WONT STAND COMPARISON.

There is a saying that "comparisons are odious," and undoubtedly they are, especially when they are not favorable to the party or goods compared. Wm. Larson of the Loup City Mercantile company has a window display of mail order goods and goods from his own stock that should be a most interesting object lesson to those who persist in blindly buying from catalogue houses without first inspecting what the home merchant has to sell.

The goods referred to in the above mentioned display are articles of every day wear and the price tags attached show that the prices are as low and, in many instances lower than those offered by the mail order houses, and as far as the quality is concerned, the most ignorant buyer can not fail to see that he is getting a great deal the best of it by trading with his home merchant. The same is undoubtedly true of the stocks carried by the other merchants of Loup City.

The mail order patron is simply hurting himself, his home town and depreciating the value of property when he sends his money to a mail order house instead of keeping it at home where it is eventually used to build schools, churches, business houses and make other improvements that enhance the value of both town and farm property. Read the ads in The Northwestern carefully each week and you will always find the live merchants have a message for you that will do you good, and probably save you both time and money. The merchant needs the farmer's business and the farmer needs the merchant who uses his profits to build up a town that is of real benefit to the farmer. Let us all get together and give the mail order patron adequate proof in object lessons of the foolhardiness of sending his hard-earned money out of the county.

PERILS OF PAULINE.

Manager Daddow of the local theater announces that he has arranged for the production of the motion pictures of the great mystery story, "The Perils of Pauline." This is considered the strongest and most absorbing of any in this series of pictures that have been offered to patrons of the movies, and has attracted large crowds wherever shown.

The production consists of forty reels. Five reels will be presented on the opening night, Tuesday, September 7. Everyone should make it a point to be present on the first night as a synopsis of the story will be given at that time and will be of value to all who follow the story to the end. Each following Tuesday night for nine weeks four reels will be shown and an added attraction of a comedy reel.

"The Perils of Pauline" is a story of the escapades of a young girl and there are thrills and startling situations enough to satisfy the most fastidious and keep all wondering what will be the outcome of the story. Manager Daddow is to be congratulated on securing the pictures of this story and it is hoped that the patronage will justify the presentation of another story in this series when this one is finished.

How to Buy a Hat

By Mrs. H. M. Mathew

Don't be in too great a hurry. Stroll around in the afternoon or evening and look at the windows. If you see hats you like, or if you don't, drop in and try some of them on. Decide which are the prevailing colors and which suit you and your pocket book.

If you are buying a street hat, wear your every day clothes, and if you want a best hat for all winter, put on your winter coat. The new hats have small head sizes.

Notice the hat that brings out your color and suits you individually; a hat has no earthly purpose on a woman's head unless it makes her look pretty.

Decide for yourself. If some other woman says "no, I don't like that one on you at all, do not hasten to throw it aside; maybe she wants it herself. If your rival says "yes, that's perfectly sweet on you," drop it quick.

Leave your husband at home with the children. He fell in love with you when you were wearing a hat of your own choice. Anyway he generally stands on one leg and gasps, or says "yes, anything you like mamma; yes, that's all right."

And finally, buy a hat, and buy it here. Loup City is the State Emporium this season. Omaha and Lincoln are not in it.

OPENING A BIG SUCCESS.

The fall opening of the Busy Bee Hat shop was unique and was a new departure in methods heretofore followed out in this part of the county.

At 8 o'clock a concert was given by the Loup City band and the doors of the millinery store were opened to the public. All the latest hats and trimmings were displayed in a pleasing array and several models were present to display the various hats and combination in the new styles. The store was thronged with ladies all evening. Every visitor received a handsome souvenir.

Besides the large number of people who attended the millinery opening, the street was thronged with people who enjoyed the band concert.

PICTURES OF DIETZ BATTLE.

