And Along Came Patty

By Mary Gertrude Sheridan

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Nothing will ever mend it!" sobbed

Eunice Martin. "Mend what?" questioned her friend and confidant, Mrs. Almie Tresham. "My broken heart!" was the wailing response. "Nonsense! Why, child, you are making a mountain out of a mole hill Young men must have their swing. Mr. Tresham himself, sedate and wellbehaved as he is now, was a positive chevalier before I married him."

"I despise flirting!" flashed out Eu-"And your affianced lover, Roy Porter, has been flirting, has he?" "Abominably. And worse!" nounced Eunice severely. "He is down at Brook Haven-for a week's rest, he claimed. I have some friends there. They say that he is the constant companion of a dashing young lady whom nobody knows. They are out automobiling most of the time. They are almost inseparable. They take long, mysterious jaunts. Oh, my!" and fair Eunice broke down in

"Why don't you write to him and call him to time?" suggested Mrs. "Oh never that! I'd wear my heart out first. I'm too proud for that." "Well Eunice" spoke her friend soberly, "you should have encouraged my brother Walter. You had won him half way out of his shyness and then dropped him for Roy. I am sure he Distressed as Eunice was, the suggestion was too ludicrous.

"Why Don't You Write to Him?"

"Oh, my, no-dear old Walter? He's good as gold, but he never thought of me in any way except as his sister's friend. Why, Walter cares more for a rare bird's egg or a new butterfly specimen than he does for all the women in the world. But Roy-oh. it's hard to lose faith in him after we were so happy," and Eunice went on her friend's shoulder, the latter trying to console her and promising to help out some way in the situation.

But how? Mrs. Tresham dubiously questioned herself as she started homewards, and then-along came Never was a friend and adviser more welcomed. Unexpected, too, but then Patty was always bobbing in at odd minutes in her queer, erratic, flashing way.

"Why, my dear girl!" cried Mrs. Tresham tumultuously. "Who ever expected to see you?"

"Didn't you invite me last year?" "I did; and certainly reinvite you now!" declared Mrs. Tresham enthusiastically, with a lively remembrance of this "everybody's friend," who had ruled the girls at the college, a popular queen.

There had been but one Patty, and she "just came along." A new, strange student found a wise and powerful chaperone in Patty; the homesick were petted and nursed into content by this bright, heartsome creature. who had never had a home of her

She was twenty-four, but petite, and looked sixteen. Patty had the wisdom of forty-six. She had come to visit her old school friend just in the nick of time, it seemed, for next morning Mrs. Tresham told her about the troubles of mourning Eunice, and Patty's clever eyes sparkled.

"A naughty boy-tiff-hearts sundered-oh, dear me! I'll have to try and mend all that. Just as soon as I get through looking over those wonderful specimens of beetles that wonderful brother of yours half showed me vesterday. I'll take a run down to Brook Haven and look over the

"Why, you speak pretty fine of that dull, self-centered brother of mine, Patty!" smiled Mrs. Tresham.

"Walter?" replied Patty effusively. "I dote on him! He's the most sensible, and therefore the most interest ing young man I have met in a year.' "I declare!" Walter told his sister in his grave, matter-of-fact way after Patty had gone, "this Patty of yours is the most congenial and original young lady I ever knew." "She's original, yes," smiled Mrs.

Tresham, "and a regular driveahead. l always loved her, she is such a bright busy, helpful little mite. I love her more than ever since she said some nice things about you."

Smile, smile, beautiful clear white clothes. Red Cross Ball Blue, American made, therefore best. All grocers. Adv.

"About me!" gasped Walter, and his face turned red as a beet, but his eyes expressed rare content.

"It's all right about your trouble with Roy." the young society matron assured Eunice the following day. "Why do you say that?" murmured Eunice, still in the depths of suspicion, jealousy and despair over her absent lover. "Well, along came Patty, and I told her everything, and because she is my friend and you are mine, she is going to see this affair out. She has gone down to Brook Haven. Oh, trust me, Patty will straighten out this tangle!"

