"Enthusiasm is the thing which makes the world go round. Without its driving power nothing worth doing has ever been done. Love, friendship, religion, altruism, devotion to career or hobby,—all of these, and most of the other good things in life, are forms of enthusiasm."

THAT KENSINGTON CLUB.
Oh! you dear girls of the Kensington club,
Did you really really wake up?
Tho't you were all named a Henry Dubb,
And preferred to ride in a Hupp.

You say "Now Mr. News Writer,
Nor between you, me and a Jew,
Pray answer me Miss Ken. writer,
This fair question I ask of you.

Why do you say "Mr. News Writer,"
Being you were so wise,
Why not have said Mrs. News Writer,
During all these terrible sighs.

Now because there are one or two love sick swains,

As you choose to call these spies,
Do not think we all have seines.
Trying to catch your cakes and pies.

And as to your plotters and spies,
Again we plead "Not guilty."
For we never tell lies,
And that would make us feel nihility.

And as to getting a date,
With a nickle or dime,
We would prefer to play pool quite late,
Almost any old time.

And K. stands for Kensington,
And C. stands for Club,
And W. stands for Washington,
And R. stands for Rub.

Now did the Kensington club.
They are so bright you know,
Give us the Washington rub?
Well I should say no!

Now, Miss Kensington Writer,
Who offered your aid,
We ask you another question,
"Do you feel repaid?"

THE KENSINGTON BEAUTIES.
Twelve Kensington beauties sitting in a row,
Each and everyone appeared to be a scrub,
Look out boys you had better lie low,
Or you will get hooked just like a chub.

AN EARLY DAY STORY

The following article was written and put in type for publication in the monthly Record but as we have now discontinued its publication and substituted the Weekly in its place, we now give it space in these columns. Besides there are a number of people in and around Hay Springs and Rushville who are acquainted with the subject of this sketch:

We noticed a very interesting letter in the Northwestern of January 6, from the pen of J. T. Hale, of Utah, and in which he makes kindly mention of the many old friends he has in Loup City. And while thus reading we could not resist the temptation to turn the tables and render unto Caesar the things that are due Caesar. In other words, we believe it would be a most fitting tribute in return for Mr. Hale's eulogy of the people of Loup City to give a synopsis of his life and sterling qualities while a pioneer among us.

We do not know where Mr. Hale was born or how old he may be. In fact, we know nothing of his ancestors and very little of his immediate relatives, except that he has, or did have, a brother, at Battle Creek this state, and that he, J. T., wedded the accomplished lady at that place, who was afterwards introduced to us as Mrs. Hale. And we want to say, now, that the lady in question, because of her ever kindly deeds is not to be omitted in this story.

The first that we knew of Mr. Hale was about 1878, when he blew into town with a large herd of bronchos which he had bought of the broncho busters of the Niobrara. He corralled them on the then prairie just east of where the milling plant now stands, back of the old cottonwood frame livery barn. "Troy," sold bronchos to the farmers for from $30 to $70 each, and his first bunch was disposed of so quickly that he came later with another lot. "Troy" was a sort of terror to our citizens, not because he was of a quarrelsome nature or was disposed to make trouble, but because he wore shaps and carried a big Colts revolver in his belt, and more especially because he was daring and had no hesitancy in mounting the worst broncho that could be found in the bunch. His big leather saddle and saddle bags were apparently as heavy as the broncho that he would often select for a free exhibition. (In those days all such exhibitions were free, now they are put on source of novelty and excitement, his going left the effects similar to what we are now experiencing after the holidays are over.

Mr. Hale followed the occupation of buying and selling western horses for several years before settling down. When he did settle down he married and brought his good and accomplished bride to live at Loup City where he bought property and continued to handle horses, mules, jacks and Jennys, and where he battled, with the rest of us, for an honest living.

It is a compliment to Loup City and her people, that Mr. Hale selected this place of all other western towns in which to make his home; for at that time he had been in every western town in Nebraska, and surely he was in search of the best and most prosperous place. And the people of Loup City were not slow to appreciate the fact. They recognized in Mr. Hale, a man of energy and public spirit, and in Mrs. Hale, a lady of benevolence and kindly feeling towards all. Although they had no children except by adoption, she was a mother in the truest sense of the term. It was her mission to look after the needy and to help the poor. Many a child's heart has been made glad by the good offices she has so richly bestowed. The beautiful cemetery to the north of Loup City where lies many of our loved ones, was made beautiful by the helpful planning and working of Mrs. Hale.—Hay Springs News.

HAS A FREAK APPLE TREE
Virginia Man Has Tree That Blossoms Half and Half at Sweet Will.

Marion, Va.—This seems to be a season of freakish manifestations in garden and apple orchards of Southwest Virginia. One of the most peculiar of these manifestations occurred on a farm a short distance east of Marion.

An apple tree which heretofore had borne its fruit in the natural and accepted manner, blossomed in the spring on one-half of the tree only, not a bloom appearing on the opposite half. Late in the summer, after the first crop of fruit had matured and been harvested, the tree blossomed on the second half, the fruit maturing in the usual manner.