On Saturday night at the Daddow theater will be shown the pictures of the battle of Cameron Dam, Wisconsin, which took place several years ago on account of trouble between John Dietz and deputy sheriffs at the instigation of the lumber kings of the Northwest who, for many years had attempted to gain possession of a dam built and owned by Dietz on his homestead. The dam was of considerable importance to the lumber companies as a means of getting their logs to the mills, and this they sought to do without paying Dietz anything for the use of his dam and kept up numerous persecutions of Dietz and his family. The direct cause of the battle was an argument over some school affairs in which the Dietz family was interested and resulted in a fight in town in which Dietz wounded one of his assailants and escaped to his homestead and defied the officers. In the numerous attempts made to take him, his daughter, Myra Dietz was shot from ambush by a squad of deputies while on her way to town after the mail. A general bombardment of the home of Dietz followed in which Dietz was wounded and surrendered after killing one of the deputies, and is now serving a sentence in Wisconsin for the offense.

The motion pictures of this thrilling battle and the capture of Dietz will be shown at the opera house Saturday night in three reels and accompanied by a lecture describing the action of the pictures. Another two-reel attraction will be offered following the Dietz pictures.

SALE BILLS.

The public sale season is again at hand and The Northwestern wishes to announce that we have made special preparations to handle this class of work in a manner that cannot fail to give the best of satisfaction to customers. A special feature will be running of the date of all sales and other data in a conspicuous position in bold faced type from the time the bills are printed till the date of the sale without expense to the party having the sale. The prices will be as low as is consistent for first class work, and all who are intending to have a sale this fall or winter should make it a point to see The Northwestern first.

MANY TEACHERS ATTEND INSTITUTE

Superintendent Currier and His Corps of Instructors Have Busy Week Preparing for Opening of County Schools—Dr. Thomas Speaks.

The town is full of school ma'ams. You can see them everywhere you look. Singly, in pairs and in groups and from personal observations we will defy any county in the state to produce a better looking or more scholarly appearing corps of instructors than those who are to guide the studies of the children of Sherman county the coming year.

Most of the teachers are residents of the county and credit is due them in tendering their services to their home schools.

Enrollment was practically finished Tuesday evening and is the largest in the history of the institute. Superintendent Currier is assisted by the following instructors: Superintendent J. H. Beveridge, Council Bluffs, Iowa; Professor George E. Martin, Kearney, Nebraska; Alice J. Henigan, Lincoln, Nebraska; L. H. Currier, County Superintendent.

Wednesday afternoon the graduating exercises of the eighth grade pupils of the county took place. A large crowd of relatives and friends of the graduates were in attendance and partook of a basket dinner on the court house grounds. Dr. A. O. Thomas, state superintendent, made the class address, and an enjoyable musical program was given by Mr. Montague Worlock and Mrs. Lou Schwaner.

After the eighth grade exercises were concluded a large crowd went to the District 10 school, five miles north of town and took part in the dedication exercises of the new concrete school house completed this summer by Contractor C. J. Tracy, who was also the architect of the building. This school is the most modern and finest of country school buildings in the state. It is built of cement blocks, 32x28 feet, with a half basement in which meetings of the patrons of the district will be held as well as any school entertainments that the school may give, and the basement will also be used as a dining room at the lunch hour, being equipped to prepare hot lunches. Dr. Thomas delivered the dedication address.

REGARDING FAIR ENTRIES.

The entry blanks for the county fair have been sent out and any not receiving them can obtain them by dropping a card to the secretary. Entries will be made to the superintendents of each class and special secretaries will be provided in order that the work may be handled more rapidly. Exhibitors are requested to make their entries as early as possible in order to avoid as much as possible the rush that is sure to come at the start of the fair.

A NEW WAR FEATURE.

Commencing this issue the Northwestern will print a summary of the European war news a year ago this week. This is a feature you can follow up and familiarize yourself with the events as they transpired twelve months ago. It is a sure thing many of us have forgotten the dates of the fall of Namur, Antwerp, Brussels, the moving of the French capital to Bordeaux and scores of other events since the war began. These articles will be run each week and will contain the dates of all the important happenings of the war.

NOTICE

On Friday September 3, I will be at the high school from 9:00 to 4:00 p. m. On Saturday September 4th, I wish to meet those who will register as 9th and 10th grade pupils.—J. H. Burwell, Supt.

By This Announcement To The Ladies

We wish to say that we are now showing our new Fall line of millinery goods, which are of the latest designs made to meet the most sensible tastes of everyone. And we will also remodel and trim old hats—in fact we do everything in the line of millinery work, at reasonable prices, to suit our customers.