"But maybe-maybe," faltered Eunice, "she will fall in love with Roy herself!"

"You odious creature!" railed Mrs. Tresham-"when I am wanting her for a sister-in-law!"

"Oh, I know Roy has completely forgotten me." declared Eunice utterly crushed and wretched the next evening, as she sat on the porch weep ing and her friend trying to console her. "I haven't had a letter from Roy for two days now. And a friend at Brook Haven wrote me that he and this Miss Betty are together more than ever.

"We shall hear from Patty soon, I hope," soothingly spoke Mrs. Tresham, and then abruptly: "There is somebody!"

An automobile had chugged up to the curb. A light form in chauffeur garb leaped lightly to the pavement and advanced jauntily up the graveled garden path.

"Mrs. Tresham here?" spoke up a bold, silvery voice. "Oh, yes!" and Patty, irresistible, audacious, vimful, threw up the visor of the cap she wore, disclosing bright, smiling eyes. Why Patty! What are you doing in this trim? Miss Martin, this is the dear friend I have told you about,' spoke Mrs. Tresham.

"You poor, grieving dear!" and impulsive Patty took Eunice by the arms and kissed her first on one cheek and then on the other, and Eunice blushed at the thought of permitting a kiss from one in masculine attire. "I've only got a few minutes to spare. You see, I am acting as chauffeur for Mr. Porter and his lady friend. I bribed the garage man to let me do it. They are looking over some papers at a farm house near here, and I ran down to ask you two to keep a secret."

"A secret!" repeated Mrs. Tresham,

"A secret!" echoed Eunice, apprehensively

"Yes. Oh, you dear little goose! Patty addressed herself to Eunice. "Why, this mysterious Miss Davey is in reality Mrs. Davey. She has a crippled husband and they adore each other. He was not able to come down to this district to straighten out some titles to an estate he inherited. A good friend of Mr. Porter recommended him as a capable lawyer, and Mr. Porter gets his first fee-a thousand dollars. He wants to surprise you, hence his absence on business."

"Oh, how I have wronged dear, dear Roy!" wailed Eunice, in a tempest of In propria persona, along came Patty the next morning. Fresh as a daisy, bright as a dew drop, sweet and womanly, but with a happy sparkle in her eyes, her first query of Mrs. Tresham was: "Where is Walter?"-and that told Dome of St. Paul's.

The origin of the famous dome of St. Paul's which has puzzled London architects for many generations, appears to have been solved by experts of the Royal Asiatic society. They now say it was copied from the fourteenth century wooden dome of the Great Mosque at Damascus. Thus is has had a pagan origin, distinctively indicated by its inner and outer shell. When Timur, the Asiatic conqueror, sacked Damascus, at the close of the fourteenth century, he carried the idea of the Great Mosque back home. The dome spread over Persia. and appeared in India in the sixteenth century. The Persians covered their domes with gilded tiles, which somethimes can be seen flashing thirty miles away. The Persians discovered how a really large dome could be set over a square chamber, a problem the Romans failed to solve.

Daylight-Saving Scheme. Considerable attention is now being given throughout Canada to a socalled daylight-saving scheme. The movement in Halifax is in accord with an effort all over the dominion to have the clocks put back one hour on April 1 each year, continuing to some autumn month, in order to give more ings are now being held all over Canada with a view to bringing the matsentatives of the city council, trades and labor council, and wholesale and retail merchants.

He Saw It All.

There is nothing the matter with the "lamps" of an aged Southerner in New York on his first visit. "You have some good lookers here," was his comment. "But I saw a lot of women coming into the hotel the other night with lots of silk dragging that should have been wrapped around their shoulders. But the real sight was one I saw in a dance place uptown. Some of them did not have much of anything on, and what they did wear looked like wet bathing suits on a girl at the beach."

Frank, Anyway. "I can never marry you-"

"Then you'll break my heart." "Let me finish. I can never marry
