Alabastine is the most effective, economical and simple wall decoration on the market. It has demonstrated its superiority in thirty-five years use.

Think of it! No boiling water, no glue added. It's one of the easiest jobs in the world to prepare and apply Alabastine, and the resulting surface, if ordinary care is taken, is solid, streakless and mat-like.

Alabastine

The Most Beautiful Wall Tint

And when you consider that you obtain the most beautiful, mellow, nature colors, viz., soft buffs, delicate greens and exquisite blues, or any shade you wish by combining shades of Alabastine, then you'll know why Alabastine is one of the most popular wall decorations with millions of Painters and Householders, Decorators and Womenfolk, who take a pride in their homes the wide world over.

"Those soldiers don't look natural. It's a fake film."
"No, it is not. The soldiers are real soldiers. Not being versed in acting, of course they don't look natural."

FRECKLES

Now is the time to get rid of these ugly spots. There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles. The prescription ointment—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots. Simply get an ounce of ointment—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning, and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is so mild that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength ointment in this and you are guaranteed money back if it fails to remove freckles—Adv.

The GARDEN of EDEN IN CEMENT

LOG CABIN, BUILT OF STONE AND CEMENT
CEMENT FLAG AND TRUSS ROOF
READY AND EASY

Among the cement wonders the most notable is a flag done by eight feet done in red, white and blue cement and weighing nearly half a ton. It swings in the breeze on ball bearings, making a weather vane. Another odd feature is a cement pyramid on which strawberry vines are planted in the spring. The cement is about one and a half inches thick, over a soil in tor, with tiling and spray to irrigate. On top of the pyramid are plant ed touch-me-nots, and when the straw berries are ripe and visitors come Mr Dinsmoor calls their attention to the flowers. He says, however, that next spring he intends to set out milkweed in place of the flowers, hoping to raise strawberries and cream on the same bed.

Lot of Truth in a Jest.
The managers of new apartment hotels are very particular about new tenants. After a man and his wife had hired apartments in an uptown hotel yesterday, the manager asked about references, financial, social and moral. "I suppose the fact that I am to pay in advance disposes of the first," said the newcomer. "As for the social end, we are not in the swim to any extent, always fearing to get out of our depths. So far as our moral standard is concerned, I happen to love my wife and I expect her to live here with me." "Good, very good," exclaimed the manager. "Only a matter of form, you know." "Well," said the prospective tenant in a doubting manner, "how about your references? I am very particular, you see." "What," gasped the manager. "Why, this is one of the most exclusive—" "That's all right," interrupted the man, "has the president of this hotel company been sued for divorce and did his affinity live here? Is she here now? I wouldn't like my wife to meet her. What kind of people have you living here? On whom did you say I could call for information?" But the manager was speechless.—New York Times.

Unconscious Joker.
What the case was about no one seemed to know exactly. The lawyers themselves were pretty well mixed up. Then an important witness entered the box and was presently asked to tell the court the total of his gross income.
He refused; the counsel appealed to the judge.
"You must answer the question," said the judge sternly.
The witness flinched about and then burst out with:
"But—but, your honor, I have no gross income. I'm a fisherman, and it's all net."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Transmutation of Metals.
The alchemists vainly sought to change mercury into gold. We now know," wrote John Candee Dean in Popular Astronomy, "that mercury might be changed into gold if we could expel its atoms one alpha particle and a beta particle; or if the metal thallium could be made to expel an alpha particle it would become like atoms of gold. This has not yet been done, but it is possible that it might be done by the application of an electric current of some million volts."

There's an Old Gentleman in a Kansas town who has done some unusual work in the modeling art

By ROBERT H. MOULTON.

P. DINSMOOR of Lucas, Kan., calls it the Garden of Eden, and being seventy-three years old, a great-grandfather five times, a survivor of 18 battles and nonhyphenated, all of which he freely admits, he has a right to his opinion.

Adam and Eve, Cain and Abel, the devil and all the old charter members of the original garden are there, done forever in cement; also, for the sake of variety rather than consistency, 125 more figures, Biblical and otherwise, perched in concrete trees in his front yard and glowing down in their impassivity on villagers who pass that way by day, but who sedulously avoid it after dark.

