manhood and womanhood find their broadest opportunity, and with a commonwealth so rich in promise and so much in need of additional capital with which to develop its resources, can her people do a wiser thing than to say to the world that every dollar invested in Nebraska enterprise and industry shall be permitted to earn a fair return for its owner from this time forward? Would not such a declaration be fair? Would it not be infinitely wise as a matter of pure business policy on behalf of our great state?

It is because Nebraska railroads believe that Nebraska people will be generously fair—once they know the truth about this great question—that has persuaded them to make this appeal through the public press. In doing so they have tried to state their side of the story fairly. They have made no attack upon anyone or sought to appeal to prejudice—and that the reader may accord to them the same credit for sincerity which he claims for himself—that he may be willing to raise his voice in defense of their rights as he would expect others to do in his behalf under similar circumstances—this is all the railroads of Nebraska ask. (Paid adv.)

Carrier had an experience last Thursday morning just east of O. A. Clark's he wouldn't care to repeat. About forty feet from the bottom of the hill the front axle on the wagon broke, letting the wagon down on the ground and before the team was under control had gone about ten or fifteen yards. Through Mr. Clark lending him a buggy and Will Rogers getting things straightened up he was able to cover the rest of the route. On his return, with the help of Marvin Lee, the broken vehicle was gotten home a little after dark.