In the center of the Garden of Eden, in the midst of all this ghostly array of cement creations, is Mr. Dinsmoor's cabin home, a "log house" built of stone from native ledges. One of the two porches is ornamented with cement beer bottles and jugs and mugs as a sort of merry jibe at Kansas prohibition laws. One of the many inlaid tables in the cabin home is a small one which contains 162 pieces of wood. Over the door in the living room is what the old gentleman calls a wooden sermon. It is the motto: "Home is What You Make It."

Outside, as he facetiously explains, the sweep of his hand taking in the petrified Garden of Eden, are 130 stone sermons. It took over 43 1/2 tons, or 130 sacks, of cement to make them, and the cost so far has been over $1,000. But even at that Mr. Dinsmoor declares he is far from being through. There is a system to everything about the place. The garden to the west represents the creation and fall of man according to Moses. The front, or north, represents modern civilization, how one animal preys on another down to the little worm. There are eight cement trees from 20 to 40 feet high lighted with 30 electric lights. For the grape arbor, flag, devil and rambling rose to stand on there are 13 trees from 8 to 20 feet high.

It all seems to represent a lot of gard work. But Mr. Dinsmoor is a philosopher. It wasn't work, he says, but play. Work, according to his theory, is doing something you don't like to do. He worked for 50 years. Then he went to playing. He found when he fed his pigs for play they got fat; if he fed them for profit he fed too much, and they died. He figured on that he never did make any money as long as he worked. He lost nearly everything except his wife.

Then he got to playing at farming, and his mules and horses got to making money for him and his land grew in value. It got so valuable that a man came along with a checkbook and ran him off. Then he moved into town, and it looked like he was going to dry rot and be made fit for the boneyard until he took to playing again. He started his Garden of Eden, and today he is friskier than ever.

The first figures one sees on entering the garden are Adam and Eve, who stand eight feet high, hands clasped over the gate. One serpent is putting an apple in Eve's extended palm and another is being stamped to death by Adam, while the devil appears overhead on a limb, with spear poised and malevolent eyes glaring at this world's first lovers.

Mr. Dinsmoor confesses that they were made with cement and a trowel. Some people don't like the looks of Eve, and their creator admits he doesn't blame them. But then, he explains, his models were women who passed the house, and as they generally passed in a hurry, he couldn't follow them very closely.

There are two things about the garden that the townspeople do not like. One is the all-seeing eye on a high cement pole which winks electrically at night as if it were a solemn warning to all who look at it.

The other has to do with the principal figures of the garden, which are mounted in trees re-enforced by gas pipes. Very often when a curious crowd gathers outside and gazes at the creations, Mr. Dinsmoor, who loves a joke, will slip to the basement. Presently the angel with the flaming sword, perched high in a cement tree, will speak sotto voce:
"Cain, Cain, you son of a gun, where is Abel?"

To this unangelic query Cain will give the twentieth century reply:
"Search me, kid. I'll be darned if I know."

Whereupon the devil from his dignified position will bawl out:
"I should worry."

This generally makes the crowd move on, especially if it's just growing dark and the weird conversation is accompanied by the winking of the all-seeing eye.

A New Remedy for Kidney, Bladder and all Uric Acid Troubles

After Grip—Winter Colds—Bad Blood

Dear Readers:
I appeal to those of you who are bothered with kidney and bladder trouble, that you give up the use of harsh salts or alcoholic medicines and in their place take a short treatment of "Anuric." I have taken many of Dr. Pierce's medicines for the past twenty-five years with good results. I suffered with kidney trouble for some years. I recently heard of the newest discovery of Dr. Pierce, namely, his "Anuric" Tablets. After using same I am completely cured of my kidney trouble. A doctor pronounced me a well preserved woman for my age, all due, I believe, to Dr. Pierce's aid. MRS. MELINDA E. MILLER.

If you suffer from backache, lumbago, rheumatism, get "Anuric" now.
